Standard resolution. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended.

9. Re-elect Antonino Aquino - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Re-elect Arturo Corpuz - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as he was an employee of the Company. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Re-elect Rex Mendoza - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as Senior Vice President and Chief Marketing and Sales Officer of Ayala Land, Inc. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Re-elect Sherisa Nuesa - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder. She was previously employed by the Company as Managing Director of Ayala Corporation and previously served in various capacities in Ayala Corporation and Ayala Land, Inc. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14. Re-elect Cesar Purisima - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered to be independent, as this director is considered to be in a material connection with the newly-appointed auditor: SGV & Co. He was an auditor partner until an undisclosed date. Therefore, the cool-off period cannot be calculated. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

15. Elect SyCip Gorres Velayo & Co. as Independent Auditor and Fix Its Remuneration
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 37.94% of audit fees during the year under review and 36.85% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

16. Approve Other Matters
Standard resolution. Shareholders should receive sufficient notice of proposals brought forward by either management or other shareholders. As such, any other proposition brought forward in the meeting would provide insufficient time for an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

PETRONAS GAS AGM - 27-04-2022

7. Appoint the Auditors
KPMG proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

VH GLOBAL SUSTAINABLE ENERGY OPPORTUNITIES PLC AGM - 27-04-2022

14. Additional Authority to Issue Shares for Cash
Authority is sought to issue an additional 10% of the issued share capital for cash and expires at the next AGM. The proposed limit in combination with resolution 13 is at 20% of the issued share capital and is considered excessive. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.2, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 5.8,

15. Authorise Share Repurchase
Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager), we would like to see a public statement:
- addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

DRAX GROUP PLC AGM - 27-04-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns and it is recommended to oppose this resolution.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.4, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 0.3,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce, as the salary increase for the CEO was 2% for the year under review and the workforce salary increase by 2%. The CEO salary is in the median of the comparator group. Changes in the CEO's total pay over the last five years are not commensurate with the changes in TSR performance over the same period. The variable pay for the year under review was was excessive at 356.5% of the salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is marginally not acceptable at 26:1. PIRC consider a ratio of 20:1 as appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

13. Re-appoint Deloitte LLP as Auditors

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 36.36% of audit fees during the year under review and 27.77% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.2, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 3.7,

15. Approve Political Donations
Although the aggregate limit sought is within acceptable limits, the company has made donations which are deemed to be political during the year. The Group made political donations to the Conservative Party (£53,800), the Labour Party (£14,475) and the Scottish National Party (£7,650).This raises concerns about the potential donations which could be made by the company under this authority. This also raises concerns given the very high level of UK Government subsidiary that Drax has taken and depends on going forwards, which is several times the current market capitalisation of the company." Therefore, opposition is recommended.

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration is capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

14. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. RUMO SA AGM - 27-04-2022

1. Approve Financial Statements
Disclosure is acceptable and the report was made available sufficiently before the meeting. However, The Company has not disclosed the fees paid to the auditors for the year under review, and what non-audit services have been provided, if any. Under Brazilian legislation, companies are not required in their financial statements to disclose the amount paid for the External Audit except where additional services have been engaged and the value of such services exceeds 5% of the total amount paid to the external auditor. Nevertheless, it is considered that companies should go beyond minimum regulatory requirements. Not disclosing the fees paid to the auditors is considered to be a serious breach of shareholder accountability, as it is impossible to assess the existence of potential conflicts of interest that would hinder the independence of the auditor. On this ground, opposition is recommended.

4.2. Elect the Corporate Auditors: Marcelo Curti
It is welcomed that the Company has submitted individual proposals for the candidates to the Fiscal Board. The candidate to standing member is not considered to be independent, as owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of good governance, it is considered that all of the candidates to the Fiscal Board should be independent. Opposition is thus recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Approve Remuneration of Company's Management
It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors and Management for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.
Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 52,1 million. Variable remuneration for executives would correspond to up to 405% of the fixed pay, which is deemed excessive. In addition, there is lack of disclosure with respect of targets and measurable criteria for variable remuneration, which prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Approve Remuneration of Board of Statutory Auditors
The Board is seeking approval for remuneration of the Fiscal Council. Members of the Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees, which is welcomed. However, at this time it has not been disclosed the figures implemented for the year end 2021. An abstain vote is recommended.

7c. Approve Renewal of Mandate for Interested Person Transactions
Approval is sought for the Interested Person Transaction (IPT Mandate) to facilitate transactions in the normal course of business among the Company, its subsidiaries or affiliate companies, directors, chief executive officer(s), controlling shareholders of the Company and their respective associates and relatives. Whilst it is stated that procedures are in place to ensure the transactions are conducted at arm's length basis, such general authorities are not supported, as they do not allow thorough assessment of proposals from shareholders. Specific details relating to specific transactions should be provided to shareholders for thorough assessment.

METROPOLITAN BANK AND TRUST AGM - 27-04-2022

6. Elect Arthur Ty - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. The director is son of George Ty, Founder of the company. Husband of Zandra Ty, President and brother of Alfred Ty, also director. Brother in law of Anjanette Dy Buncio, Vice President. The Ty family control the Company through direct shares and various vehicles including GT Capital Holdings. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

18. Approve New Executive Share Plan
It is proposed a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to receive shares in exchange for part of the reinvestment of their salary. The shares resulting from reinvestment will be matched by free shares awarded by the Company. While re-investment of the bonus in shares, or payment of part or all of the bonus in shares, are considered positive practice, share matching plans are viewed as a de facto discount for executives to buy company shares. They can eventually result in excessive payments versus performance. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

4. Approve Remuneration of Company's Management
It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors, Management and Fiscal Council for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.

Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 13,4 million. Variable remuneration for executives would correspond to up to 121% of the fixed pay. There is lack of disclosure with respect of targets and measurable criteria for variable remuneration, which prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment. Abstention is recommended.

LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE GROUP PLC AGM - 27-04-2022

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. However, the CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group which is raised concerns over excessiveness. The total realized awards made all incentive schemes are not considered acceptable standing at 527% of base salary for the CEO. In addition, the ratio of CEO pay compared to the average employee is not considered acceptable at 40:1. The balance of realized pay with financial performance is considered acceptable as changes in CEO total pay over the last five years are considered in line with changes in TSR performance during the same period. Rating: AD
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

4. Approve Climate Transition Plan
It is proposed to approve the Climate Transition Plan of the Company. The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.
The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.
The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting.
However, there does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.

The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness. Overall, opposition is recommended.

17. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 7.69% of audit fees during the year under review and 9.09% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

22. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

23. Authorise Share Repurchase
The authority is limited to 10% of the Company's issued share capital and will expire at the next AGM. 6. Amend Articles: Amend Exclusive Forum Provision
The Board proposes that the articles be updated to include clarifying changes and to specify that the U.S. federal district courts will be the sole and exclusive forum for any action arising under the Securities Act of 1933. The Board argues that the federal district courts have considerable expertise relevant to matters arising the Securities Act of 1933, and it will avoid duplicative litigation occuring simulateneously in different courts.
This proposal risks reducing the company's accountability by limiting the courts which claimants can use. It would be preferred for the Company to allow the claimant to launch legal proceedings in the court most relevant or usable to the claimant. Opposition is therefore recommended.

With this resolution, the board is seeking authority that members and other executives of the company may participate in boards and/or in the managements of competing companies. This authority is not sought for defined appointments. As a consequence, if approved, this authority may lead to potential time commitment concerns. In addition, an excessive number positions within the same company may develop excessive familiarity and trust, which would eventually hinder an effective independent oversight by directors (while there should be sufficient independent representation on the board). On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares or rights to shares. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

It is proposed a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to receive shares in exchange for part of the reinvestment of their salary. The shares resulting from reinvestment will be matched by free shares awarded by the Company. While re-investment of the bonus in shares, or payment of part or all of the bonus in shares, are considered positive practice, share matching plans are viewed as a de facto discount for executives to buy company shares. They can eventually result in excessive payments versus performance. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended.

PERSIMMON PLC AGM - 27-04-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary for the year under review is in line with the workforce, the increase on the CEO salary was 3% as of the workforce. The CEO salary is in the median of the Company's comparator group. Changes in the CEO's total remuneration over the past five years are not in line with changes in TSR during the same period. For the year under review total variable pay was 240.67% of the salary and is consider excessive. The ratio of the CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 50:1. PIRC consider adequate a ratio of 20:1
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

11. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP as Auditors
EY proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

O.4. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for EUR 500 million and capped at 3% of the shares for 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. The authority is sought only partially to fund the 2019-2021 LTIP. As such, an oppose vote is recommended as it is preferred that the distribution of profits to shareholders was done through dividends.

O.6. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets (financial performance is measured against undisclosed budget) for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 68.6, Abstain: 15.2, Oppose/Withhold: 16.3,

O.7. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 68.4, Abstain: 15.2, Oppose/Withhold: 16.4,

O.8. Approve Group Long Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period plus a further two-year holding period subject to further performance evaluation. Performance targets have been fully quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the initial vesting period of three years is considered to be short term.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 84.2, Abstain: 15.2, Oppose/Withhold: 0.6,

0.9. Authorize Share Repurchase Program and Reissuance of Repurchased Shares to Service Group Long Term Incentive Plan
The Board requests authority to repurchase and re-issue the shares to participants in the long term incentive plan proposed at the present meeting. Although companies have a legal duty to fund approved plans, this resolution is considered to be a proposal enabling the LTIP proposed. Based on the concerns on the resolution for the approval of the LTIP, opposition is recommended also on this resolution.

LOJAS RENNER SA AGM - 27-04-2022

1. Approve Financial Statements
Disclosure is acceptable and the report was made available sufficiently before the meeting. However, The Company has not disclosed the fees paid to the auditors for the year under review, and what non-audit services have been provided, if any. Under Brazilian legislation, companies are not required in their financial statements to disclose the amount paid for the External Audit except where additional services have been engaged and the value of such services exceeds 5% of the total amount paid to the external auditor. Nevertheless, it is considered that companies should go beyond minimum regulatory requirements. Not disclosing the fees paid to the auditors is considered to be a serious breach of shareholder accountability, as it is impossible to assess the existence of potential conflicts of interest that would hinder the independence of the auditor. On this ground, opposition is recommended.

8. Approve Remuneration of Company's Management
It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors, Management and Fiscal Council for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.
Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 48 million. Variable remuneration for executives would correspond to up to 280% of the fixed pay, which is deemed excessive. In addition, there is lack of disclosure with respect of targets and measurable criteria for variable remuneration, which prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10.2. Slate Election for Board of Statutory Auditors: Roberto Frota Decourt as Fiscal Council Member and Vanderlei Dominguez da Rosa as Alternate
It is proposed to appoint members of the Fiscal Council in a bundled election: Roberto Frota Decourt as standing member, Vanderlei Dominguez da Rosa as secondary member. In terms of good governance, it is considered that all of the candidates to the Fiscal Board should be independent. It is regrettable that the Company has bundled their election instead of seeking support for individual candidates. Roberto Frota Decourt is not considered independent, owing to a tenure on the Fiscal Council of more than nine years. He has been an alternate Fical Council member since 2010. It is believed that there is a risk that over time the familiarity of a Fiscal Council member with the Company may result in excessive trust. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11. Approve Remuneration of Fiscal Council Members
The Board is seeking approval for remuneration of the Fiscal Council. Members of the Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees, which is welcomed. The proposed increase is more than 10% on annual basis, which is considered excessive, as the Company has not provided sufficient justification. Opposition is recommended.

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3b. Re-elect Ronnie Chichung Chan - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3e. Authorise the Board to Fix Directors' Remuneration
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market; support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting; as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. Opposition from voting this resolution is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Appoint the Auditors (KPMG) and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 30.77% of audit fees during the year under review and 23.08% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

5. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. 7. Extend the General Share Issue Mandate to Repurchased Shares
The directors seek authority to re-issue shares repurchased under the authority proposed at this meeting. The effect of the proposal, if approved, the limit for issuance of shares would exceed 10% of issued share capital. Given the concerns over dilution of the shareholder rights, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Approve New Executive Share Option Scheme
The Board proposes the approval of a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded options or rights to receive shares, which will start vesting after three years from the date of award. At this time, it seems that this plan will not be based on any performance criteria but only on the beneficiaries continued employment. As a result, they may receive bonuses unrelated to their performance or even the performance of the Company as a whole, which is considered a serious frustration of shareholder accountability.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

1. Approve Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. GRUPO TELEVISA SAB EGM - 27-04-2022

1. Elect Directors Representing Series L Shareholders
Bundled proposal to elect directors Representing Series L Shareholders: José Antonio Chedraui Eguía and Sebastián Mejía. Although slate elections are not considered to be best practice, they are common in this market. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board after the meeting as resulting from this slate of candidates.

Vote Cast: Oppose

SARAS RAFFINERIE SARDE SPA AGM - 27-04-2022

1.1. Approve Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. The company sets itself as leading refining company with 60 years of history and does not clarify how this will be impacted by or will contribute to the energy transition. The board includes a number of executives and family members above practice in this market. The CEO is part of the executive board of the former petroleum association, now called 'energy union for mobility', which considers only new fuels as part of the mobility transitions, excluding electricity and mentions carbon capture as under study for refineries and not clarifying how net zero would be reached without a decided curb of emissions and not simply storing the CO2 produced in the industrial process.

On aggregate, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2.5. Deliberations Pursuant to Article 2390 of Civil Code Re: Decisions Inherent to Authorization of Board Members to Assume Positions in Competing Companies
With this resolution, the board is seeking authority that members and other executives of the company may participate in boards and/or in the managements of competing companies . This authority is not sought for defined appointments. As a consequence, if approved, this authority may lead to potential time commitment concerns. In addition, an excessive number positions within the same company may develop excessive familiarity and trust, which would eventually hinder an effective independent oversight by directors (while there is already insufficient independent representation on the board). On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3.1. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3.2. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

PRIMARY HEALTH PROPERTIES PLC AGM - 27-04-2022

4. Appoint the Auditors
Deloitte proposed. No Non-audit fees were paid for the year under review and Non-Audit fees represents 15.38% of Audit fees on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. Abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 99.2, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 0.3,

10. Re-elect Ian Krieger - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director . Not considered independent as the director is considered to be in a material connection with the current auditor Mr. Krieger was Vice Chair n Deloitte until 2012. It is considered that the senior independent director should be considered independent, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Additionally, Mr. Krieger is Chair of the Audit committee, it is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Overall opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.1, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 4.9,

16. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.9, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 1.9,

18. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% and 12 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

8. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase up to 10% of the company's shares until 30 June 2023. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term. LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees were paid during the year under review and 144.44% of audit fees were paid on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises major concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

16. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. The Board of Directors proposes to the General Meeting that the Board of Directors be authorized to resolve to repurchase a maximum of 13,800,000 shares in the Company by using funds in the unrestricted shareholders' equity. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

18. Approve Charitable Donations
The board proposes to donate EUR 250,000 for charitable purposes under the Finnish Universities Act, which came into force at the beginning of 2010, and allows universities to accept private funding. The Board proposes that shareholders authorise it to decide on donations of up to EUR 250,000 to be given to universities by the group companies. The authorization will be valid during 2022 and 2023. The Company has not explained to which universities and projects such funds would be donated. As the Company's explanation is not considered sufficient, opposition is recommended.

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation in Connection with the Merger
The board seeks to approve in an advisory vote on merger related compensation for the Company's named executive officers. The Board proposes that the named executives will receive severance made up of a base salary component and an annual bonus component. The severance is subject to double trigger provisions. It is considered that executive severance should be limited to 12 months salary. Due to excessiveness concerns opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 65.1, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 34.6,

3. Adjourn Meeting
The board requests authority to adjourn the special meeting until a later date or dates, if necessary, in order to permit further solicitation of proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the special meeting to approve the merger. An oppose vote is recommended to any adjournment or postponement of meetings if a sufficient number of votes are present to constitute a quorum. It is considered that where a quorum is present, the vote outcome should be considered representative of shareholder opinion.

7. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

CIA SANEAMENTO BASICO ESTADO SAO PAULO AGM - 28-04-2022

1. Approve Financial Statements
Disclosure is acceptable and the report was made available sufficiently before the meeting. However, The Company has not disclosed the fees paid to the auditors for the year under review, and what non-audit services have been provided, if any. Under Brazilian legislation, companies are not required in their financial statements to disclose the amount paid for the External Audit except where additional services have been engaged and the value of such services exceeds 5% of the total amount paid to the external auditor. Nevertheless, it is considered that companies should go beyond minimum regulatory requirements. Not disclosing the fees paid to the auditors is considered to be a serious breach of shareholder accountability, as it is impossible to assess the existence of potential conflicts of interest that would hinder the independence of the auditor. On this ground, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Elect Board: Slate Election
Proposal to renew the Board with a bundled election. Although slate elections are not considered to be best practice, they are common in this market. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board after the meeting as resulting from this slate of candidates.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. In Case One of the Nominees Leaves the Board of Directors Slate Due to a Separate Minority Election, as Allowed Under Articles 161 and 240 of the Brazilian Corporate Law, May Your Votes Still Be Counted for the Proposed Slate?

9. Slate Election for Board of Statutory Auditors
It is proposed to appoint members of the Fiscal Council in a bundled election. In addition, the candidate Tarcila Reis Jordão is not considered to be independent as Undersecretary for Partnerships at the Secretariat for Strategic Projects and Actions of and Strategic Actions of the State of São Paulo, the major shareholder. In terms of good governance, it is considered that all of the candidates to the Fiscal Council should be independent. It is regrettable that the Company has bundled their election instead of proposing individual candidates. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. In Case One of the Nominees Leaves the Fiscal Council Slate Due to a Separate Minority Election, May Your Votes Still Be Counted for the Proposed Slate?
It is proposed to count shareholders' vote on the slate, in case one of the candidates on the slate is no longer part of it. At this time, no changes have been communicated and abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

11. Approve Remuneration of Company's Management, Audit Committee, and Fiscal Council
It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors, Management and Fiscal Council for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.
Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 7,1 million. Variable remuneration for executives would correspond to up to 123.71% of the fixed pay. There is lack of disclosure with respect of targets and measurable criteria for variable remuneration, which prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment. Abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

12. Elect Mario Engler Pinto Junior - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director has a relationship with the Company, which is considered material. He has been the Attorney for the State of Sao Paulo, the major shareholder. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

MARR AGM - 28-04-2022

3a. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are concerns as the CEO takes part to the remuneration committee (and has joined one meeting during the year) which raises serious concerns over the CEO having a say on his own remuneration policy or amount paid. On balance, opposition is recommended.

1. Approve Remuneration of Company's Management
It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors, Management and Fiscal Council for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.
Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 37 million. Variable remuneration for executives would correspond to up to 480% of the fixed pay, which is deemed excessive. In addition, there is lack of disclosure with respect of targets and measurable criteria for variable remuneration, which prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment. 11. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

12. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

12.1. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan
It is proposed to approve a new long term incentive plan. The plan will consist of Restricted Stock Units (50%) and Performance Shares (50%). The Company has not disclosed the performance criteria for the allocation of incentives, and as such there are concerns that it may overpay for underperformance. In addition, LTIPs are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature. Opposition is recommended.

SERCO GROUP PLC AGM - 28-04-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce as the salary for the CEO do not increase. The CEO salary is on the upper quartile (top 25%) in PIRC's comparator group, which raises concerns for excessiveness. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over the last five years is not aligned to the change in TSR over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review is excessive at 346% of salary for the CEO, total variable pay should be limited to 200% of salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 66:1; the ratio should not exceed 20:1. Rating AE

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Additionally, Chair of the Corporate Responsibility Committee. 13. Appoint the Auditors

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 4.35% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.54% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

17. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment

PFIZER INC. AGM - 28-04-2022

5. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Political Expenditures Congruency

Proponent's argument:National Center for Public Policy Research asked the board to publish an annual report, at reasonable expense, analyzing the congruency of political and electioneering expenditures during the preceding year against the company's fundamental purpose and publicly stated company values and policies. "Pfizer's politically focused expenditures appear to be misaligned with the company's purpose, values, and interests. Pfizer's fundamental purpose and legal duty, as a Delaware business corporation, are to maximize long-term shareholder value by deft development, production, and sale of pharmaceuticals. Yet it has supported many candidates who support government-run single-payer or universal health-care programs that will stifle innovation and resources that support research and development, all while increasing taxes exponentially. This will undermine Pfizer's long-term prospects. •Pfizer's non-discrimination policy states that "[a]ll workplace decisions are made without regard to personal characteristics protected under applicable laws and Pfizer policy, including race, age, gender, religion, etc. We do not tolerate discrimination, harassment, or retaliation of any kind." Yet it has supported many candidates and advocacy organizations that support legislation and regulation that would force Pfizer and other companies into facial discrimination against white and male employees, while demeaning the talents and responsibility of other employees. Pfizer opposes the "use of all forms of forced, bonded, indentured, or compulsory labor," and recognizes that "the risks of modern slavery are particularly likely where our business partners rely upon migrant workers," but it supports many candidates who have failed to support legislation that would end Uyghur forced labor and who fuel the vulnerable migrant worker problem here by opposing sensible border security. Pfizer recognizes "the rights to a healthy environment, life, health, water and sanitation, and standard of living," but it supports many candidates who oppose even minimal, common-sense pro-life policies to protect society's most vulnerable members."

Company's response: The board recommends a vote against this resolution. "Pfizer is a member of several industry and trade groups that represent both the pharmaceutical industry and the business community at large to bring about consensus on broad policy issues that can impact Pfizer's business objectives and ability to serve patients. Our support of these organizations, and any tax-exempt organizations that write and endorse model legislation, is evaluated annually by the company's U.S. Government Relations leaders based on their expertise in healthcare policy and advocacy and support of key issues of importance to Pfizer. Trade associations represent many members with diverse interests. On our corporate website we state that at times we may not completely share the views of these various industry and trade groups and/or members, but we are able to voice our concerns, as appropriate, through our colleagues who serve on the boards and committees of these groups. We monitor where and to what extent our trade associations are misaligned with the company on policy issues. Where possible, we will advocate for the trade association to come into alignment. If and when a trade association's misalignment outweighs the benefits to Pfizer and its stakeholders, we consider whether to reduce our involvement with the organization or end it altogether. In December 2021, in response to shareholders' feedback, Pfizer published a report, "Industry Associations – Report on Incongruencies" outlining the public policy positions of Pfizer and five significant trade associations across six areas of key public policy and ESG significance for Pfizer: Climate Change; Patient Access to Healthcare; Trade; Tax; Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion; and Civic Integrity. The Incongruency Report also compares Pfizer and the trade associations' positions and describes the degree of alignment and areas of misalignment. "

PIRC analysis: The requested disclosure on the congruency of political expenditure appears to be a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented within the company's political activities, as opposed to promoting transparency and accountability around the potential benefits of diversity and requesting transparency over the financial impact from non-traditionally financial issues, avoid any suspicion and any damage that may cause to the company's reputation, or that the company may adopt a conduct different from what it has committed to. JOHNSON & JOHNSON AGM - 28-04-2022

5. Shareholder Resolution: Federal Securities Laws Mandatory Arbitration Bylaw
Proponent's argument:Hal Scott/The Doris Behr 2012 Irrevocable Trust proposed that the Board of Directors take all practicable steps to adopt a mandatory arbitration bylaw. "The United States is the only developed country in which stockholders can, without significant restrictions, form a class and sue their own company for violations of securities laws. As a result, U.S. companies are exposed to litigation risk for nothing more than a stock drop that can cost billions annually. The costs (in dollars and management time) of defending and settling these lawsuits are borne by stockholders. Across the corporate landscape, this effectively recirculates money within the same investor base, minus substantial attorneys' fees. We believe arbitration is an effective alternative to class actions. It can balance the rights of plaintiffs to bring federal securities law claims, with cost-effective protections for the corporation and its stockholders. The U.S. Supreme Court has repeatedly held that mandatory individual arbitration provisions do not conflict with the federal securities laws, and the Delaware Supreme Court recently held that the bylaws of a corporation can include a provision regulating the forum for federal securities law claims between the corporation and its stockholders on grounds that would equally apply to arbitration. A bylaw providing for mandatory individual arbitration of federal securities law claims would permit stockholders and corporations to opt-out of a flawed system that often seems more about the lawyers than the claimants and invariably wastes stockholder funds on expensive litigation costs."

Company's response: The board recommends a vote against this proposal. "The Board of Directors does not believe that this proposal is in the best interests of Johnson & Johnson or its shareholders and recommends that shareholders vote against the proposal. We are committed to sound principles of corporate governance and have a track record of extensive shareholder engagement, with regular outreach to, and dialogue with, our investors to understand their concerns and perspectives on a broad range of corporate governance and other matters. Notably, other than the proponent of this shareholder proposal, none of our other shareholders have expressed to us an interest in having us adopt a mandatory arbitration bylaw. "

PIRC analysis:During arbitration, shareholders are standing against company's representative in evident disparity of means. This is particularly true in the case of minority, retail or individual shareholders. Initiatives to end mandatory arbitration in cases of e.g. sexual harassment claims bill passed in the U.S. House of Representatives in September 2019, on the same basis of disparity of means. It is considered that mandatory arbitration will deprive investors of a mechanism (the lawsuit) that can be helpful especially for minority or retail investors when engaging on specific issues that have affected the shareholder base. Opposition is recommended.

6. Shareholder Resolution: Civil Rights, Equity, Diversity & Inclusion Audit Proposal

Proponent's argument:National Center for Public Policy (NCPPR) request that the Board of Directors commission a racial equity audit analyzing the Company's impacts on civil rights, equity, diversity and inclusion, and the impacts of those issues on the Company's business. The audit may, in the board's discretion, be conducted by an independent third party with input from civil rights organizations, employees, communities in which the Company operates and other stakeholders. A report on the audit, prepared at reasonable cost and omitting confidential or proprietary information, should be publicly disclosed on the Company's website. "Concern stretches across the ideological spectrum. Some have pressured companies to adopt "anti- racism" programs that seek to establish "racial equity," which appears to mean the distribution of pay and authority on the basis of race, sex, orientation and ethnic categories rather than by merit. Where adopted, however, such programs raise significant objection, including concern that the "anti-racist" programs are themselves deeply racist and otherwise discriminatory. Many companies have been found to be sponsoring and promoting overtly and implicitly discriminatory employee-training programs, including Bank of America, American Express, Verizon, Pfizer and CVS. This concern, disagreement and controversy creates massive reputational, legal and financial risk. If the Company is, in the name of racial equity, diversity and inclusion, committing illegal discrimination against employees deemed "non-diverse," then the Company will suffer in myriad ways - all of them both unforgivable and avoidable. In developing the audit and report, the Company should consult civil-rights groups - but it must not compound error with bias by relying only on left-leaning civil-rights groups. Rather, it must consult groups all across the spectrum of viewpoints. This includes right-leaning civil rights groups representing people of color, such as the Woodson Institute and Project 21. It must also include groups that defend the civil rights and liberties of all Americans, not merely the ones that many companies label "diverse." All Americans have civil rights; to behave otherwise is to invite disaster."

Company's response: The board recommends a vote against this proposal. "The Compensation & Benefits Committee considers the Company's progress on its DEI goals and Our Race to Health Equity commitment in its oversight of the design and management of our compensation and benefits programs. The Executive Committee reviews DEI results quarterly, and progress is reported to the Board at least annually. Additionally, the Company's DEI Councils and Advisory Boards, led by senior leaders who are experts in their regions, functions and business segments, work to continuously integrate the DEI strategy into their organizations. As disclosed on page 38 of this Proxy Statement under "Oversight of Human Capital Management," the Company's biennial Our Voice Survey is a significant indicator of employee satisfaction and measures important aspects of the Company's culture, including how employees feel heard, valued and respected, and free to be their authentic selves. The Our Voice Survey includes a specific section on DEI that aims to assess the Company's performance in nurturing an inclusive culture. In 2021, 91% of active employees participated in the survey. The results showed that 90% of employees surveyed believe they are treated with respect, and 86% confirmed their workgroup has a climate in which diverse perspectives are valued. Furthermore, beginning in June 2020, the Company collected weekly employee sentiment data as it navigated the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic and of racial and social injustice. It has been the Company's long-standing philosophy that DEI is everyone's responsibility, and the Company's mission is to advance a culture of inclusion and innovation, build a diverse workforce for the future, and enhance business performance and reputation. "

PIRC analysis:The potential benefits of staff diversity lie in widening the perspectives on human resources brought to bear on decision-making, avoiding too great a similarity of attitude and helping companies understand their workforces as a kaleidoscope of customers, marketplace, supply chain and society as a whole. Disclosure surrounding the company's staff composition allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including the ability to attract and retain key talent. Disclosure of a policy to improve diversity and goals that have been set to meet this policy also reassures shareholders that a diverse board is not just an aspiration but a goal. However, this resolution appears to be filed by a right-wing policy think tanks as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented on the board as well as so-called liberal perspectives. Given the diversity that already exists on company's staff, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

11. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Charitable Contributions

Proponent's argument:National Legal and Policy Center requested that Johnson & Johnson provide a report, published on the company's website and updated semi-annually – and omitting proprietary information and at reasonable cost that discloses, itemizes and quantifies all Company charitable donations, aggregated by recipient name & address each year for contributions that exceed $999 annually. This report shall include: 1.Monetary and non-monetary contributions made to non-profit organizations operating under Section 501(c)(3) and 501(c)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code, and any other public or private charitable organization; 2.Policies and procedures for charitable contributions (both direct and indirect) made with corporate assets; 3.Personnel participating in the decisions to contribute. " Johnson & Johnson's assets belong to its shareholders. The expenditure or distribution of corporate assets, including charitable contributions, should be consistent with shareholder interests. Accordingly, the Company's policies and procedures for charitable contributions should be disclosed to shareholders. Company executives exercise wide discretion over the use of corporate assets for charitable purposes. Absent a system of transparency and accountability for charitable contributions, Company executives may use Company assets for objectives that are not shared by and may be inimical to the interests of the Company and its shareholders. Current disclosure is insufficient to allow the Company's Board, its shareholders, and its current and prospective customers to fully evaluate the charitable use of corporate assets. There is currently no single source providing shareholders the information sought by this resolution."

Company's response: The board recommends a vote against this proposal. "The Health for Humanity Report discloses externally assured annual aggregate contributions made by the Company, including those to the Johnson & Johnson Foundation, a registered charitable organization that reflects the commitment of the Company to advancing better health for all. Funded solely by the Johnson & Johnson Family of Companies, the Foundation currently operates worldwide as Johnson & Johnson Foundation, Inc. (United States) (founded 1953) and Johnson & Johnson Foundation Scotland (founded 2007). These independent entities support both global and in-country partnerships and initiatives, opportunities for employee engagement, and disaster response activities managed by the Global Community Impact team at Johnson & Johnson, including management of the work of the Center for Health Worker Innovation. Extensive details on the charitable contributions made by the Johnson & Johnson Foundation, including through its annual reports, are available on its website at https://www.jnjfoundation.com/. Additionally, Johnson & Johnson Foundation, Inc. (United States), as a private foundation, files with the U.S. Internal Revenue Service annually, Form 990-PF. Form 990-PF is a public document that contains a full list of grants and contributions made in each fiscal year. "

PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company-approved charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship. However, this resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company's customers can donate. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company provides donations to a variety of charities, including those that some shareholders may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be equally acceptable. Given the diversity that already exists among the organisations available for donations, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

3. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

4. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 5.40% of audit fees during the year under review and 6.21% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

17.b. Appoint the Auditors
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 12.50% of audit fees during the year under review and 4.26% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

18. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there are no claw back clauses in place, which is against best practices. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

19.a. Approve Performance Share Matching Plan LTI 2022
It is proposed to approve a new long term incentive plan. The plan will consist of approximately 212 senior executives and other key employees within the Tele2 Group. The participants in LTI 2022 are required to hold Tele2 shares. These shares can either be shares already held or shares purchased on the market in connection with the notification to participate in LTI 2022. The personal investment will thereafter be matched by the company through free-of-charge granting of retention and performance right. LTIPs are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

19.c. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

19.d. Issuance of Shares for Existing Incentive Plan
This is considered a technical resolution for the implementation of plans approved at previous AGMs, which companies have a legal duty to fund. However, this authority refers to the LTIP proposed at this meeting: thus, opposition is recommended based on the concerns identified on the proposed incentive plan.

Vote Cast: Oppose

20. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

19.f. Approve Issue of Shares for Private Placement
The Board proposes that the Annual General Meeting resolves that Tele2 can enter into an equity swap agreement with a third party on terms in accordance with market practice, whereby the third party in its own name shall be entitled to acquire and transfer Class B shares in Tele2 to the participants in LTI 2022. This authority has not been duly justified by the Company. Opposition is therefore recommended.

21b. Shareholder Resolution: In the Event that the Investigation Clarifies that there is Need, Relevant Measures Shall be Taken to Ensure that the Requirements are Fulfilled
Submitted by Martin Green. It is proposed that, in the event that the investigation clarifies that there is need, swift, relevant measures shall be taken to ensure that the requirements are fulfilled. It is considered that any decision regarding directors should be taken by shareholders at a meeting. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

21c. Shareholder Resolution: The Investigation and Any Measures Should be Presented as soon as possible, however Not Later than AGM 2023
Submitted by Martin Green. While it will be welcomed that the report proposed in a previous resolution be presented as soon as practicable, opposition is recommended based on the concerns over the measures to be taken. It is regrettable that these two issues, which are different in nature, be submitted in a bundled item.

MERCIALYS AGM - 28-04-2022

O.4. Elect Eric Le Gentil - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as the CEO from 2013 to 2019. Additionally, the director has a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.6. Re-Elect Élisabeth Cunin - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.8. Approve Compensation Report of Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.10. Approve Compensation of Vincent Ravat, CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to the CEO Mr Vincent Ravat with an advisory vote.The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. O.11. Approve Compensation of Elizabeth Blaise, Vice-CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to the Vice-CEO Mrs Elizabeth Blaise with an advisory vote . The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.13. Approve Remuneration Policy of Vincent Ravat, CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy for the CEO Mr. Vincent Ravat . Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.14. Approve Remuneration Policy of Elizabeth Blaise, Vice-CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy for the deputy-CEO Mrs Élizabeth Blaise. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claws back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

O.17. Renew Appointment of Ernst & Young et Autres as Auditor
EY proposed. Non-audit fees were during the year under review and 8.11% of audit fees were paid on a three-year aggregate basis. There are serious concerns that this level of non-audit fees creates a potential for conflict of interest on the part of the independent auditor. The tenure of the auditor is 23 years, and re-election will further extend the auditors term to 12 years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. Opposition is recommended.

O.19. Approve Company's Climate Transition Plan
The company proposes to approve Company's Climate Transition Plan. The company has pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy.
The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.
The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.
The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting.
However, there does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability. Overall, abstention is recommended.

O.20. Authorize Repurchase of Up to 10 Percent of Issued Share Capital
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% and 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

E.22. Approve Issuance of Equity or Equity-Linked Securities Reserved for Qualified Investors, up to Aggregate Nominal Amount of EUR 9.3 Million
The Board requests authority to approve an authority for the issue of shares by private placement. This authority is not requested in connection with a particular operation and has not been duly justified by the Company. Opposition is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

E.23. Authorize Board to Increase Capital in the Event of Additional Demand
The Board requests authority for using the previous delegation to issue shares in the event of a public offer on the share capital of the Company. This is considered an anti-takeover measure which can be used to entrench under-performing management in the event of a hostile takeover. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

E.24. Authorize Issuance of Equity or Equity-Linked Securities without Preemptive Rights up to Aggregate Nominal Amount of EUR 9.3 Million
Authority is sought to issue shares without pre-emptive rights to an amount of more than 10% of the share capital, which is deemed excessive. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

E.26. Approve Issue of Shares for Employee Saving Plan
Authority for a capital increase for up to 2% of share capital for employees participating to saving plans. The maximum discount applied will be 30% on the market share price. It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. However, the discount to be applied exceeds guidelines (20%). Opposition is therefore recommended.

CIA DE SANEAMENTO DO PARANA AGM - 28-04-2022

1. Approve Financial Statements
Disclosure is acceptable and the report was made available sufficiently before the meeting. However, The Company has not disclosed the fees paid to the auditors for the year under review, and what non-audit services have been provided, if any. Under Brazilian legislation, companies are not required in their financial statements to disclose the amount paid for the External Audit except where additional services have been engaged and the value of such services exceeds 5% of the total amount paid to the external auditor. Nevertheless, it is considered that companies should go beyond minimum regulatory requirements. Not disclosing the fees paid to the auditors is considered to be a serious breach of shareholder accountability, as it is impossible to assess the existence of potential conflicts of interest that would hinder the independence of the auditor. On this ground, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Approve Maximum Remuneration
It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors, Management and Fiscal Council for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.
Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 7.17 million. There were not have been disclosed the variable remuneration applicable for Executives. In addition, there is lack of disclosure with respect of targets and measurable criteria for variable remuneration, which prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Elect the Corporate Auditors: Henrique Domakoski
It is welcomed that the Company has submitted individual proposals for the candidates to the Fiscal Board. The candidate to standing member is not considered to be independent, as considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: Parana State. In terms of good governance, it is considered that all of the candidates to the Fiscal Board should be independent. Opposition is thus recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Elect Board: Slate Election
Proposal to renew the Board with a bundled election. Although slate elections are not considered to be best practice, they are common in this market. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board after the meeting as resulting from this slate of candidates.

3. Approve Employees' Bonuses
It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.
Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Approve Remuneration of Company's Management
It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors, Management and Fiscal Council for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.

Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 27.3 million. 12. Re-elect Maurício Stolle Bähr - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

13. Re-elect Paulo Jorge Tavares Almirante - Vice Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Vice Chair. Not considered to be independent as he is currently Chief Executive Officer of the Generation Business Unit in Europe and Vice Chair of the Executive Committee of ENGIE, the controlling shareholder. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

16. Slate Election for Fiscal Council
It is proposed to appoint members of the Fiscal Council in a bundled election. Carlos Guerreiro Pinto is not considered to be independent as has been on the fiscal council for more than nine years and Waltamir Barreiros has been an employee of the company. In terms of good governance, it is considered that all of the candidates to the Fiscal Council should be independent. It is regrettable that the Company has bundled their election instead of proposing individual candidates. Opposition is recommended.

1. Receive the Annual Report
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

3.H. Re-elect Michael Roney - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As none of the members of the Sustainability Committee is up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's Sustainability programme. As such, given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. In addition, Mr. Roney is also chairing another company within the FTSE 350 index. It is considered that a chair cannot effectively represent two corporate cultures. The possibility of having to commit additional time to the role in times of crisis is ever present. Given this, a Chair should focus his attention onto the only one FTSE 350 Company. Overall opposition is recommended.

4. Ratify PricewaterhouseCoopers as Auditors
PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK and Ireland (as the law is similar in each state) at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary increase for the year under review was 5.1% and in line with the workforce which salary increased by 10.4%. The CEO salary is on the median of the competitors group. Changes in the CEO's total remuneration over the past five years are not considered to be in line with changes in TSR during the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review exceeded guidelines, amounting to 409.9% of salary ( Annual Bonus: 119.9% & LTIP: 290%) for the CEO. The CEO pay ratio with the workforce is at 52:1 it would be preferable the CEO pay ratio to be at 20:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager), we would like to see a public statement:
- addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

14. Amend Investment Policy
The board is seeking shareholder approval for a proposed change in the Investment Policy, by removing the 40% GAV limit when investing in offshore wind farms. At the time of the Company's initial public offering ("IPO") in March 2013 when this investment restrictions was first implemented, the IPO prospectus noted that offshore wind farms investments were a relative new investment class that had only been available in the UK market since 2003. The Directors believe that the offshore wind market has developed since then and continues to mature and a 40% GAV limit on offshore wind farms is no longer required.
Disclosure of rationale for the proposed change in policy is adequate. It is believed that any change in investment mandate can only be recommended where a fully independent management committee is in place, given that investment managers may be incentivised to alter a mandate to reweight or newly include a geography, sector or style by factors beyond the interests of this investment trust. As the management committee is not considered to be fully independent, an abstain vote is recommended.

2. Approve Remuneration Policy

Policy Rating: BCC The company does not provide an Annual Bonus which is welcomed. The RSP award programme will be delivered in shares, vesting in equal tranches over years three to seven with a 12-month retention period following each vesting. RSP awards are subject to satisfactory performance before grant and an underpin assessment after three years to check performance has been sustainable. There are some concerns with the Fixed Share Allowance (FSA) which is granted to Executives for free and without any performance condition attached. Such awards have mainly been created and introduced in the banking industry in order to circumvent the spirit of the CRD IV regulations which introduced a cap on variable pay.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). 3. Approve the Remuneration Report

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO salary is in the median of PIRC’s comparator group. The changes in CEO pay over the last five years are considered in line with Company’s TSR performance over the same period. Also the CEO’s total variable pay stands at approximately 208% (Fixed Pay Allowance 100% and LTI 108%) of her base salary which is more than the recommended 200% of salary and it is against best practice. The grant of an additional fixed share allowance at 100% of her salary is considered unacceptable. The ratio of CEO to average employee has been estimated and is found unacceptable at 55:1. Rating: AB

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 2.65% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.74% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. 20. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.2, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.7,

21. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights in relation to the issuance of Equity Convertible Notes
It is proposed to authorise the Board to grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into Ordinary Shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP 1.5 billion in relation to one or more issues of Equity Convertible Notes (ECNs). This authority shall expire at the conclusion of the next Annual General Meeting of the Company, or 30 June 2023 (whichever is earlier).

The use of ECNs are not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. ECNs are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivises equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilising effect of ECNs on both the ECN price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

28. Approve Climate Strategy
It is proposed to approve the Climate Strategy of the company. The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.
The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.
The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting.
However, there does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.
The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.
The company has committed to stop financing new plans based on fossil fuels, which is welcomed. In addition to cost pressures, demands on companies to act on climate change have grown and oil and gas companies must now prove that they are committed to energy transition in tangible credible ways.
Overall, opposition is recommended.

2. Approve Remuneration Policy
Changes proposed: i) Short-term Incentive plan, introduction of a new categories revenue performance weighting 20%, ii) Long-term Incentive plan, introduction of a new categories revenue growth weighting 15%, iii) Malus and Clawback, updated to reflect market best practice.
Total potential variable pay is at 750% of the salary for the CEO and 590% of the salary for the CFO and is considered excessive. 50% of the bonus is deferred to shares for a three-year period and is in line with best practices. There are no non-financial performance measures attached to the LTIP and so the focus of remuneration policy is not the operational performance of the business as a whole or the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Instead, the focus of the remuneration policy is financial KPIs, which mainly include factors beyond an individual director's control. The performance period is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term. However, Executives are required to hold their vested shares for at least two years, which is welcomed. Malus and Clawback provisions apply for all variable pay.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The salary for the CEO increased by 4.5% and is in line with the workforce, which salary increased by 6%. However, CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitors group which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. Changes in the CEO's total remuneration over the past five years are not in line with changes in TSR during the same period. Awards granted under the Annual Bonus and the LTIP are excessive, amounting to 386.6% (Annual Bonus: 214.3% plus LTIP: 172.3%) of salary for the CEO. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 179:1, and significantly exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1.

Approval sought to make donations to political organizations and incur political expenditure not exceeding GBP100,000 in total. The Company did not make any political donations to European Union (EU) political organizations or incur EU political expenditure and has no intention either now or in the future of doing so. However, it is noted that RAI Companies reported political contributions totalling GBP 4,339,371 (USD 5,970,975) for the full year 2021 to US political organizations, non-federal-level political party committees and to campaign committees of various non-federal candidates, in accordance with their contributions programme. Donations to political organizations are not acceptable and are contrary to best practice. In addition, the resolution on the 2021 Annual General Meeting received significant opposition of 10.8% of the votes and the company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Overall, an oppose vote is recommended.

HEXAGON COMPOSITES ASA AGM - 28-04-2022

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Elect Leif Arne Langoy to the Nomination Committee
The Board of Directors seeks authority to approve the guidelines for the Nomination Committee. The guidelines include the standard set of tasks and rules of procedure for the Nomination Committee. Members should be independent from the management. Although in line with the recommendation of the Corporate Governance Code, in terms of best practice it is considered that the majority of the members of the Committee should be independent also from major shareholders. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

CRH PLC AGM - 28-04-2022

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide,exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). The 'binding' pay policy vote has not been effective. The disappointment with the policy vote comes across in the levels of dissenting votes on remuneration reports, which disclose outcomes under previously agreed policies. When there are contentious circumstances with executives leaving the instrument that really matters is the service contract. As such, the concept of alignment with shareholders' for pay purposes is a fallacy, because the risk and responsibilities are different. Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The company has disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. While variable pay is considered to be acceptable, overall pay, including salary, is considered to be excessive. The salary of the highest paid director is in the upper quartile of the peer group, and the CEO employee pay ratio is considered to be excessive. An acceptable CEO pay ratio is considered to be les than 20:1. Additionally, the overall change in remuneration is not considered to be in line with TSR growth over the same period. 5. Authorize Issuance of Convertible Bonds without Preemptive Rights
It is proposed to issue non-convertible bonds for private placement. Although there is no indication that these instruments will be convertible into shares, and therefore there is no risk of unexpected dilution of existing shareholders, it is considered that authorities for private placement should be duly justified, namely regarding the rationale and the beneficiary of the placement. In lack of it, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Authorise the Board to Waive Pre-emptive Rights
It is proposed to exclude pre-emption rights on shares issued under the previous resolution at this meeting. The corresponding authority for issuing shares without pre-emptive rights, requested in a previous proposal, exceeds guidelines (10%). Opposition is thus recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Approve Capital Raising: Issuance of Convertible Bonds
As a consequence of the transaction proposed on this agenda, it is proposed to increase the share capital by 10% for 18 months and amend the articles accordingly. Given that opposition was recommended on the corresponding transaction, opposition is maintained on this item as well.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 18 months. Proposed authorization that companies controlled by the Company can purchase up to 10% of the Company's share capital over the next 18 months, under the terms of number 2 of Article 325-B of the Company Law.
Cross ownership has some positive features, however it is considered that it would stagnate the use of capital by preventing reallocation. As a result, the Company may be less able to respond to downturns in the short term. Cross share ownership can also serve to entrench underperforming management and can lead to potential conflicts of interest. Oppositions is recommended.

THE WEIR GROUP PLC AGM - 28-04-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is on the upper quartile (top 25%) in PIRC's comparator group, which raises concerns for excessiveness. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over the last five years is not aligned to the change in TSR over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review is not excessive at 155% of salary for the CEO. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 32:1; the ratio should not exceed 20:1. Rating: AC
Policy rating: CDC Overall disclosure is satisfactory. Performance metrics for the annual bonus Group are PBTA (40%), cash conversion (20%), strategic measures (20%) and ESG (20%). The shareholding guidelines are now: 400% of salary for the CEO; 300% of salary for the CFO.
There are some concerns regarding the policy. The amount deferred under the annual bonus is not considered adequate. In addition, performance conditions for the annual bonus do not operate interdependently. Maximum award size for the Restricted Share awards is 125% for the CEO and 100% for the CFO. To bring into line with market practice, from 2022, vesting is in full after year 3 with a subsequent two-year holding period so shares fully released after year 5. With respect to contracts, the Remuneration Committee may exercise its discretion to apply a different pro-rata methodology or to dis-apply time pro-rating completely for outstanding share awards on termination. Such termination provisions can therefore be subject to upside discretion, which can lead to excessive payments. On a change of control, the Committee can decide to dis-apply performance conditions and time pro-rating, which is inappropriate. There appear to be clawback over all the variable remuneration.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

15. Reappoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 13.64% of audit fees during the year under review and 7.61% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

THE GOLDMAN SACHS GROUP INC. AGM - 28-04-2022

4. Shareholder Resolution: Charitable Giving Reporting
Proponent's argument:National Center for Public Policy Research requested the Company to list the recipients of corporate charitable contributions of $5,000 or more on the company website, along with the material limitations, if any, placed on the restrictions, and/or the monitoring of the contributions and its uses, if any, that the Company undertakes. "Current disclosure is insufficient to allow the Company's Board and shareholders to evaluate the proper use of corporate assets by outside organizations and how those assets should be used, especially for controversial causes."
Company's response: The board recommends a vote against this proposal. " We already provide significant public information on our core community engagement and philanthropic and educational initiatives on our website (www.gs.com, "Our Commitments"), a summary of which is set forth below, as well as through our annual Sustainability Report. These initiatives, together with our employee matching gift program, represent the vast majority of our charitable giving. We also make public filings with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) for GS Gives and the Goldman Sachs Foundation, which entities fund the significant majority of our philanthropic activities; these filings are publicly available on the IRS website (www.irs.gov/charities-and-nonprofits). [...] In conducting our community engagement and carrying out our philanthropic and educational initiatives, we are guided by five key principles. We do not impose additional restrictions on our charitable giving efforts beyond the application of these principles, and we provide significant public information about our charitable giving, including on gs.com, as well as regular reporting to our Public Responsibilities Committee."

PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company-approved charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship. However, this resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company's customers can donate. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company provides donations to a variety of charities, including those that some shareholders may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be equally acceptable. Given the diversity that already exists among the organisations available for donations, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

Disclosure is acceptable and the report was made available sufficiently before the meeting. However, The Company has not disclosed the fees paid to the auditors for the year under review, and what non-audit services have been provided, if any. Under Brazilian legislation, companies are not required in their financial statements to disclose the amount paid for the External Audit except where additional services have been engaged and the value of such services exceeds 5% of the total amount paid to the external auditor. Nevertheless, it is considered that companies should go beyond minimum regulatory requirements. Not disclosing the fees paid to the auditors is considered to be a serious breach of shareholder accountability, as it is impossible to assess the existence of potential conflicts of interest that would hinder the independence of the auditor. On this ground, opposition is recommended.

It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors, Management and Fiscal Council for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.

Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 20 million. Variable remuneration for executives would correspond to up to 89.5% of the fixed pay. There is lack of disclosure with respect of targets and measurable criteria for variable remuneration, which prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment. Abstention is recommended.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO's salary is in line with the rest of the Company, as the CEO did not get a salary increase while the salaries for UK employees increased by 2%. The CEO's salary is in the median of the Company's comparator group. The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Total variable pay is excessive, as annual bonus awards (1522.4%) and LTIP (63.8%) amounted to 1586.2% of salary. Such a high level of variable pay is inappropriate, especially given that the recommended limit for variable pay is 200% of pay. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is approximately 44:1 which is considered unacceptable.

VI. Appoint the Auditors
Deloitte proposed. An adequate break-down of the nature of non-audit fees is not provided, which makes the assessment of auditor's independence based on the non-audit fee impossible. The date of appointment of the auditor is not disclosed, meaning that there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. An oppose vote is recommended.

VII. Elect Board: Slate Election
Bundled proposal to elect directors and approve their compensation. At this time, neither candidates nor their proposed compensation have been disclosed. Although it is common practice in this market, it is considered that shareholders should be given sufficient information prior to the meeting and should not support director elections where insufficient information has been released. Abstention is recommended.

No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. ITV PLC AGM - 28-04-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of Executive and Non-Executive Director remuneration are adequately disclosed. Next year's salaries and fees for directors have been disclosed. CEO salary is in line with workforce. The CEO's salary is considered to be in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group, which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. Changes in CEO pay under the last five years are not considered in line with changes in TSR during the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review is 254.7% of the salary and considered excessive. The ratio of CEO to average employee pay is 37:1, which is not considered appropriate. PIRC consider adequate a ratio up to 20:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

15. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees were paid for the year under review and Non-Audit fees represents 1.49% of Audit fees on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

20. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company. Mr. Peter Coates has served on the Board as non-Executive Director since January 2014. Previously Mr. Coates was Executive Director of the Company from June to December 2013 and Non-Executive Director of the Company from April 2011 to May 2013. Also not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is sufficient independent representation on the Board. However, as the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability program, and given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

13. Climate Progress Report

There does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focused for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.
The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.
The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.
The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.
The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. However there are concerns these targets relate to intensity, and not unadjusted real terms carbon reduction.
The company has committed to scope 3 emission reduction targets that would reduce emissions by at least 50% by 2050, which is considered the minimum target in order to stay on track with a global 2C scenario, according to data from the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC). It would be nevertheless be preferred and welcomed for the company to publish more ambitious targets (such as reduction of 85% of scope 3 emissions).
There are concerns that the targets are based on reductions relative to "intensity" rather than reductions in absolute terms. Additionally, there are concerns raised that these targets may not be met owing to the company's apparently poor recent record for environmental policy governance and implementation. As there does not appear to be sufficient disclosure relating to the improvement of sustainability governance, opposition is recommended.

Disclosure: All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed.
Balance: The level of the CEO salary is in the upper quartile of its comparator group which is considered excessive. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is not considered to be line as the change in CEO total pay over five years exceeds the change in TSR over the same period. Additionally, it is noted that the ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not considered acceptable, at 43:1.

4. Re-elect Ron Mobed - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As none of the members of the Sustainability Committee is up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's Sustainability programme. As such, given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, In addition, Mr. Mobed is Chair of the Nomination Committee, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Furthermore, at this time, the report of the progresses made on the recommendations of the Parker report (2016), which seeks to improve the ethnic and cultural diversity of UK boards, is not considered to be sufficient. 5. Ratification of PwC as U.S. Auditor

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.82% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.11% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB

Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. 8. Approve the Incentive Award Plan
It is proposed to approve the company's 2022 Incentive Award Plan. Under the plan employees, consultants and directors of the company and its subsidiaries are eligible to receive awards. The aggregate number of Ordinary Shares which may be issued or transferred pursuant to awards under the 2022 Plan is equal to the sum of (i) 8,900,000; (ii) the number of our Ordinary Shares which remain available for grant under the Current Plan as of the effective date of the 2022 Plan; and (iii) any Ordinary Shares underlying outstanding awards under the Current Plan as of the effective date of the 2022 Plan. The maximum number of incentive stock options that may be granted under the 2022 Plan is 12,400,000. Any Ordinary Shares distributed pursuant to an award may consist, in whole or in part, of authorized and unissued Ordinary Shares, treasury Ordinary Shares or Ordinary Shares purchased on the open market. After the effective date of the 2022 Plan, no awards may be granted under the Current Plan. The 2022 Plan provides for the grant of stock options, including incentive stock options, or ISOs, and nonqualified stock options, or NSOs, restricted stock, dividend equivalents, stock payments, restricted stock units, or RSUs, other incentive awards, stock appreciation rights, or SARs, and cash awards. Vesting conditions determined by the plan administrator may apply to each award and may include continued service, performance and/or other conditions. Awards will vest no earlier than the first anniversary of the grant date, except for Substitute Awards, shares delivered in lieu of fully vested cash awards, awards to non-employee directors that vest on the earlier of the one year anniversary of the grant date or the next annual meeting of shareholders which is at least 50 weeks after the immediately preceding year's annual meeting, or awards that result in the issuance of an aggregate of up to 5% of the Ordinary Shares available for grant as of the effective date of the 2022 Plan. All awards will be subject to the Company's current claw-back policy. The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.

LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

MERCEDES-BENZ GROUP AG AGM - 29-04-2022

3. Approve Discharge of Management Board for Fiscal Year 2021
Standard resolution. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended.

5.1. Ratify KPMG AG as Auditors for Fiscal Year 2022
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 7.50% of audit fees during the year under review and 10.45% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

HSBC HOLDINGS PLC AGM - 29-04-2022

1. Accept Financial Statements and Statutory Reports
Strategic report meets guidelines. Adequate employment and environmental policies are in place and relevant, up-to-date, quantified, environmental reporting is disclosed. The Company also disclosed the proportion of women on the Board, in Executive Management positions and within the whole organisation. However, on 21 September 2020, HSBC was named as one of the banks that allegedly allowed international criminals to launder money or avoid sanction, according to documents leaked to the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists (ICIJ).US Financial Crimes Investigation Network (FinCEN) files, obtained from the US Treasury counter money laundering division, included over 2,100 suspicious activity reports (SARs) covering more than GBP 1.5 trillion between 1999 and 2017. HSBC has allegedly allowed fraudsters to move millions of dollars of stolen money around the world, even after it learned from US investigators the scheme was a scam.
All of the directors currently on the board have joined on or after the end of the alleged scheme, and as such they cannot be considered accountable in regards to their re-election. Opposition is therefore recommended against the annual report.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.3, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 1.3,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the single figure table are adequately disclosed. The change in base salary of the CEO is considered to be in line with the change in the salary of the workforce. The CEO's salary is considered in the median of a peer comparator group. The changes in CEO pay over the last five years is in line with the changes in Company's TSR performance over the same period. The CEO's realised variable pay which is inclusive of the annual incentive and the fixed pay allowance stands at

245% of his base salary which is in line with best practice. No LTI vested during the year. The ratio of CEO to average employee pay is considered unacceptable as it exceeds 20:1. Rating: AB
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

5. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.64% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

7. Authorise UK Political Donations and Expenditure

The proposed authority is subject to an overall aggregate limit on political donations and expenditure of GBP 200,000. The Company did not make any political donations or incur any political expenditure and has no intention either now or in the future of doing so. However, the aggregate total amount exceeds recommended limits. An abstain vote is recommended.

10. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

15. Authorise Issue of Equity without Pre-emptive Rights in Relation to Contingent Convertible Securities

This resolution will give the Directors authority to allot CCSs, or shares issued upon conversion or exchange of CCSs, without the need to first offer them to existing shareholders. This will allow the Directors greater flexibility to manage the Company's capital in the most efficient and economical way for the benefit of shareholders. If passed, Resolution 15 will authorise the Directors to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into shares in the Company on a non-pre-emptive basis up to an aggregate nominal amount of USD 2,021,399,449 representing approximately 20% of the Company's issued share capital. In line with the voting recommendation on resolution 14, an oppose vote is recommended.

14. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to Contingent Convertible Securities
Authority to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of USD 2,021,399,449, representing approximately 20% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of CCSs. CCSs are debt securities which convert into ordinary shares in certain prescribed circumstances. They benefit from a specific regulatory capital treatment under European Union legislation. This authority is in addition to resolution 16 and will expire at next AGM. The Company explains that this resolution is a recurring resolution at its AGM and will be used to comply or maintain compliance with regulatory capital requirements or targets applicable to the Group. The terms of HSBC's existing CCSs have received regulatory approval from the Prudential Regulation Authority (PRA). The dilution involved for those shareholders not able to subscribe may significantly decrease their interest in the Bank. Dis-applying pre-emption rights may result in excessive dilution.
The use of CCSs are not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CCSs are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivises equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

11. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

1.1. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The company has disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. However, it is considered inappropriate that variable pay will be paid to the executives, owing to concerns during the year under review relating to allegations of corruption in Mozambique, which has caused significant reputational damage to the company. For this reason, opposition is recommended.

It is proposed to approve the annual incentives for the previous year for executives, corresponding to CHF 8.6 million. Annual incentives appear to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. 3. Approve 2022-2027 Employee Share Ownership Plan
It is proposed to approve a stock option plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. There seem to be no performance criteria besides employment and tenure.
Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries and the plan is not open to all employees under the same conditions. The number of Shares to be allotted to each Beneficiary has been determined uniformly for each category of Beneficiaries, providing that: employees in managerial positions, including the Chief Executive Officer/General Manager and Executives with Strategic Responsibilities - since the variable remuneration of these latter ones is already paid in Company shares to a large extent and as it is subject to performance conditions measured over a three-year period – will be allotted a number of Shares equal to 1 for each Allotment Cycle and for each Matching Cycle; and employees in staff positions will be allotted a number of Shares equal to 250 for each Allotment Cycle and Matching Cycle. It is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clearly performance criteria and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

5. Approve Climate Transition Plan
The infrastructure sector is considered to be pivotal to achieving the Paris Agreement and the Sustainable Development Goals. A report published in October 2021 titled "Infrastructure for climate action" has been published by UNOPS, UNEP and the University of Oxford, and among its findings, it highlights that infrastructure is responsible for 79% of all greenhouse gas emissions, as well as 88% of all adaptation costs. More sustainable design and construction techniques will help offset the carbon impact of project construction, lowering carbon intensity in the global energy mix.
The company has pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy. The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured. The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.

However, there does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability. On balance, abstention is recommended.

THE BOEING COMPANY AGM - 29-04-2022

6. Shareholder Resolution: Additional Report on Charitable Contributions

Proponent's argument:Shareholders request that The Boeing Company provide a report, published on the company's website and updated semi-annually – and omitting proprietary information and at reasonable cost – that discloses, itemizes and quantifies all Company charitable donations, aggregated by recipient name & address each year for contributions that exceed $999 annually. This report shall include: 1. Monetary and non-monetary contributions made to non-profit organizations operating under Section 501(c)(3) and 501(c)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code, and any other public or private charitable organization; 2. Policies and procedures for charitable contributions (both direct and indirect) made with corporate assets; 3. Personnel participating in the decisions to contribute. "Company executives exercise wide discretion over the use of corporate assets for charitable purposes. Absent a system of transparency and accountability for charitable contributions, Company executives may use Company assets for objectives that are not shared by and may be inimical to the interests of the Company and its shareholders. Current disclosure is insufficient to allow the Company's Board, its shareholders, and its current and prospective customers to fully evaluate the charitable use of corporate assets. There is currently no single source providing shareholders the information sought by this resolution."
Company's response: The board recommends a vote against this resolution. "We prepare an annual Global Engagement Portfolio on our corporate citizenship activities in the United States and internationally, available in print and through our website's comprehensive Community Engagement page [...] Additional detailed information concerning the Company's charitable contribution programs, such as that requested by this proposal, can be found on the Community Engagement page of the Company's website. These disclosures include a significant amount of information about Boeing's community engagement, including extensive disclosures specific to each of the proposal's three elements, the total amount of contributions, the types of organizations or services eligible for grants and country/state-specific grant application procedures and guidelines. "
PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company-approved charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship. However, this resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company's customers can donate. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company provides donations to a variety of charities, including those that some shareholders may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be equally acceptable. Given the diversity that already exists among the organisations available for donations, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

IGUATEMI SA AGM - 29-04-2022

1. Approve Financial Statements

Disclosure is acceptable and the report was made available sufficiently before the meeting. However, The Company has not disclosed the fees paid to the auditors for the year under review, and what non-audit services have been provided, if any. Under Brazilian legislation, companies are not required in their financial statements to disclose the amount paid for the External Audit except where additional services have been engaged and the value of such services exceeds 5% of the total amount paid to the external auditor. Nevertheless, it is considered that companies should go beyond minimum regulatory requirements. Not disclosing the fees paid to the auditors is considered to be a serious breach of shareholder accountability, as it is impossible to assess the existence of potential conflicts of interest that would hinder the independence of the auditor. On this ground, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Approve Maximum Remuneration

It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors, Management and Fiscal Council for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.
Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 19.9 million. Variable remuneration for executives would correspond to up to 99.6% of the fixed pay. There is lack of disclosure with respect of targets and measurable criteria for variable remuneration, which prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment. Abstention is recommended.

A1.. Approve Financial Statements

Disclosure is acceptable and the report was made available sufficiently before the meeting. However, The Company has not disclosed the fees paid to the auditors for the year under review, and what non-audit services have been provided, if any. Under Brazilian legislation, companies are not required in their financial statements to disclose the amount paid for the External Audit except where additional services have been engaged and the value of such services exceeds 5% of the total amount paid to the external auditor. Nevertheless, it is considered that companies should go beyond minimum regulatory requirements. Not disclosing the fees paid to the auditors is considered to be a serious breach of shareholder accountability, as it is impossible to assess the existence of potential conflicts of interest that would hinder the independence of the auditor. On this ground, opposition is recommended.

A5.. Slate Election for Board of Statutory Auditors
It is proposed to appoint members of the Fiscal Council in a bundled election. Although these are not considered to be best practice, they are usual practice in this market. Candidate Marcelo Curti is not considered to be independent as owing to a tenure of over nine years on the Fiscal Council board. In terms of good governance, it is considered that all of the candidates to the Fiscal Council should be independent. It is regrettable that the Company has bundled their election instead of proposing individual candidates. Opposition is recommended.

A6.. Approve Remuneration of Company's Management and Fiscal Council
It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors, Management and Fiscal Council for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.
Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 88,1 million. Variable remuneration for executives would correspond to up to 1017% of the fixed pay, which is deemed excessive. In addition, there is lack of disclosure with respect of targets and measurable criteria for variable remuneration, which prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

RECORDATI SPA AGM - 29-04-2022

1a. Accept Financial Statements and Statutory Reports
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability governance, policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns and it is recommended to oppose this resolution.

2c. Shareholder Proposal Submitted by Rossini Sarl: Elect Board
This list was presented by the major shareholder. Although slate elections are not considered to be best practice, they are common in this market. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board after the meeting as resulting from this slate of candidates.

2e. Deliberations Pursuant to Article 2390 of Civil Code Re: Decisions Inherent to Authorization of Board Members to Assume Positions in Competing Companies
With this resolution, the board is seeking authority that members and other executives of the company may participate in boards and/or in the managements of competing companies . This authority is not sought for defined appointments. As a consequence, if approved, this authority may lead to potential time commitment concerns. In addition, an excessive number positions within the same company may develop excessive familiarity and trust, which would eventually hinder an effective independent oversight by directors (while there is already insufficient independent representation on the board). On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

3a. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy with a binding vote. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on potential excessive variable remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 91.2, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 8.4,

3b. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

2. Approve Discharge of Management Board for Fiscal Year 2021
Standard proposal. Although no wrongdoing has been identified, the company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. There are additional concerns with regards to the significant financial and reputational damages suffered as result of the company's 2018 acquisition of Monsanto and the subsequent glyphosate-related settlements recorded during 2020 which exceed USD10 billion. Furthermore on 27 July 2021, a Washington state jury decided that Bayer AG's Monsanto unit must pay USD 185 million to three teachers who alleged that toxic chemicals caused them brain damage. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended.

TRAVIS PERKINS PLC AGM - 29-04-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The highest paid director salary is in line with the workforce. The highest paid director salary is at the median quartile of the competitors group. The changes in the highest paid director pay over the last five years are not considered in line with the Company's TSR performance over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review for the highest paid director was excessive, amounting to 373% of salary (Annual Bonus: 175% & LTIP awards: 298%). The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable. Rating: AC
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of ‘alignment’ which can actually create a competing set of director ‘duties’.

12. Appoint the Auditors

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 42.31% of audit fees during the year under review and 35.81% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn’t an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn’t merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC’s view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an ’expectations gap’ does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

Independent Non-Executive Director and Designated non-executive director for workforce engagement. It would be preferred that companies appoint directors from the workforce rather than designate a non-executive director (NED). Support will be recommended for the election or re-election of designated NEDs provided that no significant employment relations issues have been identified.

In addition, Ms. Coutu is Chair of the remuneration committee. There are serious concerns regarding the implementation of remuneration at the company and it is considered that chair of the remuneration committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election. 13. Approve the Remuneration Report

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce, it is noted that the CEO salary is not eligible to increase until 2023. However, the CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of the Company's comparator group, which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The changes in CEO total pay over the last five years are not commensurate with the changes in Company's TSR performance over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review was 126% of the salary constituted only for the Annual Bonus, no LTIP award vested, however, the company awarded a Co-investment award to the CEO of 296.6% of the salary so the overall variable pay is 422.6% of the salary and is considered excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 41:1. PIRC consider adequate a ratio up to 20:1.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). 7. Elect Jose Luciano Duarte Penido as Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: BNDESPar. He was Chair of Fibria, controlled by BNDES. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Elect Fernando Jorge Buso Gomes as Vice Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Vice Chair. Not considered to be independent as he is Chief Executive Officer of Bradespar, a significant shareholder. He was director on the Board of Valepar, the previous controlling holding. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9.1. Slate Election for Board of Statutory Auditors: Marcelo Amaral Moraes / Marcus Vinícius Dias Severini (alternate)
It is proposed to appoint members of the Fiscal Council in a bundled election: Marcelo Amaral Moraes as standing member, Marcus Vinícius Dias Severini as secondary member. In terms of good governance, it is considered that all of the candidates to the Fiscal Board should be independent. It is regrettable that the Company has bundled their election instead of seeking support for individual candidates. Marcelo Amaral Moraes is not considered independent, owing to a tenure on the Fiscal Council of more than nine years. It is believed that there is a risk that over time the familiarity of a Fiscal Council member with the Company may result in excessive trust. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9.2. Elect the Corporate Auditors: Gueitiro Matsuo Genso
It is welcomed that the Company has submitted individual proposals for the candidates to the Fiscal Board. The candidate to standing member is not considered to be independent, as considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: PREVI. In terms of good governance, it is considered that all of the candidates to the Fiscal Board should be independent. Opposition is thus recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Approve Maximum Remuneration
It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors, Management and Fiscal Council for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.
Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 258,4 million. Variable remuneration for executives would correspond to up to 639.9% of the fixed pay, which is deemed excessive. In addition, there is lack of disclosure with respect of targets and measurable criteria for variable remuneration, which prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11. Ratification of Remuneration for Fiscal Year 2021
It is proposed to re-approve the remuneration of management, approved at the last AGM, which has been exceeded during the year and as such needs to be ratified by shareholders as a special business item. The company has disclosed fully the amount that was paid out, in addition to the cap approved at the previous meeting. However, fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements are not disclosed, as well as how the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

GOLDEN AGRI RESOURCES LTD AGM - 29-04-2022

11. Appoint the Auditors
Moore Stephens LLP proposed. Non-audit fees represented 1.69% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.00% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

12. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
The authority is limited to 50% of the share capital on a pro-rata basis and no more than 15% can be issued without pre-emptive rights. The mandate expires at the next Annual General Meeting. However, a limit exceeding 10% of shares issued without pre-emptive rights is deemed unacceptable. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14. Renewal of Interested Person Transactions Mandate
Approval is sought for the Interested Person Transaction (IPT Mandate) to facilitate transactions in the normal course of business among the Company, its subsidiaries or affiliate companies, directors, chief executive officer(s), controlling shareholders of the Company and their respective associates and relatives. Whilst it is stated that procedures are in place to ensure the transactions are conducted at arm's length basis, such general authorities are not supported, as they do not allow thorough assessment of proposals from shareholders. Specific details relating to specific transactions should be provided to shareholders for thorough assessment.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Elect Franky Oesman Widjaja - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

HEXAGON AB AGM - 29-04-2022

10.8. Re-Elect Patrick Soderlund - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. There are concerns over the director's potential time commitments, and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year.

10.11. Re-Elect Gun Nilsson as Board Chair
Non- Executive Chair. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

12. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.4, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.6,

13. Approve Performance Share Program 2022/20225 for Key Employees
The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares or rights to shares. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.2, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.8,

1.1. Approve Financial Statements
Disclosure is adequate. The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and have been audited and certified. However, serious governance concerns have been identified, namely: members of the controlling shareholder and founding family are present on the audit committee and (as executive members) on the remuneration and nomination committee. This raises serious concerns over the ability to effectively verify the accounts and the remuneration report of the company. Although no wrongdoing has been identified, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

2.1. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

4.5. Deliberations Pursuant to Article 2390 of Civil Code Re: Decisions Inherent to Authorization of Board Members to Assume Positions in Competing Companies
With this resolution, the board is seeking authority that members and other executives of the company may participate in boards and/or in the managements of competing companies . This authority is not sought for defined appointments. As a consequence, if approved, this authority may lead to potential time commitment concerns. In addition, an excessive number positions within the same company may develop excessive familiarity and trust, which would eventually hinder an effective independent oversight by directors (while there is already insufficient independent representation on the board). On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

SMURFIT KAPPA GROUP PLC AGM - 29-04-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The change in the CEO's salary is in line with the rest of the Company, as the CEO's salary do not increased for the year under review, while employee salaries rose by 2%. However, the CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of the Company's comparator group. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review was considered to be excessive at approximately 437.7% of salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 75:1, it is recommended that the ratio does not exceed 20:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

4.A. Re-elect Irial Finan - Chair (Non Executive)
Chair. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years on the Board. In addition, it is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. 8. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is not up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's Sustainability programme. As such, given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

6. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 79.8, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 20.1,

7. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.3, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 2.7,

10. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.0, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.0,

11. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% and 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.7, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.3,

14. Amend Performance Share Plan
It is proposed to amend the company's 2017 Performance Share Plan (the Plan). As part of its review on the remuneration policy the company's Remuneration Committee considered how to continue to appropriately incentivise the executive directors, acknowledging their increased roles, and driving continued focus on long-term sustainable growth and shareholder alignment. As a result, it is proposed to increase this limit under the Plan to 300% (from 200%) of annual regular remuneration. The Remuneration Committee considers 300% of base salary an appropriate market ceiling for the Kingspan executive directors over the coming four years, particularly noting the exceptional growth of the business over the period since the last policy review. The proposed amendment is to increase the PSP maximum opportunity to 300% of the base salary, this is considered excessive as the potential variable pay could reach 450% of the salary. In addition, the proposed increased is higher than 200% which is the recommended limit for all the variable pay (Annual Bonus plus LTIP award). LTIPs are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature. Overall opposition is recommended.

INTERPUMP GROUP SPA AGM - 29-04-2022

O.4. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.6. Approve Incentive Plan 2022-2024
The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted stock options, each of which will give right to one share. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure. LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.7. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.8. Elect Claudio Berretti - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: Tamburi Investment Partners S.p.A. via IPG Holding. There is sufficient independent representation on the Board. However, there are concerns over the director's potential aggregate time commitments.

COMPANHIA SIDERURGICA NACIONAL AGM - 29-04-2022

1. Approve Financial Statements
Disclosure is acceptable and the report was made available sufficiently before the meeting. However, The Company has not disclosed the fees paid to the auditors for the year under review, and what non-audit services have been provided, if any. Under Brazilian legislation, companies are not required in their financial statements to disclose the amount paid for the External Audit except where additional services have been engaged and the value of such services exceeds 5% of the total amount paid to the external auditor. Nevertheless, it is considered that companies should go beyond minimum regulatory requirements. Not disclosing the fees paid to the auditors is considered to be a serious breach of shareholder accountability, as it is impossible to assess the existence of potential conflicts of interest that would hinder the independence of the auditor. On this ground, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Approve Maximum Remuneration
It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors, Management and Fiscal Council for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.
Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 89,8 million. Variable remuneration for executives would correspond to up to 373% of the fixed pay, which is deemed excessive. In addition, there is lack of disclosure with respect of targets and measurable criteria for variable remuneration, which prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

HONG LEONG FINANCE LTD AGM - 29-04-2022

4a. Elect Kevin Hangchi - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as he is a previous employee of the Group. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4b. Elect Peter Chay Fook Yuen - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director. Not considered to be independent, as this director is considered to be in a material connection with the current auditor: KPMG LLP, he was Deputy Managing Partner, as from 2010 to September 2017. It is considered that the senior independent director should be considered independent, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Appoint the Auditors
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 41.99% of audit fees during the year under review and 25.91% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. Therefore opposition is recommended.

5. Accept Report on Share Repurchase; Set Maximum Amount of Share Repurchase Reserve
It is proposed to fix the maximum amount available to directors, for the purpose of buying shares on the market. Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. These resolutions will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

ASTRAZENECA PLC AGM - 29-04-2022

3. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 13.23% of audit fees during the year under review and 6.73% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

5.a. Re-elect Leif Johansson - Chair (Non Executive)
Chair. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years on the Board. In addition, it is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Oppose vote is therefore recommended.

5.f. Re-elect Michel Demaré - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Remuneration Committee. There are serious concerns regarding the implementation of remuneration at the company and it is considered that chair of the remuneration committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

5.g. Re-elect Deborah DiSanzo - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. It is noted that in the 2021 Annual General Meeting Ms. DiSanzo received significant opposition in its re-election of 13.95% of the votes. The company did not disclose information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore, abstention is recommended.

5.m. Re-elect Marcus Wallenberg - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director serves in the Board for more than none years. In addition, Mr. Wallenberg is a Non-Executive Director and the former CEO of Investor AB, which has a 3.33% interest in the issued share capital of the Company. There is sufficient independent representation on the Board. However, it is noted that Mr. Wallenberg received significant opposition in his re-election on the 2021 Annual General Meeting of 13.77% of the votes and the company did not disclosed informations as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore, abstention is recommended.

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the single total remuneration are adequately disclosed. The CEO's salary is in line with the rest of the Company as the CEO's salary increased for the year under review 3% while average employee pay rose by 4.9%. However, the CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of the Company's comparator group, which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. PSP awards vested during the year under review are excessive, amounting to 686.5% of salary for the CEO. In addition, total variable pay for the year under review is highly excessive, amounting to 924% of salary for the CEO. it is recommended that total variable pay is limited to 200% of salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 48:1, it is recommended that the ratio does not exceed 20:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

7. Approve Political Donations
The proposed authority is subject to an overall aggregate limit on political donations and expenditure of USD 250,000( GBP 179,111). In 2021, the Group's US legal entities made contributions amounting in aggregate to USD 1,142,200 (2020: USD 1,016,550) to national political organizations, state-level political party committees and to campaign committees of various state candidates. No corporate donations were made at the federal level and all contributions were made only where allowed by US federal and state law. Although the aggregate limit sought is within acceptable limits, the company has made donations which are deemed to be political during the year. This raises concerns about the potential donation which could be made by the Company under this authority. An oppose vote is recommended.

8. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights
The authority is limited to 33% of the Company's issued share capital and expires at the next AGM. It is noted that the company in the 2021 Annual general Meeting received significant opposition for the resolution to issue shares with pre-emptive rights of 14.84% of the votes. The company did not disclosed informations as to how address the issue with its shareholders, therefore abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 91.8, Abstain: 0.9, Oppose/Withhold: 7.2,

10. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.1, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 2.3,

11. Authorise Share Repurchase
The authority is limited to 10% of the Company's issued share capital and will expire at the next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

12. Meeting Notification-related Proposal
It is proposed that a general meeting of the Company other than an annual general meeting may be called on not less than 14 clear days' notice.
It is considered that all companies should aim to provide at least 20 working days notice for general meetings in order to give shareholders sufficient time to consider what are often complex issues. However, the proposed change is permissible by the Companies Act. It is noted that in the 2021 Annual general Meeting the resolution received significant opposition of 11.67% of the votes and the company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore, abstention is recommended.

3. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 15.11% of audit fees during the year under review and 17.94% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the remuneration report. The CEO's total variable remuneration is below the recommended threshold of 200% of the salary which is welcomed. It is noted there are no non-financial performance measures attached to the LTI plans and so the focus is not the operational performance of the business as a whole or the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Instead, the focus of the remuneration structure is financial KPIs' which mainly include factors beyond an individual directors' control. The vesting period is four years which is not considered to be sufficiently long-term. A five year performance period is considered best practice. Claw back provisions apply. However, it is noted the board has discretion to settle the value of vesting SARs in cash. This level of upside discretion is not considered appropriate. On aggregate, an oppose vote is recommended.

4. Say on Climate
There does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.
The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.
The company has not provided a timeline for implementation of its climate strategy. This raises concern over the effectivenness of measuring and implementing progress on emission reductions and implementation of an effective transition plan.
While the company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 2.0 degrees, setting targets in line with changes of 1.5 degrees or lower would be considered to be in line with a more resilient scenario.
The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 but this commitment only extends to part of its Scope 1, Scope 2 and Scope 3 emissions. This is considered to be inconsistent with an adequate commitment to a full energy transition, as shareholders are unable to make an informed assessment on the material efforts to reduce emissions, and increase the resilience of the company in the long term.

The company has said it will be carbon neutral by 2050 and has extended this commitment to its Scope 1, Scope 2 and Scope 3 emissions. However, the strategy does not seemingly address the challenges the company faces, with competition from renewable energy potentially putting fossil fuel businesses out of business on grounds of costs. The company does not seem to have a clear plan for the competitive aspects of the energy transition and there does not seem to be a sharp target or commitment. Reviewing the strategy according to new scenarios concerning decarbonization in order to be aligned with customer sentiment or other changes in society, does not seemingly puts the company in the position of taking the lead in decarbonization. Rather, it appears too accommodating and inconsistent with the policy objectives and some of the targets. Under such assumption, there is no guarantee that the targets would be reviewed to a lower ambition or that they will not be met at all. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

5. Approve Equity Grant to Executive Director: Kevin Gallagher
The Board is seeking shareholder approval for the purposes of ASX Listing Rule 10.14 for the grant of 573,375 share acquisition rights (SARs) to the Chief Executive And Managing Director, under the Santos Employee Equity Incentive Plan. The value of the proposed grant has not been disclosed, it has been calculated to correspond to 180% of the fixed salary. The Company has fully disclosed performance targets in a quantified manner, which is welcomed, however the targets does not appear to run interdependently, which is not considered best practice. It is also considered that while the share program does not constitute excessive remuneration individually, there are excessiveness concerns when combined with the Company's Short-term Incentive Plan. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

7. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors

AMERICAN EXPRESS COMPANY AGM - 03-05-2022

1k. Elect Stephen J. Squeri - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. Additionally, as the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an oppose vote is recommended.

Shareholder Proposal Submitted by Cairo Communication SpA. Urbano R Cairo proposed as chair of the board after the meeting. Chair and Chief Executive. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the chair should be independent to carry out a more effective coordination of supervisory activity of the board. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. 2.e. Deliberations Pursuant to Article 2390 of Civil Code Re: Decisions Inherent to Authorization of Board Members to Assume Positions in Competing Companies Shareholder Proposal Submitted by Cairo Communication SpA. With this resolution, the board is seeking authority that members and other executives of the company may participate in boards and/or in the managements of competing companies . This authority is not sought for defined appointments. As a consequence, if approved, this authority may lead to potential time commitment concerns. In addition, an excessive number positions within the same company may develop excessive familiarity and trust, which would eventually hinder an effective independent oversight by directors (while there is already likely insufficient independent representation on the board). On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

14.H. Re-Elect Hans Straberg - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. Additionally, not considered to be independent as he is the Chair of Atlas Copco. Investor AB has significant interest in this company. He has also been CEO of Electrolux, also part of Investor AB's portfolio of ownership. There are concerns over the director's potential aggregate time commitments. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14.I. Re-Elect Jacob Wallenberg - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. Additionally, not considered to be independent as the Wallenberg family holds a significant percentage of the Company's voting rights. In addition he has previously served as the Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of the Company. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14.J. Re-Elect Marcus Wallenberg - Vice Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Vice Chair. Not considered to be independent as he is connected to a major shareholder and is a board member at companies in which Investor AB is a major shareholder. In addition he has previously served as the President and CEO of the Company. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

16. Appoint the Auditors
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 23.08% of audit fees during the year under review and 21.31% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

17.A. Approve Performance Share Matching Plan (LTVR) for Employees in Investor
It is proposed a share matching plan.
The long-term variable remuneration program for employees within Investor, consisting of a Stock Matching Plan and a Performance-Based Share Program, has been approved by the AGM since 2006 and the long-term variable remuneration program for employees within Patricia Industries has been approved by the AGM since 2017.
Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to receive shares in exchange for part of the reinvestment of their salary. The shares resulting from reinvestment will be matched by free shares awarded by the Company. While re-investment of the bonus in shares, or payment of part or all of the bonus in shares, are considered positive practice, share matching plans are viewed as a de facto discount for executives to buy company shares. They can eventually result in excessive payments versus performance. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

18.A. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

18.B. Approve Equity Plan (LTVR) Financing Through Transfer of Shares to Participants
The Board requests authority to repurchase and re-issue the shares to participants in the long term incentive plan proposed at the present meeting. Although companies have a legal duty to fund approved plans, this resolution is considered to be a proposal enabling the LTIP proposed. Based on the concerns on the resolution for the approval of the LTIP, abstention is recommended also on this resolution.

1. Receive the Annual Report

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

2. Approve Remuneration Policy

Changes proposed: i) The post-cessation shareholding requirement will be increased so that Executive Directors are required to hold the lower of their actual shareholding or 100% of their minimum shareholding requirement for 24 months (increased from 12 months), ii) Extension of the Value Creation Plan: The 2022 Policy, therefore, includes an extension to the term of the VCP for an additional three years, to 2027, with no change to the core design and mechanics of the plan. In addition, the size of the "pool" is proposed to increase from 2.75% to 3.25% of the value created above the 10% p.a. hurdle growth rate from 2022 onwards (with nothing earned for growth below the hurdle), iii) Inclusion of ESG as part of the vesting consideration criteria for the VCP and iv) Updating the Company's current Recruitment Policy to remove Remuneration Committee discretion to go outside of the Remuneration Policy and include any other remuneration component or award in the remuneration package which it considers to be appropriate to recruit an individual.

Maximum pension contributions are considered acceptable at 7% of base salary. The maximum potential for awards exceeds 200% of base salary with the AIP alone, it is not possible to measure the total maximum potential of variable remuneration as the CEO's salary will change annually and the annual cap of the VCP value vesting is £20 million rather than a percentage of salary. It is welcomed that 50% of the AIP will be deferred over three years and this is considered acceptable. The VCP award has a performance period of five years which is in line with best practice. Dividends may accrue on vesting awards from the date of grant. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The increase in CEO salary (2.5%), is considered in line with the rest of the company (2.5 %). The CEO salary is in the median of the competitor group. The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Total realized pay for the year under review is not considered excessive at approximately 160.5% of the salary. The ratio of pay between CEO and the average employee is not considered acceptable at 58:1.

6. Re-elect Stephen Daintith - Executive Director
Executive Director. Acceptable service contract provisions. However, Mr. Daintith as the sponsor of the ESG committee, is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

7. Re-elect Neill Abrams - Executive Director
Executive Director and Company Secretary. Acceptable service contract provisions.. The Company Secretary is an officer of the Company with all of the responsibilities that attach to that status. The holder of the post is often seen as the guardian of governance and an independent adviser to the Board. For this reason, it is considered a conflict of interest for a person to serve the company secretarial function and serve another position on the Board. An abstain vote is recommended.

It would be preferred that companies appoint directors from the workforce rather than designate a non-executive director (NED). Support will be recommended for the election or re-election of designated NEDs provided that no significant employment relations issues have been identified.

In addition, there are concerns over potential aggregate time commitments and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year.

20. Amend Value Creation Plan
It is proposed to amend the Value Creation Plan of the company. Under the amended Plan rules, performance will be measured in respect of a performance period: A) in respect of the initial rights granted before the Plan Extension (unless (B) applies), the period beginning on Shareholder Approval and ending at the end of the 2024 financial year, B) in respect of rights granted before the Plan Extension where participants agree to the Plan Extension, the period beginning on Shareholder Approval and ending at the end of the 2027 financial year and C) in respect of any new participants joining the Plan on or after the Plan Extension, the period to be determined by the Remuneration Committee at the time the participant is invited to join the Plan. In addition, under the Plan, the Remuneration Committee may grant any employee of the Company's group a right to receive a proportion of the Company's TSR above a threshold rate. The Threshold Rate is 10% compound annual growth in TSR for all employees currently participating in the Plan. The total number of Shares over which Awards may be granted will be increased from 2.75% to 3.25% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital from time to time. This will allow the Plan, at the discretion of the Remuneration Committee, to be offered to a wider range of participants and to be used to attract and recruit top talent.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

The authority is limited to one third of the Company's issued share capital. This cap can increase to two-thirds of the issued share capital if shares are issued in connection with an offer by way of a rights issue. All directors are standing for annual re-election. This resolution is in line with normal market practice and expires at the next AGM. However, the proposed resolution in the 2021 Annual General Meeting received significant opposition of 13.98% of the votes and the company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore abstention is recommended.

24. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. 1. Accept Financial Statements and Statutory Reports
Strategic report meets guidelines. Adequate employment and environmental policies are in place and relevant, up-to-date, quantified, environmental reporting is disclosed. The Company also disclosed the proportion of women on the Board, in Executive Management positions and within the whole organization. However, it is noted that no dividend has been put to the vote for shareholder approval although dividend was declared during the year under review. Failure to give shareholders the opportunity to approve distribution policy at the AGM is viewed as a failure to comply with best practice, regardless of whether payments are made as interim, special or final dividends. An oppose vote is recommended.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The salary for the position of CEO is in the upper quartile of the Company's comparator group which raises concerns over the excessiveness of her pay. The changes in the CEO pay over the last five years are in line with the Company's TSR performance over the same period. PSP awards granted to the CEO, Emma Walmsley, are considered excessive, amounting to 353.6% of salary. In addition, total variable pay for the CEO was also excessive at 639.5% of salary, it is recommended that total variable pay should not exceed 200% of salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 48:1; it is recommended that the ratio does not exceed 20:1. Rating: AD

3. Approve Remuneration Policy
Policy Rating: ADC Overall disclosure is adequate. Pension contributions and entitlements are not considered excessive. Performance conditions for the annual bonus do not operate interdependently. The portion of the annual bonus that is subject to share deferral and the deferral period are considered to be adequate. The performance conditions for the PSP do not operate independently. Performance period of the PSP is not considered sufficient, though an additional two-year holding period is welcomed. At 900% of salary total potential variable pay is considered highly excessive. The shareholding requirements set for Executives are adequate, though no time period is set. For recruitment purposes, the Committee reserves the flexibility to set the incentive limit for a new Executive Director at up to an additional 50% of the existing limits. This would allow to grant a new appointed director with an additional 400% of salary. Such an additional payment can be considered as a "Golden Hello" and raises concerns. With respect to termination payments, the Committee may exercise upside discretion to dis-apply time pro-rating on share awards, which is considered inappropriate.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. O.12. Approve Compensation of Benoit Potier

It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid to Benoit Potier with an advisory vote.The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

O.14. Approve Remuneration Policy of Chairman and CEO Until 31 May 2022

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. E.20. Authorize up to 2 Percent of Issued Capital for Use in Stock Option Plans

The Board proposes the approval of a new incentive plan for all employees, including executives. Under the plan, participants will be allotted stock options, each of which will give right to one share. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure.

LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

HOLCIM LTD AGM - 04-05-2022

1.1. Receive the Annual Report
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 98.9, Abstain: 1.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.1,

1.2. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

2. Discharge the Board
Standard proposal. Although no wrongdoing has been identified, the company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. As such, abstention is recommended on the discharge.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 94.8, Abstain: 1.4, Oppose/Withhold: 3.8,

4.1.1. Elect Beat Hess - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. However, there is sufficient independent representation on the Board. As there is no disclosed Chair of the Sustainability Committee up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's Sustainability programme. As such, given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

5.2. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.
It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 42.5 million (CHF 42.5 million was proposed last year). This proposal includes fixed and variable remuneration components.
There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

6. Say on Climate
The climate policy appears to be adequately linked to the governance of the company overall. The chair is indicated as being responsible for oversight of the climate strategy and members of the senior management have accrued significant experience in climate-related issues within the sector of the company.
The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.
The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.
The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.
The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 but this commitment only extends to part of its Scope 1, Scope 2 and Scope 3 emissions. This is considered to be inconsistent with an adequate commitment to a full energy transition, as shareholders are unable to make an informed assessment on the material efforts to reduce emissions, and increase the resilience of the company in the long term.

3. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. - addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO salary is at the upper quartile of the competitors group, which raises concerns over potential excessiveness. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review is considered excessive at approximately 213.8% (Annual Bonus: 121.5% & MCIP: 92.3%) of salary. Furthermore, the CEO to average employee pay ratio currently stands at 102:1, a ratio of 20:1 is considered adequate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of ‘alignment’ with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of ‘alignment’ which can actually create a competing set of director ‘duties’.

14. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as Auditors
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 22.73% of audit fees during the year under review and 18.97% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn’t an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn’t merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

19. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The highest paid director for the FY2021 was Mr. Morzaria the Group Finance Director. The salary of the highest paid director increased by 2% for the year under review and is in line with the workforce, which increased by 7%. The highest paid director salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The changes in the highest Director pay over the last five years are not considered in line with the changes in TSR performance over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review was not excessive, amounting to 199.5% ( Annual Bonus: 86.9% & LTIP: 112.6%)of salary. The ratio of the highest pay Director compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 61:1. PIRC consider adequate a ratio of 20:1.

22. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to the Issuance of Contingent Equity Conversion Notes
It is proposed to give the Directors the authority to allot ECNs, or shares issued upon conversion or exchange of ECNs, up to an aggregate nominal amount of £825,000,000 representing approximately 19.69% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital (excluding shares held in treasury) as at 10 March 2022. The Company explains that this resolution is a recurring resolution at its AGM and will be used to comply or maintain compliance with regulatory capital requirements or targets applicable to the Group.
The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilizing effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

26. Approve Barclays' Climate Strategy, Targets and Progress 2022
The climate policy appears to be adequately linked to the governance of the company overall. The chair is indicated as being responsible for oversight of the climate strategy and members of the senior management have accrued significant experience in climate-related issues within the sector of the company.

The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured. The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.
The company has not pledged to refrain from financing new plans based on fossil fuels. Fossil fuels financing is risky, with records of several human rights and environmental violations and returns that can pay out only years after the initial expensive investment. Although some case studies show that banks are getting increasingly involved in the energy transition, most of the financial system as a whole is still oriented mainly towards financing the linear economy when not directly fossil fuel enterprises. A report published in May 2021 "Banking on Climate Chaos" calculates that the world's biggest 60 banks have provided USD 3.8 trillion of financing for fossil fuel companies since the Paris climate deal in 2015, and overall funding remains on an upward trend. Nevertheless, consumers are increasingly reported to feel that brands have a responsibility to take care of the planet, and UN's Business and Sustainable Development Commission issued a forecast where sustainability is mentioned as to be worth at least USD 12 trillion a year by 2030 to businesses. As such, financing the energy transition could be indeed an opportunity especially for banks, as the size of a greener economy is directly related to the availability of financing for those projects.

Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

STANDARD CHARTERED PLC AGM - 04-05-2022

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO's salary is in the median of the Company's comparator group. The changes in CEO pay over the last five years are not considered in line with the Company's TSR performance over the same period. The CEO's Annual award is equivalent to 97.7% of salary and the LTIP vested was 57.2% of the salary. The total variable remuneration rewarded to the CEO in the year under is not excessive at 154.9%. Finally, the ratio of CEO to average employee pay is considered excessive at 53:1. A ratio of 20:1 will be consider acceptable. The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

4. Approve Remuneration Policy

Changes Proposed: i) For new executive directors pension will be based on the cash element of salary only, ii) The maximum pension is being reduced from 20% to 10% of the salary, iii) Annual Bonus: Maximum opportunity increase from 80% of fixed pay to 88% of salary, iv) LTIP award: Maximum opportunity increase from 120% of fixed pay to 132% of salary. It is noted that the changes on the maximum opportunity for the Annual Bonus and the LTIP award is the result of the change in the basis for calculation of variable remuneration (annual incentives and LTIP awards) from a percentage of fixed pay (salary and pension) to a percentage of salary only. The maximum value of an annual incentive award granted to any executive director cannot exceed 88 per cent of that executive director's fixed pay. Under regulations, the proportion of variable remuneration that is deferred must be no less than 60 per cent which is to vest pro-rata over years three to seven after award. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. The performance period for the LTIP is three years however under the remuneration regulations, deferred remuneration vests no faster than pro rata over years three to seven after award. The Company is not party to any significant agreements that would take effect, alter or terminate following a change of control of the Company. The Company does not have agreements with any director or employee that would provide compensation for loss of office or employment resulting from a takeover, except that provisions of the Company's share schemes and plans may cause options and awards granted to employees under such schemes and plans to vest on a takeover.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval at general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties, including the new s172 duties, should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'. As such, PIRC may recommend opposition on any remuneration policy or report proposals containing variable remuneration.

19. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP as Auditors

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 14.61% of audit fees during the year under review and 10.91% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

23. Extend the Authority to Allot Shares by Such Number of Shares Repurchased by the Company under the Authority Granted Pursuant to Resolution 28
It is proposed to extend the authority to repurchase shares of up to 10% of the issued share capital (as permitted by Hong-Kong Listing Rules and which is included in the resolution 22) by authorising the Board to issue shares repurchased by the Company under resolution 28. This represents an additional 10% of the issued share capital and is considered excessive. It is noted that this extension would not result in the authority to allot shares or grant rights to subscribe for or convert securities into shares pursuant to resolution 22 exceeding two-thirds of the issued share capital. The authority and limits given through resolution 22 are considered sufficient and an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.9, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 1.8,

24. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to Equity Convertible Additional Tier 1 Securities
Authority to allot Equity Convertible Additional Tier 1 Securities (ECAT1s), or shares issued upon conversion or exchange of ECAT1s, up to an aggregate nominal amount of USD 302,578,862.50 (or 605,157,725 shares), representing approximately 20% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital. This authority expires at next AGM.
The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilising effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

31. Approve Net Zero Pathway
The climate policy appears to be adequately linked to the governance of the company overall. The chair is indicated as being responsible for oversight of the climate strategy and members of the senior management have accrued significant experience in climate-related issues within the sector of the company.
The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.
The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.
The company has not pledged to refrain from financing new plans based on fossil fuels. Fossil fuels financing is risky, with records of several human rights and environmental violations and returns that can pay out only years after the initial expensive investment. Although some case studies show that banks are getting increasingly involved in the energy transition, most of the financial system as a whole is still oriented mainly towards financing the linear economy when not directly fossil fuel enterprises. A report published in May 2021 "Banking on Climate Chaos" calculates that the world's biggest 60 banks have provided USD 3.8 trillion of financing for fossil fuel companies since the Paris climate deal in 2015, and overall funding remains on an upward trend. Nevertheless, consumers are increasingly reported to feel that brands have a responsibility to take care of the planet, and UN's Business and Sustainable Development Commission issued a forecast where sustainability is mentioned as to be worth at least USD 12 trillion a year by 2030 to businesses. As such, financing the energy transition could be indeed an opportunity especially for banks, as the size of a greener economy is directly related to the availability of financing for those projects.

2. Approve Remuneration Report for UK Law Purposes
In accordance with Section 250R of the Australian Corporations Act, the directors are seeking approval of the remuneration report. The Act does not require directors to act on approval of the resolution and the vote is advisory.
There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

13. Approve Remuneration Policy

Policy Rating: BDB The CEO's maximum potential award under all incentive schemes is considered excessive at 325% (Annual Bonus: 150%; LTIP 175%).The remuneration policy continues to allow for recruitment awards to be made outside policy limits which raises serious concerns. Bonus deferral is one third of the payment, this is not considered adequate, best practice consider that 50% of the Bonus should defer to shares for at least three years and 50% paid in cash. LTIP award is dependent on both EPS and TSR metrics, the absence of Non-financial parameters to assess Executives' long-term performance is considered contrary to best practice as such factors are generally beyond an individual director's control. Non-financial parameters allow the remuneration policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole and the individual roles of each of the senior executives in achieving that performance. Performance period is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, however a two year holding period apply which is welcomed. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The CEO's total realized awards during the year under review stands at approximately 85.2% (Annual Bonus: 85.2%). The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay stands at 42:1 which is considered unacceptable. PIRC consider a CEO pay ratio at 20:1 as acceptable. Rating: AC

The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.

LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

19. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

21.a. Approve Performance Share Matching Plan LTIP 2022 for Key Employees
It is proposed a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to receive shares in exchange for part of the reinvestment of their salary. The shares resulting from reinvestment will be matched by free shares awarded by the Company. While re-investment of the bonus in shares, or payment of part or all of the bonus in shares, are considered positive practice, share matching plans are viewed as a de facto discount for executives to buy company shares. They can eventually result in excessive payments versus performance. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

21.c. Approve Alternative Equity Plan Financing

It is proposed to authorise the board to transfer company's own shares, on one or several occasions prior to the next Annual General Meeting. The shares may only be transferred in conjunction with the financing of company acquisitions and other types of strategic investments and acquisitions, and the transfers may not exceed the maximum number of treasury shares held by the company at any given time. Transfer of own shares can also be made in another manner in conjunction with the acquisition of companies or operations, where transfer of own shares may be made with deviation from the shareholders' preferential rights. Payment for shares transferred in this manner may be made in cash or through a non-cash issue or offsetting of claims against the company, or on other specific terms.
This has been proposed in service of the incentive plan proposed at this meeting: thus, opposition is recommended based on the concerns identified on the proposed incentive plan.

SCHNEIDER ELECTRIC SE AGM - 05-05-2022

1. Approve Financial Statements

The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

5. Renew Appointment of Mazars as Auditor
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 6.81% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.63% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

7. Approve Compensation Report of Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there are no claw back clauses in place, which is against best practices. Opposition is recommended.

8. Approve Compensation of Jean-Pascal Tricoire, Chairman and CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Jean-Pascal Tricoire with an advisory vote. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. 9. Approve Remuneration Policy of Chairman and CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for all performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

11. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as Auditors

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 5.63% of audit fees during the year under review and 2.25% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

15. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. Next year's fees and salaries are clearly stated. CEO salary is in line with the workforce.

The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile a peer comparator group. The changes in CEO pay over the last five years are in line with the Company's TSR performance over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review is excessive at 236.05% of salary (Annual Bonus: 179.45% and LTIP: 56.6). The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is unacceptable at 100:1; it is recommended that the ratio does not exceed 20:1. Rating: AC
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

12. Reappoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditors
PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. 10. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy for the Corporate Officers. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

13. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% and 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

HEXCEL CORPORATION AGM - 05-05-2022

1a. Elect Nick L. Stanage - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACD. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

QBE INSURANCE GROUP LTD AGM - 05-05-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
In accordance with Section 250R of the Australian Corporations Act, the directors are seeking approval of the remuneration report. The Act does not require directors to act on approval of the resolution and the vote is advisory.
There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Approve Grant of Conditional Rights to Andrew Horton
The Boards is seeking shareholder approval for the purposes of ASX Listing Rule 10.14 for the grant of 301,508 performance shares to the Chief Executive And Managing Director, under the company's Long-term Incentive Plan. The proposed grant has an approximate value of AUD 3,600,000, which would correspond to more than 200% of the fixed salary, together with other components of the variable remuneration, which is considered to be excessive.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. LTIPs are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
It is proposed to increase the amount payable to the Board of Directors by more than 10% on annual basis. The increase is considered material and exceeds guidelines, while the company has not duly justified it. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

ACS (ACTIVIDADES DE CONSTRUCCION Y SERVICIOS) AGM - 05-05-2022

4.2. Elect Juan Santamaria Cases - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director has a relationship with the Company, which is considered material. From 2006 to 2013 he held the positions of Project Director, Chief Operating Officer and CEO at ACS Infrastructure Development, Inc. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5.1. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

5.2. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

6. Appoint the Auditors: KPMG
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 9.65% of audit fees during the year under review and 30.50% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

8. Authorize Share Repurchase and Capital Reduction via Amortization of Repurchased Shares
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% and five years. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. The Company has stated that this resolution may authorise the Board of Directors to allocate all or part of its repurchased shares to remuneration schemes. However, this is not considered to be sufficient, as it includes only part of the requested authority. As no clear justification was provided by the Board regarding the full use of the authority, an oppose vote is recommended.

TECHNIP ENERGIES NV AGM - 05-05-2022

5. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

6. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 16.36% of audit fees during the year under review and 16.36% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

The auditor also manages the company's whistleblowing hotline, as per auditor's statement at page 260 of the annual report. This considered a conflict of interest as the auditor may be unlikely to report issues highlighted that contradict its previous assurance statements. It is considered that this could lead to whistle-blowers being suppressed, particularly at companies where there are independence concerns regarding the statutory auditor. For this reason, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7a. Approve Discharge of Executive Directors
Standard resolution. At the company, there is seemingly no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended.

8c. Elect Arnaud Caudoux - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, member of the audit committee. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: BpiFrance. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the audit committee should only comprise independent members. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8d. Elect Marie-Ange Debon - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. There are concerns over the director's potential time commitments, and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year.

8h. Elect Nello Uccelletti - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, member of the audit committee. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as President and Advisor to TechnipFMC's Chief Executive Officer from November 2019 to February 2020. From 2014 to 2019, Mr. Uccelletti served as President of TechnipFMC's Onshore/Offshore business after previously serving as Senior Vice President of Onshore. Mr. Uccelletti originally joined Technip in 1978. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the audit committee should only comprise independent members. An oppose vote is recommended.

MORGAN ADVANCED MATERIALS PLC AGM - 05-05-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 99.5, Abstain: 0.5, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve Remuneration Policy
Changes Proposed: i) Alignment of pension contributions for current executive Directors with those for the UK workforce from 31 December 2022 onwards, ii) Reducing the upper LTIP grant limit to 200% of salary, and increasing the CEO's annual award value to this level and iii) Adding an ESG measure to the LTIP structure in alignment with the company's strategic priorities.
Some of the changes are welcomed such as the ESG measure in the Long-term Incentive Plan (LTIP). However, concerns remain with the remuneration policy of the company. Total variable pay could reach 400% of the salary and is considered excessive since is higher than the proposed limit of 200%. 67% of the Bonus is paid in cash and 33% is deferred to shares for a three-year period. It would be preferable that 50% of the Bonus deferred to shares for a three-year period. The performance period for the LTIP award is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, however a two year holding period applies which is welcomed. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. Additionally, there is no evidence thatdividends may not accrue on vesting awards from the date of grant. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Malus and claw back provisions apply to all variable pay. Contracts may be terminated on 12 months' notice given by the Company or on six months' notice given by the executive Director concerned.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval at general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties, including the new s172 duties, should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'. As such, PIRC may recommend opposition on any remuneration policy or report proposals containing variable remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.4, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 3.6,

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO salary is in the median of the competitor group. The changes in the CEO's pay are not considered in line with the changes in the Company's TSR over the last five years. The CEO's variable pay for the Year Under Review is approximately 241.8% of salary (Annual Bonus: 145.5% : LTIP: 96.3%) which is not within the acceptable limit of 200% of salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not considered acceptable at 42:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of ‘alignment’ which can actually create a competing set of director ‘duties’.

7. Re-elect Douglas Caster - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As the company do not have a Sustainability Committee , the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's Sustainability programme. As such, given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 97.8, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 1.8,

16. Approve Share Plan 2022
It is proposed to approve the Company's Share Plan 2022. Eligible to participate are all employees of the Company, including the executive directors. Under the plan the Remuneration committee, may grant awards as conditional awards of Shares or nil or nominal-cost options over Shares. No payment is required for the grant of an award. Awards structured as nil or nominal-cost options will normally be exercisable from the point of vesting. Awards will not normally be granted to a participant under the Share Plan 2022 over Shares with a market value in excess of 250% of salary in respect of any financial year of the Company, in line with the limits in the current LTIP. Awards may however be granted in excess of this limit to an eligible employee in connection with their recruitment by way of compensating them for any awards forfeited as a result of leaving their former employer. The vesting of Awards may (and, in the case of an Award to an Executive Director other than a Recruitment Award will, to the extent required by the shareholder-approved directors' remuneration policy. Awards which are subject to performance conditions will normally have those conditions assessed as soon as reasonably practicable after the end of the relevant performance period. The Committee will determine the extent to which Awards will vest, taking into account the extent that any relevant performance conditions have been satisfied, the underlying performance of the Company and the participant and such other factors the Committee considers, in its opinion, relevant. An unvested Award will usually lapse upon a participant ceasing to be employed by or to hold office with the Group. If, however, a participant ceases to be an employee or director of the Group in circumstances the Committee determines, in its discretion, justifies vesting (i.e. they leave as a ‘good leaver’), their Award will normally continue to vest (and be released) on the date when it would have vested (and been released) if they had not ceased to be an employee or director of the Group.
Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

18. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in the median of the competitor group. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over the last five years is not aligned to the change in TSR over the same period. The variable remuneration for the FY 2021 was 549% of base salary (177% Annual Bonus and 372% LTIP). The pay ratio between CEO and the average employee is considered acceptable at 11:1. Rating: AC

14. Reappoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditors

PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

VITESCO TECHNOLOGI NPV AGM - 05-05-2022

4. Appoint the Auditors
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 44.44% of audit fees during the year under review and 44.44% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

7. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

RATHBONES GROUP PLC AGM - 05-05-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce since no increase was given to the CEO salary for the year under review and the workforce has a salary increase of 1.9%. CEO salary is at the median of the competitors group. The CEO's realized reward for the year under review is not considered excessive at 114.9% of salary. The ratio of CEO to average employee pay has been estimated and is found acceptable at 12:1. Changes in CEO pay over the last five years are considered in line with Company's financial performance over the same period.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

17. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The Company compares the change in the CEO's salary with senior employees, which is not considered an appropriate comparator group. The CEO's salary is in the median quartile of the Company's comparator group. The changes in CEO pay over the last five years are not considered in line with the changes in the Company's TSR performance over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review consisted only of the annual bonus and is acceptable at 100% of salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not considered acceptable at 33:1. Rating: AC

NEXI SPA AGM - 05-05-2022

1. Approve Financial Statements
The Board seeks shareholders' approval for the consolidated and individual financial statements for the year under review. The financial statements have been audited and the auditors have not qualified their opinion. The reports have been made available to shareholders sufficiently prior to the date of the general meeting. The Board also proposes to carry forward the net income for the year. It would be welcomed that the Company submitted the approval of the financial statements and the allocation of income individually, under two separate resolutions. However, no serious concerns have been identified with this. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability governance at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

5a. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

5b. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has disclosed most of the quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated, although not fully. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.5, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 4.4,

6. Approve Long Term Incentive Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares or rights to shares. Performance targets have not been fully quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure. There are also concerns with criteria such as relative TSR, which may allow payout without overperformance in absolute terms and as such hardly incentivising.

LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 89.8, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 10.1,

7. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 18 months. 2. Approve the Remuneration Report

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group, which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The CEO's pay in the last five years is in line with the Company's financial performance over the same period. Furthermore, the ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is at an acceptable level, standing at 11:1. Total variable pay for the year under review was not excessive at 28.2% of the salary.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). In addition, on the 2021 Annual General Meeting the re-election of Mr. Freestone received significant opposition of 11.87% of the votes. The company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Overall, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 89.7, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 10.3,

12. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as Auditors

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 10.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 12.73% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

9. Approve Indemnification Insurance
It is proposed to extend the insurance cover to the members of the governing bodies of all Group companies. The insurance policy covers the civil liability (and related legal and advisory expenses) of the members of the governing bodies of all Group companies versus third parties, deriving from non-fraudulent conduct in breach of the obligations deriving from the law or intrinsic to their duties. In addition, the insurance does not explicitly exclude that it would cover also liabilities arising from fraudulent conduct, and fines handed down by the supervisory authorities. On this basis, shareholders would pay wilful violations and fraudulent conduct led by directors and executives. Opposition is thus recommended.

Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Disclosure: All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed.
Balance: Executive Directors will receive a 1% pay rise in line with the wider workforce from 1 January 2021. The CEO's salary is in the median of PIRC's comparator group. The balance of CEO pay with financial performance is acceptable. Total realised awards under all incentive schemes amount to 224% of base salary which is considered to be excessive. The CEO to average employee ratio is also not considered acceptable at 23:1.
Rating: AB

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

4. Appoint the Auditors

EY proposed as new auditor in replacement of KPMG. Auditor rotation is considered a positive factor. Acceptable proposal.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

7. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to Any Issuance of SII Instruments
Authority is sought to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP150,000,000, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of Solvency II (SII) instruments. The authority expires at the next AGM. The Company explains that this authority is needed so that the Company has the flexibility to manage and maintain the Group's capital structure more effectively in the light of evolving regulatory capital requirements, market conditions and appetite for different instruments and their cost-effectiveness. It is noted that these SII instruments include Tier 1 instruments such as Equity Convertible Instruments or ECIs.
The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivises equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilising effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended

It is proposed a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to receive shares in exchange for part of the reinvestment of their salary. The shares resulting from reinvestment will be matched by free shares awarded by the Company. While re-investment of the bonus in shares, or payment of part or all of the bonus in shares, are considered positive practice, share matching plans are viewed as a de facto discount for executives to buy company shares. The reason for Kinnevik to repurchase the Incentive Shares is to transfer such shares to the participants in LTIP 2022 and to the Participation Company in order to enable participation in LTIP 2022 for employees in the UK, but repurchases may also be effected in order to enable Kinnevik to repurchase Incentive Shares from the Chief Executive Officer and members of Kinnevik's investment team during the term of the plan as set out under item 20(a) and the terms of Kinnevik's long-term share incentive plan for 2021. The Nomination Committee is a common feature among Swedish companies and comprises the biggest shareholders, along with one representative from the Board. 2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary was not increased, and employee pay increased by 3.8%. The CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group, which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The CEO's variable pay has been estimated and is found acceptable at 176.6% of salary (Annual Bonus: 176.6% & LTIP: nil). The ratio of CEO to average employee pay has been estimated and is found unacceptable at 78:1.The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of ‘alignment’ with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of ‘alignment’ which can actually create a competing set of director ‘duties’.

Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Authority is sought to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP100,000,000, representing approximately 10.74% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital as at 08 March 2022, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of Solvency II (SII) instruments. The authority expires at the next AGM. The Company explains that this authority is needed so that the Company has the flexibility to manage and maintain the Group's capital structure more effectively in the light of evolving regulatory capital requirements, market conditions and appetite for different instruments and their cost-effectiveness. It is noted that these SII instruments include Tier 1 instruments such as Equity Convertible Instruments or ECIs.

The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivises equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilising effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended

22. Authorise Issue of Equity without Pre-emptive Rights in Relation to Any Issuance of SII Instruments
Authority is sought to allot equity shares for cash up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP100,000,000, representing approximately 10.74% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital as at 08 March 2022, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of Solvency II (SII) instruments. The authority expires at the next AGM. The Company explains that this authority is needed to give it the flexibility necessary to allot equity securities pursuant to any proposal to issue SII Instruments without the need to comply with the strict pre-emption requirements of the UK statutory regime.
The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivizes equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. The authority is limited to 10% of the Company's issued share capital and will expire at the next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

6. Authorize Share Repurchase and Capital Reduction via Amortization of Repurchased Shares
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% and five years. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. The Company has stated that this resolution may authorise the Board of Directors to allocate all or part of its repurchased shares to remuneration schemes. However, this is not considered to be sufficient, as it includes only part of the requested authority. As no clear justification was provided by the Board regarding the full use of the authority, an oppose vote is recommended.

7. Renew Appointment of PricewaterhouseCoopers as Auditor
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 20.70% of audit fees during the year under review and 9.30% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

9. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

10. Approve Share Appreciation Rights Plan
It is proposed to empower the Board of Directors to extend the term of the incentive for an additional maximum period of two financial years for beneficiary directors. There are concerns with the plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded options or rights to receive shares, which will start vesting after three years from the date of award. At this time, it seems that this plan will not be based on any performance criteria but only on the beneficiaries continued employment. As a result, they may receive bonuses unrelated to their performance or even the performance of the Company as a whole, which is considered a serious frustration of shareholder accountability.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

11. Elect Paula Zalduegui Egana - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: proprietary director from Elidoza Promoción de Empresas, S.L. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

12. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
Authority is sought to issue shares with or without pre-emptive rights to an amount of 50% (with pre-emptive rights) of which more than 10% of the share capital without pre-emptive rights. Although compliant with local legislation, it is considered excessive. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Authorize Issuance of Convertible Bonds, Debentures, Warrants, and Other Debt Securities
The Board requests shareholder authorization to issue debt, including convertible debt without pre-emptive rights, up to 20% of the share capital, over a period of five years. This is in accordance with Article 507 of the Capital Companies Act, but it exceeds guidelines for issuance without pre-emptive rights.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. The Board seeks shareholders' approval for the consolidated and individual financial statements for the year under review. Disclosure is adequate. The financial statements have been audited and the auditors have not qualified their opinion. The reports have been made available to shareholders sufficiently prior to the date of the general meeting. The Board also proposes to distribute a dividend of NOK 30 per share, which is covered by earnings. It would be welcomed that the Company submitted the approval of the financial statements and the allocation of income individually, under two separate resolutions. - addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

14. Approve Investment Policy
The board is seeking shareholder approval for a proposed change in the Investment Policy.
Proposed Changes to the Company's Investment Policy:
a) On investment, no initial (rather than total) investment in a single business will exceed a maximum of 20% of gross assets. This change is proposed to allow additional flexibility in the size of investments that can be made; b) The company specifies that the policy of HGT is to invest predominantly, directly or indirectly, in a portfolio of unlisted software and tech-enabled services companies and HGT holds a spread of businesses diversified by the end-markets the investee companies serve and by geographies in which they operate; c) The company specifies that the Manager invests mainly in companies that have substantial business operations and opportunities in Europe, though the investee companies themselves may serve, or be present in, a variety of sectors; and d) The company specifies that part of HGT's portfolio is located outside of the UK, predominantly in northern Europe, and now, increasingly, in North America.

Recommendation:
Disclosure of rationale for the proposed change in policy is adequate. It is believed that any change in investment mandate can only be recommended where a fully independent management committee is in place, given that investment managers may be incentivised to alter a mandate to reweight or newly include a geography, sector or style by factors beyond the interests of this investment trust. As the management committee is not considered to be fully independent, an abstain vote is recommended.

CONOCOPHILLIPS AGM - 10-05-2022

8. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Lobbying Activities
Proponent's argument:National Legal and Policy Center requested that ConocoPhillips Company provide a full, detailed disclosure of our company's direct and indirect lobbying activities and expenditures to assess whether our lobbying is consistent with ConocoPhillips's expressed goals and in shareholders' best interests. Shareholders request the Board prepare a report, updated annually disclosing: 1. Company policy and procedures governing lobbying, both direct and indirect, and grassroots lobbying communications; 2. Payments by ConocoPhillips used for (a) direct or indirect lobbying or (b) grassroots lobbying communications, in each case including the amount of the payment and the recipient; 3. Description of the decision-making process and oversight by management and the Board for making payments described in section 2 above. "ConocoPhillips's lobbying expenditures may not include grassroots lobbying to directly influence legislation by mobilizing public support or opposition, nor lobbying expenditures in states that do not require disclosure. We appreciate the information on the company website and proxy on both political spending and lobbying, but the website disclosure is incomplete. ConocoPhillips is a member of the Business Roundtable and the United Stated Chamber of Commerce, as well as several other industry groups, but does not disclose with specificity how much it contributes to each, nor portions each entity spends for lobbying. It is an integrity and governance problem for ConocoPhillips when their trade associations lobby actively opposing ConocoPhillips's positions. Absent a system of transparency and accountability for lobbying expenditures, Company executives may use Company assets for objectives that are not shared by and may be inimical to the interests of the Company and its shareholders. Current disclosure is insufficient to allow the Company's Board, its shareholders, and its current and prospective customers to fully evaluate its lobbying priorities. There is currently no single source providing shareholders the information sought by this resolution."
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "Our Board, acting through its Public Policy and Sustainability Committee ("PPSC"), provides oversight of ConocoPhillips' direct, indirect and grassroots lobbying efforts, and we describe our internal governance and internal review processes on the Political Support Policies & Procedures section of our website. The PPSC annually reviews our trade association and industry group memberships and the associated lobbying allocations. The PPSC also annually assesses the political policies and contribution criteria for alignment with our core values. Furthermore, our employees who engage with trade associations through committee work are required to collaborate with a core group of internal functions to ensure those engagements are consistent with our public policy positions. These policies and procedures also serve to prevent any instance of resource mishandling by company executives, a concern expressed in the NLPC's resolution. ConocoPhillips complies with the federal and state reporting of lobbying activities. Federal reports are filed quarterly with the Office of the Clerk of the U.S. House of Representatives and are viewable on its website at http://lobbyingdisclosure.house.gov/ and the U.S. Senate website at http://www.senate.gov/legislative/Public_Disclosure/LDA_reports.htm. State lobbying disclosure requirements vary by jurisdiction, with some states publishing those reports on their respective websites. Additionally, we have engaged for many years in a measured and proactive outreach process with stockholders on voluntary trade association disclosure and transparency, which has enhanced our insight into concerns from a cross section of investors. " resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented within the company's political activities, as opposed to promoting transparency and accountability around the potential benefits of diversity and requesting transparency over the financial impact from non-traditionally financial issues, avoid any suspicion and any damage that may cause to the company's reputation, or that the company may adopt a conduct different from what it has committed to. Opposition is recommended.
PIRC analysis: The requested disclosure on the alignment of lobbying expenditure appears to be a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 2.46% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.42% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

CAPITA PLC AGM - 10-05-2022

11. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary for the year under review is in line with the workforce. However, the CEO salary is at the upper quartile of the competitors group, which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review was 63.1% of the salary and is not considered excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is considered unacceptable at 39:1. PIRC consider adequate a ratio of 20:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Newly appointed Chair. Independent upon appointment. However, Mr. Lowden is also chairing another company within the FTSE 350 index. It is considered that a chair cannot effectively represent two corporate cultures. The possibility of having to commit additional time to the role in times of crisis is ever present. Given this, a Chair should focus his attention onto the only one FTSE 350 Company.

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 21.43% of audit fees during the year under review and 16.23% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. Next year's fees and salaries are stated. The highest paid director salary is the median quartile of the comparator group. The changes in the highest paid director's total pay over the last five years are not considered in line with the changes in Company's TSR performance over the same period. The potential variable pay of the highest paid executive for the year under review is not considered excessive representing 91.5% of salary. Total variable pay could reach 300% of the salary (Annual Bonus: 150% and LTIP: 150%) which is excessive since is higher than the recommended limit of 200%. Annual Bonus performance measures are financial (55%), personal & strategic (25%), and ESG (20%) targets. Any bonus earned in excess of 75% of salary must be used to acquire shares which must be held for at least two years. It would have been preferable 50% of the Bonus to defer to shares for a two-year period. Long-term incentive plan (LTIP) performance metrics are financial operational and shareholder return related. There are no non-financial performance measures attached to the

LTIP and so the focus of remuneration policy is not the operational performance of the business as a whole or the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Instead, the focus of the remuneration policy is financial KPIs, which mainly include factors beyond an individual director's control. Vesting period is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, however a two-year holding period apply which is welcomed. Malus and claw back provisions apply for all variable pay. Directors are required to build up a shareholding of 200 % (compared to 150% in 2018) of base salary which is considered best practice. However, the Company does not disclose the time limit for building up of the shareholding which is considered inadequate. It would be preferable the company to set a time limit of five years in which the level of holding should be achieved. Policy Rating: ADC

Total potential awards under Performance Share Plan (PSP) incentive schemes are considered excessive at 150% of the base. There is also the provision of an exceptional limit for the PSP at 250% of salary. Only minor amendments can be made to the PSP without the necessity of shareholder approval. Directors are required to build up a shareholding of 200% of base salary over five years which is in line with best practice. The malus/clawback provisions are introduced which is welcomed. Post-vesting holding period for the PSP to the fifth anniversary of the date of grant is also acceptable. However, the ability to credit dividends declared over the vesting period on shares that vest will be included. Payment of dividend equivalents are against best practice. Such rewards are not supported as they misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

7.2. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment

JUST GROUP PLC AGM - 10-05-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns and it is recommended to oppose this resolution.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.6, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 1.2,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Disclosure: The single figure table has been adequately disclosed. Disclosure of performance conditions and targets for the annual bonus and LTIP is considered acceptable. Dividend equivalents paid on vested shares are not separately categorized.

Balance: The CEO salary is in the median of the comparator group. The CEO salary increase of 0.51% during the year under review is approximately in line with the wider workforce salary increase of 0.41%. The changes in the CEO pay over the last five years are not considered to be in line with the Company's TSR performance over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review is considered acceptable at 151.89% of salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is acceptable at 17:1.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 12.50% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.95% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state.

PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

DIRECT LINE INSURANCE GROUP PLC AGM - 10-05-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce. However, the CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group, which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over the last five years is aligned to the change in TSR over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review is not considered acceptable at 282.5% of salary (147% for the annual Bonus and 135.5% for the LTIP). The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 54:1, it is recommended that the ratio does not exceed 20:1.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. 22. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to an Issue of RT1 Instruments
Authority is sought to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP 23,250,000, representing approximately 15.6% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital as at 23 March 2021, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of Restricted Tier 1 (RT1) instruments. The authority expires at the next AGM. The Company explains that this authority is needed so that the Company has the flexibility to manage and maintain its and the Group's capital structure more effectively in the light of evolving regulatory capital requirements, market conditions and appetite for different instruments and their cost-effectiveness.

The use of Contingent Convertible Securities (or CoCos) is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivises equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

CASINO GUICHARD PERRACHON SA AGM - 10-05-2022

4. Approve Compensation Report of Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration report. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there are no claw back clauses in place, which is against best practices. Opposition is recommended.

6. Approve Remuneration Policy of Chair and CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

9. Elect Jean-Charles Naouri - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO salary is on the median of the competitor group. The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Total realized rewards under all incentive schemes are considered excessive at 561.7% of base salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to the average employee is considered excessive at 91:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). 9. Re-elect Julie Southern - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and chair of the audit committee. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 2.33% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.99% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. [PwC] proposed as new auditor. Auditor rotation is considered a positive factor. Acceptable proposal.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. The Board seeks shareholders' approval for the consolidated and individual financial statements for the year under review. Disclosure is adequate. The financial statements have been audited and the auditors have not qualified their opinion. The reports have been made available to shareholders sufficiently prior to the date of the general meeting. The Board also proposes to distribute a dividend of NOK 9.30 per share, which is covered by earnings. It would be welcomed that the Company submitted the approval of the financial statements and the allocation of income individually, under two separate resolutions. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues, particularly those highlighted as current watchlist issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders. The annual report fails to address these concerns and it is recommended to oppose this resolution.

10.1. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

12.1. Elect Lars Tonsgaard to Nomination Committee
The Board of Directors seeks authority to approve the guidelines for the Nomination Committee. The guidelines include the standard set of tasks and rules of procedure for the Nomination Committee. Members should be independent from the management. Although in line with the recommendation of the Corporate Governance Code, in terms of best practice it is considered that the majority of the members of the Committee should be independent also from major shareholders. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

CDON AB AGM - 11-05-2022

10.2. Re-Elect Savneet Singh - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. There are concerns over the director's potential time commitments, and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10.7. Re-Elect Josephine Salenstedt as Chair
Non-Executive Chair. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: Rite Ventures.It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Opposition is recommended.

10.8. Appoint the Auditors
KPMG proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Adoption of a Warrant-Based Incentive Program
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. The purpose of Board Program 2022 is for the Board members to gain increased ownership in the company, in order to link the interests of the Board members with the interests of the shareholders. The remuneration is expected to create incentives for the Board members to contribute to the development of the company's position and promote long-term sustainable decisions.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan
It is proposed to approve a new long term incentive plan. The Company has not disclosed the performance criteria for the allocation of incentives, and as such there are concerns that it may overpay for underperformance. In addition, LTIPs are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature. Opposition is recommended.

HARBOUR ENERGY PLC AGM - 11-05-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary for the year under review is in line with the workforce. The salary of the CEO is in the median of the competitors group. The changes in CEO over the past five years are not considered in line with changes in TSR during the same period. The CEO's total realized awards during the year under review stands at approximately 66.3% which is inclusive of only the Annual Bonus. However, it is noted that the new CEO Ms. Linda Z. Cook received a buyout award to compensate for the loss of incentive arrangements she had as part of her employment at EIG, the terms of which required her incentives be relinquished on departure. This buyout award was made on a like-for-like basis, at a level equal to the value forfeited and with vesting according to the same timescales. Malus and clawback conditions apply. The award was approximately 723% of her salary and is considered excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay stands at 11:1 which is considered acceptable.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

14. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP as Auditor of the Company
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 14.29% of audit fees during the year under review and 53.85% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises major concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

18. Approve the Takeover Panel waiver in relation to Buyback Authority
The company are proposing a Rule 9 waiver, which will exempt the Concept party from the requirement of the City Code that they make an offer for the entire share capital of the company. If the Company were to repurchase from persons other than the concert party all the ordinary shares for which it is seeking authority, their interest would increase from 37% to 41% of the issued share capital. The Concept party linked to this proposal will mean that the controlling shareholder will further increase their holdings, and therefore this requested waiver is not supported, given its impact on the governance of the company by minority shareholders.

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.
A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Given the potential for inequitable treatment of shareholders, opposition is recommended.

22. Authorize Capital Issuances for Use in Employee Stock Purchase Plans
Authority for a capital increase for up to 2% of share capital for employees participating to saving plans. The maximum discount applied will be 30% on the market share price. It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. However, the discount to be applied exceeds guidelines (20%). Opposition is therefore recommended.

JUPITER FUND MANAGEMENT PLC AGM - 11-05-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary did not increase for the year under review and is in line with the workforce who's salary increase by 4%. The CEO salary is in the median of the competitor group. The ratio of CEO to average employee pay has been estimated and is found acceptable at 7:1. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over the last five years is aligned to the change in TSR over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review was 436.9% of the salary (Annual Bonus: 360%, LTIP: 76.9%) and is consider excessive since is higher than 200%.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid for the year under review and non-audit fees represent 36.11% of audit fees on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary increase is in line with the workforce at 2% for the year under review. The CEO salary is in the lower quartile of the competitor group. The changes in CEO pay over the last five years are in line with the changes in Company's TSR performance over the same period. The CEO's total realized awards under all incentive schemes during the year amounts to 412.2% of salary (Annual bonus: 147% : PSP: 265.2%), which is excessive. 1. Approve Financial Statements

The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and have been audited and certified. However, the company depreciate assets beyond 2050 and this is not considered to be aligned with the goals from the Paris Agreement.

Directors and auditors of companies in extractive sectors are expected to state whether the financial statements or the accounts are Paris-aligned, or explain the reason if they are not. Alignment with the Paris Agreement should be considered in all financial decisions, as a framework to allocate capital in a way to manage risks and find opportunities in accordance with credible transition plans and targets to achieve net-zero. Failure to do so may expose the company to significant financial risks, including inability to access capital at accessible cost and shareholders should not support accounts that do not reflect accurately all financial impact from material risks, which could prevent the company from continuing as a going concern in the long term. Opposition is recommended.

5. Approve Second Section of the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. In addition, 25% of the short-term bonus for the CEO and GM depends on Hydrocarbon production (12.5%) which appears to be contradicting ENI's mission and just transition statement. The aim of just transition is to shift from an extractive economy to a regenerative economy, while linking variable bonus for the CEO to hydrocarbon production seems to be in contradiction to it. On aggregate, opposition is recommended.

It is proposed to approve the dividend expected for 2022 at EUR 0.88 per share for quarterly payment. The Shareholders' Remuneration Policy is based on the close correlation between the Brent price level and company performance. While there are no serious concerns with these dividends from distributable reserves, it is of concern that shareholders are remunerated based on the Brent price level, which is in apparent contradiction with the just transition and does not link shareholders' remuneration with the energy transition, rather with a business segment (fossil fuels) which is risky and may see increasing costs in the medium term. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

6. Approve Financial Statements and Allocation of Income

The Board seeks shareholders' approval for the consolidated and individual financial statements for the year under review. Disclosure is adequate. The financial statements have been audited and the auditors have not qualified their opinion. The reports have been made available to shareholders sufficiently prior to the date of the general meeting. The Board also proposes to distribute a dividend of USD 0.40 per share, which is covered by earnings. It would be welcomed that the Company submitted the approval of the financial statements and the allocation of income individually, under two separate resolutions. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues, particularly those highlighted as current watchlist issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders.

Directors and auditors of companies in extractive sectors are expected to state whether the financial statements or the accounts are Paris-aligned, or explain the reason if they are not. 10. Energy Transition Plan

The climate policy appears to be adequately linked to the governance of the company overall. The chair is indicated as being responsible for oversight of the climate strategy and members of the senior management have accrued significant experience in climate-related issues within the sector of the company.

While the company has pledged to review membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, it has not pledged to end memberships with these groups where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.

The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.

The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.

The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 but this commitment only relates carbon emission intensity, rather than absolute emissions. This is considered to be inconsistent with an adequate commitment to a full energy transition, as shareholders are unable to make an informed assessment on the material efforts to reduce emissions, and increase the resilience of the company in the long term.

The company has not pledged to refrain from financing new plans based on fossil fuels. Fossil fuels financing is risky, with the marginal cost of renewables being cheaper, and energy security being increasingly seen in terms of non-fossil sources.

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully quantified disclosed targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Total realized variable pay for the highest-paid director, the CEO, Justin Ash is not considered excessive at 216.76% of the salary (Annual Bonus: 72.60%, LTIP: 144.16%). The ratio of highest-paid director to average employee pay has been estimated and is found inappropriate at 33:1. Changes in CEO pay over the last five years are not considered in line with Company's financial performance over the same period. Rating: AD
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

7. Re-Elect Sir Ian Cheshire - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is not up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's Sustainability programme. As such, given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

The proposed authority is subject to an overall aggregate limit on political donations and expenditure of GBP 100,000. The Company did not make any political donations or incur any political expenditure and has no intention either now or in the future of doing so. However, the aggregate total amount exceeds recommended limits. An abstain vote is recommended.

19. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

CONDUIT HLDGS LTD AGM - 11-05-2022

2. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

6. Shareholder Resolution: Civil Rights and Non-Discrimination Audit Focused on "Non-Diverse" Employees
Proponent's argument:National Center for Public Policy Research requested that the Board of Directors commission an audit analyzing the Company's impacts on civil rights and non-discrimination, and the impacts of those issues on the Company's business. The audit may, in the Board's discretion, be conducted by an independent and unbiased third party with input from civil rights organizations, public-interest litigation groups, employees, communities in which the Company operates and other stakeholders, of all viewpoints and perspectives. A report on the audit, prepared at reasonable cost and omitting confidential or proprietary information, should be publicly disclosed on the Company's website. "If the Company is, in the name of equity, diversity and inclusion, committing illegal or unconscionable discrimination against employees deemed "non-diverse," then the Company will suffer in myriad ways- all of them both unforgivable and avoidable. In developing the audit and report, the Company should consult civil-rights and public-interest law groups - but it must not compound error with bias by relying only on left-leaning organizations. Rather, it must consult groups across the spectrum of viewpoints. This includes right-leaning civil-rights groups representing people of color, such as the Woodson Center and Project 21, and groups that defend the rights and liberties of all Americans, not merely the ones that many companies label "diverse." All Americans have civil rights; to behave otherwise is to invite disaster. Similarly, when including employees in its audit, the Company must allow employees to speak freely without fear of reprisal or disfavor, and in confidential ways. Too many employers have established company stances that themselves chill contributions from employees who disagree with the company's asserted positions, and then have pretended that the employees who have been empowered by the companies' partisan positioning represent the true and only voice of all employees. This by itself creates a deeply hostile workplace for some groups of employees, and is both immoral and likely illegal."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "CVS Health does not make employment decisions based on race, ethnicity or gender; rather, the company hires and promotes the most qualified individuals. More than 24,000 of our colleagues participate in the colleague resource groups (CRGs) that we sponsor. Our Black Colleague Resource Group, among others, have provided invaluable contributions through conversations with senior leaders to share their experiences and provide feedback, insight and guidance. Our CRGs also offer the opportunity to join groups as an ally. In 2020, our CRGs led Let's Connect virtual sessions to gather colleagues to discuss topics like family care, work-life balance and virtual leadership as well as diversity, equity, inclusion and justice topics like intersectionality. In addition, our CRGs committed to increasing engagement with colleagues by providing educational information, topical webinars and other content-sharing opportunities. Our approach to diversity takes into account the full spectrum of the many populations we serve and the variety of ways our business impacts people – and society at large. As we move forward in this work, we will continue to hold ourselves accountable and strive to create a shared experience to bring our communities together. "

PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of staff diversity lie in widening the perspectives on human resources brought to bear on decision-making, avoiding too great a similarity of attitude and helping companies understand their workforces as a kaleidoscope of customers, marketplace, supply chain and society as a whole. Disclosure surrounding the company's staff composition allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including the ability to attract and retain key talent. Disclosure of a policy to improve diversity and goals that have been set to meet this policy also reassures shareholders that a diverse board is not just an aspiration but a goal. However, this resolution appears to be filed by a right-wing policy think tanks as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented on the board as well as so-called liberal perspectives. Given the diversity that already exists on company's staff, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

1j. Elect J. Albert Smith Jr. - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. In addition, at the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO's salary is in the lower quartile of the Company's comparator group. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable. The total realised rewards under all incentive scheme for the CEO is not considered acceptable standing at 503%. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is 35:1, which is not considered appropriate. Rating: BD

Chair of the Board. Not considered independent as he is the Managing Partner of EPIC Investment Partners LLP, an associate of EPIC Investments LLP, the Company's largest shareholder. He is also not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board.
Chair of the Nomination Committee and no target has been set to increase the level of female representation on the Board, which currently falls below the recommended 33% target. It is not clear from company reporting that the recommendations of the Parker report (2016), which seeks to improve the ethnic and cultural diversity of UK boards, are being sufficiently addressed and acted upon.
As the company has not constituted a director responsible for sustainability at board level, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's Sustainability programme. As such, given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability in addition to other concerns highlighted, an oppose vote is recommended.

11. To re-appoint KPMG LLP as Auditor
KPMG proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state.
PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Variable remuneration for the year under review is 90.4% of the base salary. CEO pay ratio is 17:1, in line with the best practice line. Rating: BC
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.90% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

16. Approve Performance Share Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.

LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

11. Approve the Remuneration Report

All elements of each director cash remuneration are disclosed. Pension contributions and entitlements are fully disclosed. The CEO's salary is ranked in the lower quartile range of a peer comparator group. Balance of CEO realize pay with financial performance is considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over the last five years is aligned to the change in TSR over the same period. Variable remuneration for the year under review is 81.92% of the base salary, which is under the limit of 200%. CEO Pay ratio is considered excessive at 22:1, being 20:1 the limit set by best practice guidelines. Rating: AB

15. Approve Share Incentive Plan

It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.

Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

18. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to the Issue of Regulatory Capital Convertible Instruments

Authority to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP 1,250,000,000, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of Regulatory Capital Convertible Instruments. The amount of this authority is, in aggregate, equivalent to approximately 17.6% of the issued ordinary share capital of the Company. Regulatory Capital Convertible Instruments are debt securities which convert into ordinary shares in certain prescribed circumstances. They are additional tier 1 ('AT1') instruments which convert into ordinary shares of the Company should the Company's common equity tier 1 ratio fall below a contractually defined trigger point. They benefit from a specific regulatory capital treatment under European Union legislation.

The use of Regulatory Capital Convertible Instrument is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. They are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivizes equity investors from putting more new funds in the banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. There are important concerns about the destabilizing effect of such instruments on both the instrument price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 1.72% of audit fees during the year under review and 4.10% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

O.13. Approve Company's Climate Transition Plan (Advisory)
It is proposed to approve Company's Climate Transition Plan. The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.

The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.
The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting.
The company has disclosed a quantified plan to phase out coal from its power generation mix before 2040, which is considered to be in line with the required energy transition. Coal is the most carbon intensive fossil fuel and phasing it out is considered to be a minimum commitment in order to show adherence to the target of limiting global warming to 1.5C. A growing number of countries are limiting additional public support to the utility sector using coal to generate electricity and renewable energy options are currently the most cost-effective new sources in most markets.
However, there does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.
The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.
Overall, opposition is recommended.

In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.
A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Given the potential for inequitable treatment of shareholders, opposition is recommended.

11. Authorise the Board to Fix Directors' Remuneration
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market; support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting; as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. Abstention from voting this resolution is recommended.

12. Appoint the Auditors and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 18.42% of audit fees during the year under review and 17.94% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

HOWDEN JOINERY GROUP PLC AGM - 12-05-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 98.7, Abstain: 1.3, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO's salary is in the median quartile of PIRC's comparator group. Balance of CEO realize pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over the last five years is not aligned to the change in TSR over the same period. Variable remuneration for the year under review is 490.92% (Annual Bonus: 150 and PSP: 340.92%) of the base salary. CEO pay ratio is 37:1, not in line with the best practice guidelines. Rating: AC
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

13. Appoint KPMG LLP as Auditors
No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. KPMG proposed as new auditor in replacement of Deloitte. Auditor rotation is considered a positive factor. Acceptable proposal.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

9. Discharge the Board and President
Standard resolution. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended.

10. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

16a. Approve New Executive Share Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares or rights to shares. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary increased by 1.9% for the year under review and is in line with the increase of the workforce salary which increased by 2.7%. However, the CEO salary is on the upper quartile of the competitor group which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review is 299.4% of the salary (Annual Bonus: 160.6% of the salary, LTIP: 31.2% of the salary and Other: 107.6% of the salary)The ratio of CEO pay compared to the average employee is considered excessive at 45:1. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. THE GYM GROUP PLC AGM - 12-05-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 98.9, Abstain: 1.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve Remuneration Policy
The board is seeking shareholder approval for the remuneration policy. The variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped and the CEO's payout is considered to be in line with best practice. In addition, the company has disclosed past achievements and quantified future targets. There are malus and clawback clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Overall, the remuneration structure is considered to be appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide,exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). The 'binding' pay policy vote has not been effective. The disappointment with the policy vote comes across in the levels of dissenting votes on remuneration reports, which disclose outcomes under previously agreed policies. When there are contentious circumstances with executives leaving the instrument that really matters is the service contract. As such, the concept of alignment with shareholders' for pay purposes is a fallacy, because the risk and responsibilities are different. Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
Disclosure: All elements of the single figure table are adequately disclosed.
Balance: The CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO salary is the lower quartile of a peer comparator group. The total realized rewards under all incentive schemes are not considered excessive at 44.7% of salary (Annual Bonus 44.7% and LTIP 0%). It is noted that no LTIP is given for the financial year 2021 which is welcomed. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is considered excessive at 30:1. The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over four years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period.

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce, since CEO salary increase by 2% for the year under review and the workforce salary increase by 7%. However, the CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of the Company's comparator group which raises concerns over the excessiveness of his pay. The changes in CEO pay over the last five years are not considered in line with the Changes in the Company's TSR performance. Total variable pay for the year under review is considered excessive, amounting to 220.9% of salary, it is recommended that total variable pay is limited to 200% of salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 35:1, it is recommended that the ratio does not exceed 20:1.

3. Approve Net Zero - From Ambition to Action Report

The company is submitting a non-binding advisory vote seeking shareholder approval with regards to its net zero ambition. BP has provided a report detailing its proposed pathway to net zero by 2050 including interim targets, which were enhanced in February 2022, to include a 50% reduction in operational emissions on an absolute basis by 2030 against a 2019 benchmark. The latest Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) report outlined the need for emissions to fall by about 45 percent from 2010 levels by 2030. The company has also set targets in relation to capital expenditure, anticipating more than 40% will apply to the transitional growth business (renewables/EV charging/bioenergy/hydrogen) by 2025. The company has further enhanced emissions reduction targets to include a net zero intensity target relating to the energy products that it sells, including the physically traded sales of energy products.

Other notable elements of BP's transition plan include the aim to set expectations relating to the role the company plays in climate advocacy, specifically in relation to the trade associations to which it belongs, where scope is provided to leave associations that become obstructive to achieving its climate ambitions. Further, the climate policy appears to be adequately linked to the governance of the company overall. The chair is indicated as being responsible for oversight of the climate strategy and members of the senior management have accrued significant experience in climate-related issues within the sector of the company. The company also aims to tie its climate ambitions to the compensation structure, including allocating a percentage of remuneration linked to emissions reductions for executives and around 22,000 employees.

Whilst it is clear that BP is taking its responsibility to transition to a low carbon business seriously, concerns remain over the veracity of the pathway accompanying the net zero ambition. The fundamental divergence between BP's strategy and that of the IPCC's and IEA's most recent assessment being BP's continued benefit from developing and sustaining its hydrocarbon business. Concerns have also been raised regarding the reliability of the emissions data the company is basing its reduction targets on, leading to calls for BP to disclose complete, group-wide emissions linked to the products it sells in order to ensure the existing targets can be considered robust, this is particularly important in the absence of independently verified science-based targets. There are also concerns that the existing targets are overly reliant on divestment as opposed to the internal displacement of hydrocarbon to renewable energy.

Whilst it is encouraging to see a section within the plan on ensuring a just transition, there are no defined targets set for how social and workforce impacts will be managed. The company reports that these metrics and targets will be shared in 2023.

The net zero ambition and pathway outlined by the company represents meaningful and continued improvement in how BP is attempting to mitigate the environmental impact of the buisness. Whilst the plan is considered credible in terms of its ambition, as detailed previously, concerns remain over some elements of the proposed pathway. On balance, abstention is recomended.

4. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Charitable Contributions
Proponent's argument:National Legal and Policy Center requested that Verizon Communications Inc. provide a report, published on the company's website and updated semi-annually – and omitting proprietary information and at reasonable cost – that discloses, itemizes and quantifies all Company charitable donations, aggregated by recipient name & address each year for contributions that exceed $999 annually. "Verizon Communications Inc.'s assets belong to its shareholders. The expenditure or distribution of corporate assets, including charitable contributions, should be consistent with shareholder interests. Accordingly, the Company's policies and procedures for charitable contributions should be disclosed to shareholders. Company executives exercise wide discretion over the use of corporate assets for charitable purposes. Absent a system of transparency and accountability for charitable contributions, Company executives may use Company assets for objectives that are not shared by and may be inimical to the interests of the Company and its shareholders. Current disclosure is insufficient to allow the Company's Board, its shareholders, and its current and prospective customers to fully evaluate the charitable use of corporate assets. " Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "We aim to be transparent about charitable donations and publish information on our giving approach, the rules applicable to charitable contributions and information about individual contributions that we have made. PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company-approved charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship. However, this resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company's customers can donate. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company provides donations to a variety of charities, including those that some shareholders may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be equally acceptable. Given the diversity that already exists among the organisations available for donations, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADB. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

3. Appoint the Auditors

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 12.94% of audit fees during the year under review and 12.21% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

4. Amend Existing Omnibus Plan
It is proposed to amend the 2006 EIP. The Board requests the addition of 80 million shares of common stock to the 2006 EIP. These 80 million shares represent approximately 2.0% of outstanding shares of common stock as of March 1, 2022.
There are concerns with the Plan as the it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive. As a result, opposition is recommended.

SECURE TRUST BANK PLC AGM - 12-05-2022

13. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. The variable remuneration did not exceed 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Vote Cast: Oppose

15. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights (AT1)
Shareholder approval is being sought to authorize the Board to allot shares in the Company or grant rights to subscribe for, or to convert any security into, shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP 2,487,078 in connection with the issue of Additional Tier 1 Securities ('AT1 Securities'), representing approximately 33% of the issued ordinary share capital of the Company, excluding treasury shares, as at 29 March 2021 with pre-emption rights. This authority expires at next AGM and is in addition to the authority in resolution 14.
The use of convertible Securities is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. These securities are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in the banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Past events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilizing effect of convertible securities on both their own price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

17. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

18. Issue Shares for Cash (AT1)
The authority sought is limited to 10% of the Company's issued share capital and expires at the next AGM. This exceeds the recommended 5% maximum. An oppose vote is recommended.

As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

FBD HOLDINGS AGM - 12-05-2022

5. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

CINEWORLD GROUP PLC AGM - 12-05-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of each director's cash remuneration and pension contribution are disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce as the CEO salary did not increase for the year under review. The CEO salary for the year under review is considered to be around the median range of a peer comparator group. Changes in CEO pay over the last five years are not considered in line with Company's financial performance over the same period. For the year under review variable pay was 100% of the salary (Annual Bonus: 100%, LTIP: nil) it is noted that no LTIP award was vested which is commendable. The ratio of CEO to average employee pay has been estimated at 123:1 and is not acceptable, it is suggested that the pay ratio to be at 20:1.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role. In addition, it is noted that on the 2021 Annual General Meeting Mr. Moore received significant opposition in his re-election of 13.8% of the votes and the company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. 14. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditors
PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid for the year under review and non-audit fees represents 14.71% of audit fees on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

17. Approve Temporary Suspension of the Borrowing Limit in the Articles of Association
It proposed to amend the borrowing restrictions set out in the company's articles of association. The proposed limit would increase the limit on borrowing powers, such that the limit will be higher than existing reserves. The use of fixed amount borrowings, unless stated as the lowest of a multiple of capital and reserves, is not supported. Should there be a depletion of reserves, the company could potentially have a very high multiplier on borrowings. Opposition is therefore recommended.

It is proposed that a general meeting of the Company other than an annual general meeting may be called on not less than 14 clear days' notice.
It is considered that all companies should aim to provide at least 20 working days notice for general meetings in order to give shareholders sufficient time to consider what are often complex issues. However, as the proposed change is permissible by the Companies Act, It is noted that in the 2021 Annual General Meeting the company received significant opposition in the resolution of 13.22% of the votes. The company did not disclosed how it address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore, abstention is recommended.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO's salary is in line with the rest of the Company, however, the CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. Changes in CEO pay in the last five years are not considered in line with changes in TSR during the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review was excessive at 245.2% of salary (Annual Bonus 127.5%, LTIP 117.7% ). The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is acceptable at 20:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). E.ON SE AGM - 12-05-2022

3. Approve Discharge of Management Board for Fiscal Year 2021
Standard proposal. Although no wrongdoing has been identified, the company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. As such, abstention is recommended on the discharge.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 99.9, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.1,

4. Approve Discharge of Supervisory Board for Fiscal Year 2021
Standard proposal. Although no wrongdoing has been identified, the company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. As such, abstention is recommended on the discharge.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 98.7, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.3,

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

PAX GLOBAL TECHNOLOGY LTD AGM - 12-05-2022

3. Elect Nie Guoming - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Elect Wu Min - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. Abstention from voting this resolution is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

6. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees were not paid during the year under review and represented 9.51% of audit fees on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
The authority is exceeding 10% of the share capital and expires at the next AGM. The authority exceeds recommended limits. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Extend the General Share Issue Mandate to Repurchased Shares
The directors seek authority to re-issue shares repurchased under the authority proposed at this meeting. The effect of the proposal, if approved, the limit for issuance of shares would exceed 10% of issued share capital. Given the concerns over dilution of the shareholder rights, opposition is recommended.

MICHELIN AGM - 13-05-2022

1. Approve Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.7, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.2,

6. Approve Remuneration Policy of General Managers
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, there are no claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.6, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 5.3,

8. Approve Compensation Report of Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to executives with an advisory vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated, although there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out.

20. Authorize Issuance of Equity or Equity-Linked Securities without Preemptive Rights up to Aggregate Nominal Amount of EUR 35 Million
Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital. However; the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 93.6, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 6.4,

21. Approve Issuance of Equity or Equity-Linked Securities for Private Placements, up to Aggregate Nominal Amount of EUR 35 Million
The Board requests authority to approve a global authority for the issue of capital related securities without pre-emptive rights by private placement. The authorisation is valid up to 10% of the issued share capital over a period of 26 months. This authority is not requested in connection with a particular operation and has not been duly justified by the Company. Opposition is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 90.4, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 9.5,

22. Authorize Board to Set Issue Price for 10 Percent Per Year of Issued Capital Pursuant to Issue Authority without Preemptive Rights
The Board requests authority to issue capital related securities without adhering to the general pricing conditions. Under this authority, the company would be authorised to issues shares at a discount of 10% up to a total of 10% of the issued share capital over a period of 12 months at a time, until a total duration of the authority of 26 months. Given concerns over the level of discount and the amount of the authority, opposition is recommended.

23. Authorize Board to Increase Capital in the Event of Additional Demand Related to Delegation Submitted to Shareholder Vote Under Items 19 to 22
In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.
A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Given the potential for inequitable treatment of shareholders, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 89.9, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 10.1,

26. Authorize Capital Issuances for Use in Employee Stock Purchase Plans
Authority for a capital increase for up to 2% of share capital for employees participating to saving plans. The maximum discount applied will be 30% on the market share price. It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. However, the discount to be applied exceeds guidelines (20%). Opposition is therefore recommended.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce. However, the CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The changes in Company's TSR performance over the last five years are considered in line with the changes in CEO pay over the same period. The CEO's variable pay for the year under review represents 145.9% of his salary (Annual Bonus: 121.4% : LTIP: 24.5%) which is not excessive. Ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is unacceptable at 50:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

15. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: BDA. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 87.8, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 12.0,

3. Approve New Employee Omnibus Plan
The Plan is presented as an omnibus plan, which means that bundled within the same official plan there are various incentive plan elements aimed at rewarding different groups of employees, officers and executives. However, it is noted that the Compensation Committee retains the power to select employees to receive awards and determine the terms and conditions of awards (and also note that 'management employees' appear most likely to be the principal beneficiaries of the Plan). On this basis, opposition is recommended.

1h. Elect Jack T. Taylor - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of nine years. It is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Additionally, at the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

O.2.2. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

7. Shareholder Resolution: Disclose Director Skills and Qualifications Including Ideological Perspectives

Proponent's argument: National Legal and Policy Center requested that the Board of JPMorgan Chase & Co. adopt a policy to encourage greater diversity for the Board of Directors. This would be accomplished by requiring that the initial lists of candidates from which new management-supported director nominees, recruited from outside the company, that are chosen by the board or relevant committee, should include qualified diverse candidates. The Policy should provide that any third-party consultant asked to furnish an Initial List will be requested to include such candidates. "We believe boards that incorporate diverse perspectives can think more critically and oversee corporate managers more effectively. While the Board currently boasts strong representation with experience from the upper echelons of corporate and financial decision-making, it could additionally benefit from individuals whose life experience and perspectives are diverse."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "Candidates are nominated based on the skills, experience, personal attributes and tenure needed to guide the Firm's strategy, and to effectively oversee the Firm's risk management and internal control framework, and management's execution of its responsibilities. As a result, the Board represents a diverse mix of viewpoints and maintains fresh perspectives. The Board's recruitment process has resulted in the election of three female directors in the past four years, one of whom is a person of color, and two of whom have experience in technology, which is an important component of the Firm's business strategy. Overall, our Board is comprised of people with diverse experiences, skills and backgrounds that collectively facilitate effective oversight. The Board recruitment process, including its commitment to diversity, is transparent [...]. Our director nominees reflect diversity across age, tenure, gender and race, as well as skills, experience, perspectives and viewpoints. In addition, this proxy statement includes expanded disclosures for each director nominee in a matrix format, which lists the experience and skills of each director, along with gender, race, ethnicity and other characteristics, enabling shareholders to further evaluate the skills, experience, intellectual strengths and perspectives of each director nominee.

PIRC analysis:The potential benefits of board diversity lie in widening the perspectives on business issues brought to bear on decision-making, avoiding too great a similarity of attitude and helping companies understand their customers, marketplace, supply chain and workforces. Disclosure surrounding the board's composition allows shareholders to consider board diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the Company. Disclosure of a policy to improve diversity and goals that have been set to meet this policy also reassures shareholders that a diverse board is not just an aspiration but a goal. However, this resolution has been filed by a right-wing policy think tanks as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's board diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented on the board as well as so-called liberal perspectives. Given the diversity that already exists on company's board, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years on the Board. In addition, it is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. In addition, as the company do not have a Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. 12. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of each director's cash remuneration and pension contribution are disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO's salary is in the median of the Company's comparator group. Changes in CEO pay over the last five years are considered in line with Company's financial performance over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review amounts to 224.4% of the salary (Annual Bonus: 124.6%, PSP: 99.8%) and is considered excessive. The CEO pay ratio stands at 79:1 which is considered excessive.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

15. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The change in the CEO salary was in line with the workforce as the CEO. The CEO salary is in the median of the competitor group. Changes in CEO salary over the last five years are not considered in line with Company financial performance over the same period. The CEO variable pay during the year is not considered excessive at 88.25% of the salary. It is noted that no LTIP award is vested for the year under review. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is slightly above the proposed limit at 25:1. PIRC consider adequate a CEO pay ratio of 20:1.

3. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 2.86% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

2. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the remuneration report. No variable remuneration (either short- or long-term) was paid during the year to the current CEO and General Manager, which is welcomed. On the other hand, there are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration of the outgoing CEO and GM. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, he was paid a severance that corresponded to four times his salary for 2021, pro rata. On balance, opposition is recommended.

4. Approve 2022 Short-Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, the Beneficiaries of the Plan shall be identified and the related Total Incentives calculated, based on the achievement of the performance conditions and according to predetermined criteria and parameters. For the Beneficiaries, 60% of the Total Incentive shall be paid upfront and the remaining 40% will be deferred for a two-year period, the payment of the latter will be determined in accordance with the variation of the average trading price of the Saipem stock and in accordance with the provisions of the Regulation. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

8. Approve Compensation Report of Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Corporate Officers with a binding vote. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated, mostly for the individual and collective non-financial goals. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. 22. Authorize up to 1.2 Percent of Issued Capital for Use in Restricted Stock Plans Reserved for Regulated Persons
It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. Allocations carried out pursuant to this resolution include a minimum vesting period of: two years for shares allocated to persons treated as regulated persons and corporate officers, as payment for the portion of variable remuneration which is deferred for two years; three years for shares allocated to persons regulated under CRD V other than corporate officers, as payment for the portion of variable remuneration which is deferred for three years; and four years for long-term voluntary profit-sharing allocated to corporate officers. A retention period of at least six months will be required following the vesting. While payment in shares of deferred variable compensation is welcomed, the rest of the plan s considered to be an LTIP, for which the vesting is considered to be insufficient.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

GCP ASSET BACKED INCOME FUND LIMITED AGM - 17-05-2022

9. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers CI LLP ("PwC") as auditors of the Company.
PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

11. Approval of authority to hold treasury shares
The Companies Law allows companies to hold shares acquired by market purchases as treasury shares, rather than having to cancel the shares. Up to 10 per cent of the issued shares may be held in treasury and may be subsequently cancelled or sold for cash in the market. This gives the Company the ability to reissue shares quickly and cost efficiently, thereby improving liquidity and providing the Company with additional flexibility in the management of its capital base. As at the Latest Practicable Date, 2,200,000 Ordinary Shares have been repurchased by the Company and are held in treasury which represents approximately 0.5 per cent of the issued share capital of the Company as at the Latest Practicable Date (excluding any Ordinary Shares held in treasury).
Resolutions to buy back shares will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders, and as this proposal is functional to the authority sought under resolution 12, opposition is recommended.

12. Authorise Share Repurchase
Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager), we would like to see a public statement:

- addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

4. Approve Remuneration Policy

No significant chnages were proposed. Overall disclosure is acceptable. Under the policy, variable remuneration is capped at 50% of salary which is considered acceptable. No LTIP is in use which is in line with best practice. The policy on recruitment and termination does not raise concerns.
Annual Bonus performance measures are, Financial (Adjusted EBITDA for the year/Budgeted EBITDA) (20%), Production (20%), Exploration (5%), Net increase in resources upgraded from inferred to measured and indicated (5%), Reserves replenishment(4%), Exploration Projects Progress (8%), Progress compared to project plan for three key development projects (12%), Human Resources (3%), Safety (10%), Communities(3%), Synergies and teamwork (2%). The Annual Bonus is paid in cash, it would be preferable 50% of the Bonus to deferred to shares for a three-year period. Since the company do not have long-term incentives and the operation of Mexican law makes it difficult to adopt clawback and malus arrangements. There is however scope within the bonus scheme for bonus awards to be adjusted downward at the discretion of the Remuneration Committee, which is welcomed. The CEO is employed under a contract of employment with Servicios Administrativos Fresnillo S.A. de C.V., a subsidiary of Fresnillo plc. Mr Alvídrez contract commenced on 15 August 2012 and is governed by Mexican Federal Labour Law. Mr Alvídrez service agreement does not have a fixed term and may be terminated in writing by either party. There is no provision in Mr Alvídrez service agreement entitling him to additional compensation for termination other than those required by Mexican labour laws for termination without cause. No benefits are payable on termination.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval at general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties, including the new s172 duties, should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'. As such, PIRC may recommend opposition on any remuneration policy or report proposals containing variable remuneration.

Chair. The Chair is not considered to be independent as he was appointed to the Board by Industrias Peñoles, S.A.B. de C.V which owns 74.99 per cent of the Company's issued share capital and is controlled by the Baillères Family Trust. In addition, it is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Oppose vote is therefore recommended.

7. Re-elect Arturo Fernandez - Designated Non-Executive
Non-Executive Director. However, there is sufficient independent representation on the Board. In addition, Mr. Fernandez is Designated non-executive director for workforce engagement. It would be preferred that companies appoint directors from the workforce rather than designate a non-executive director (NED). Support will be recommended for the election or re-election of designated NEDs provided that no significant employment relations issues have been identified.
Mr. Fernandez is also Chair of the Sustainability Committee. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. Overall an abstain vote is recommended.

EY proposed. No non-audit fees were paid for the year under review and non-audit fees represents 6.09% of audit fees on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. THERMO FISHER SCIENTIFIC INC. AGM - 18-05-2022

1.a. Elect Marc N. Casper - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

1.b. Elect Nelson J. Chai - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and chair of the audit committee. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. 13. Elect Board: Slate Election
Proposal to renew the Board with a bundled election. Elect Steven Langan is proposed as New Director. Although slate elections are not considered to be best practice, they are common in this market. There is sufficient independent representation on the Board after the meeting as resulting from this slate of candidates. However, there are several concerns with the governance of the board: the Chair of the Audit Committee is considered and it is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair; the chair of the nomination and remuneration committee is also not considered independent as is the past CEO, which is considered it could be an obstacle for a genuine rotation within the board, while it is also considered that chair should be independent and should not carry on their influence on the board after they retire; lastly, as the board is overall responsible for the governance of sustainability at this company, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, and together with the other concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce, since the salary for the CEO increased by 2% for the year under review and the workforce salary increased by 5.1%. However, the CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review was 186.6% of the salary (Annual Bonus: 135%, PSP: 51.6%) and is not excessive. The ratio of CEO to average employee pay is not considered acceptable at 26:1.PIRC consider adequate a ratio of 20:1
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

4. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP as Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 5.26% of audit fees during the year under review and 5.88% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. 19.a. Approve Performance Share Plan LTIP 2022 for Key Employees
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

21. Approve Equity Plan 2019 Financing Through Transfer of Class B Shares
It is proposed to authorise the board to transfer company's own shares, on one or several occasions prior to the next Annual General Meeting. The shares may only be transferred in conjunction with the financing of company acquisitions and other types of strategic investments and acquisitions, and the transfers may not exceed the maximum number of treasury shares held by the company at any given time. Transfer of own shares can also be made in another manner in conjunction with the acquisition of companies or operations, where transfer of own shares may be made with deviation from the shareholders' preferential rights. Payment for shares transferred in this manner may be made in cash or through a non-cash issue or offsetting of claims against the company, or on other specific terms.
This authority is not requested in connection with a particular operation and has not been duly justified by the Company. Opposition is therefore recommended.

MONDELEZ INTERNATIONAL INC AGM - 18-05-2022

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACA. Based on this rating, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 90.8, Abstain: 2.9, Oppose/Withhold: 6.3,

3. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 1.34% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.66% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.4, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 4.3,

1b. Elect Charles E. Bunch - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. Chair of the Governance Committee. As the Chair of the Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.8, Abstain: 1.6, Oppose/Withhold: 1.6,

1j. Elect Dirk Van de Put - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

5.1. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 22.22% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.11% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.3, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.7,

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 60.3, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 39.7,

7. Approve New Executive Share Option Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted stock options, each of which will give right to one share. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure. LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

15. Authorise Share Repurchase
Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager), we would like to see a public statement:
- addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

3b. Elect Ian Charles Stone - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3c. Authorise the Board to Fix Directors' Remuneration
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market; support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting; as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. Opposition from voting this resolution is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Appoint the Auditors and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 36.49% of audit fees during the year under review and 32.63% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

5. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
The authority is exceeding 10% of the share capital and expires at the next AGM. The authority exceeds recommended limits. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Extend the General Share Issue Mandate to Repurchased Shares
The directors seek authority to re-issue shares repurchased under the authority proposed at this meeting. The effect of the proposal, if approved, the limit for issuance of shares would exceed 10% of issued share capital. Given the concerns over dilution of the shareholder rights, opposition is recommended.

SCHRODER UK PUBLIC PRIVATE TRUST PLC AGM - 18-05-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report

It is noted that the company has not paid a dividend during the year, and there is no a vote on the dividend policy.
The company have disclosed a voting policy indicating how they vote on issues relating to investment and investee companies. In addition, it is noted ESG matters are taken into account in investment decisions which is welcomed.
It is noted the investment management and company's secretarial functions are performed by the same entity. Administration and company secretarial duties are undertaken by the Investment Manager of the company. Independence from the management company is considered a key governance issue affecting investment trusts. The interests of the fund manager are considered to be in conflict with those of shareholders and the company due to the impact of management fees. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Re-appoint Grant Thornton UK LLP as auditor of the Company

Grant Thornton UK LLP proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. Abstention is recommended.

PIRELLI & CO AGM - 18-05-2022

2.1. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2.2. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

3.1. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. The 2022-2024 LTI Plan is based on cash and makes no provision for granting shares, share options or other financial instruments. The medium-long term cash incentive is established as a percentage of the gross annual base salary (GABS). By applying the rolling mechanism, the 2022-2024 LTI Plan confirms the three-year incentive percentages set forth in the 2021-2023 LTI Plan which may range, if targets are achieved, from a 15% minimum for Executives to a 70% maximum for Directors holding specific offices to whom further specific duties have been attributed. There is a maximum limit to the incentive that can be achieved if all the maximum performance objectives are achieved, which ranges from a minimum of 40% for Executives to a maximum of 200% for Directors holding specific offices to whom further specific duties have been attributed. In addition, the following types of objective have been set, all independent of each other, and their weights: cumulative Group Net Cash Flow (before dividends), with weight of 40% of the total LTI bonus; The Total Shareholder Return ("TSR") based on the stock market performance of Pirelli's shares, with respect to a panel of peers (TIER 1: Continental, Michelin, Nokian, Goodyear, and Bridgestone), with a weight of 40%; two Sustainability indicators: Dow Jones Sustainability World Index ATX Auto Component sector and CO2 Emissions Reduction, each with a weight of 10%. For all the objectives indicated above there is a minimum value (so-called "access threshold") associated with payment of an incentive of 75% of the incentive achievable at target level.
Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

3.2. Approve Adjustment of the Mechanisms of the Quantification of the Objectives included in the Three-year Monetary Incentive Plan (2020-2022 cycle)
It is proposed to amend (i) the Amendments to sections 1.1, 1.2, 3.2, 4.8 were made in order to update the 2020-2022 LTI Plan upon the appointment of the Deputy-CEO, who is beneficiary pro rata temporis of such LTI Plan with effect as of January 2021; (ii) the Amendments to sections 1.3 and 1.4 take account of a number of relevant updates made regarding the ownership and organisational structure of the Company and of the remuneration system; and (iii) the Amendments to sections 2.1, 2.2-2.3, 3.1, 3.2, 3.3, 3.5, 3.6, 4.23 were made in order to take account of any negative effects determined by the worsening of the geopolitical and macroeconomic scenario of reference following the worsening of the crisis. In consideration of such negative effects, an adjustment was approved which makes it possible to reduce the objectives of the existing STI and LTI plans (meaning also the LTI Plan for the 2020-2022 cycle in this Information Document) in order to guarantee the alignment of the company objectives with the objectives underlying the Management incentive system.
Revising targets retroactively, in order to make them more reachable by executives is considered to be a serious violation of shareholder accountability. Some of the reasons why these amendments are sought i.e. geopolitical instability or other force majeur should be included in the ordinary administration of a plan and, if they occur, executives should be on the same plan as workers and shareholders in absorbing the consequences. These amendments, besides not tackling any of the concerns over the existing LTIPs, detach substantially management from shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

AAK AB, KARLSHAMN AGM - 18-05-2022

12. Elect Board: Slate Election and Ratify Auditor
Proposal to renew the Board and Auditor with a bundled election. Although slate elections are not considered to be best practice, they are common in this market. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board after the meeting as resulting from this slate of candidates. Additionally, KPMG has been proposed as auditor. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. It is regrettable that these proposals have not been made separately. On the grounds of insufficient board independence, opposition is recommended.

13. Elect Nomination Committee
It is proposed that the Nomination Committee shall consist of the representatives of the major shareholders and the Chairman of the Board. As the Chairman of the proposed Nomination Committee is a Director, the composition of the committee does not meet best practice guidelines. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

It is proposed a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to receive shares in exchange for part of the reinvestment of their salary. The shares resulting from reinvestment will be matched by free shares awarded by the Company. While re-investment of the bonus in shares, or payment of part or all of the bonus in shares, are considered positive practice, share matching plans are viewed as a de facto discount for executives to buy company shares. They can eventually result in excessive payments versus performance. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

18. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

5. Appoint the Auditors: Ebner Stolz GmbH & Co. KG
Ebner Stolz GmbH & Co. KG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 9.02% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.87% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO's salary is in the median quartile of PIRC's comparator group. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over three years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Variable remuneration for the year under review is 141.42% of base salary. Total realized rewards under variable remuneration are considered acceptable. The CEO to average employee pay ratio is not considered acceptable at 51:1. Rating: AC
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

17. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.
Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted stock options, each of which will give right to one share.

Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure. LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

3.7. Approve Discharge of Management Board Member Stuart Lewis for Fiscal Year 2021
Standard proposal. The company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. Additionally, at the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. Finally, it is considered that the allegations surrounding potential money laundering have not been adequately resolved at this stage, and that it would not be in shareholders best interests to approve the discharge before this is resolved. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended.

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

8. Authorize Use of Financial Derivatives when Repurchasing Shares
It is proposed to approve authority to use financial derivatives to repurchase and use capital stock within legal boundaries. Authority is sought for a period of 18 months. Within EU regulation, companies are required to maintain safe harbour conditions, which generally limit share buybacks with derivatives from within by limiting the possibilities of derivatives used. Given the concerns with the corresponding share repurchase resolution, opposition is recommended.

As the authority would also include bonds convertible and without pre-emptive rights, the amount under this authority exceeds guidelines for issues of shares without pre-emptive rights.

NEXT PLC AGM - 19-05-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 98.8, Abstain: 0.8, Oppose/Withhold: 0.3,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO's salary is in line with the workforce. The salary of the CEO is in the upper quartile of the competitor group. The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. The CEO's total realized rewards under all incentive schemes amounts to approximately 400% of his base salary (Annual Bonus: 150% & LTIP: 251.33%) and is considered excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is unacceptable at 81:1, it is recommended that the ratio does not exceed 20:1. Rating: AD

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

10. Re-Elect Michael Roney - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is not up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's Sustainability programme. As such, given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 84.4, Abstain: 3.7, Oppose/Withhold: 11.9,

14. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 7.03% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.09% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

18. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.9, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 2.9,

20. Authorize the off-market purchases of own shares
As in previous years, the company seeks authority to enter into off-market contingent purchase contracts with any of Goldman Sachs International, UBS AG, BNP Paribas and Barclays Bank plc under which shares may be purchased off-market at a discount to the market price prevailing at the date each contract is entered into. The maximum which the Company would be permitted to purchase pursuant to this authority would be lower of 3 million shares or a total cost of up to GBP 200 million. The contracts would enable the company to make share purchases at all times, including close periods, such as prior to the announcement of interim and full year results, under contingent forward trades.
The authority represents approximately 2.3% of the issued share capital. This authority will be subject to the 14.99% limit subject to shareholders approval in resolution 17 above. There is a concern regarding the potential repurchase of shares during a closed trading period, as this off market authority may potentially allow for transactions to still occur. Therefore an oppose vote is recommended.

O.2. Approve Consolidated Financial Statements and Statutory Reports
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

1l. Elect Craig A. Menear - Chair
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

2. Ratify KPMG LLP as Auditors
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 4.13% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.91% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADB. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.6, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 5.0,

4. Amend Existing Omnibus Plan
It is proposed to amend the Amended and Restated 2005 Omnibus Stock Incentive Plan. Amongst other changes, it is proposed to reduce the number of shares available for future grant under the plan by approximately 37 million shares, to 80 million shares, and extend the expiration date of the plan until May 19, 2032 (the tenth anniversary of the approval of the amendment and restatement by shareholders of the Company).
There are concerns with the Plan as the it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive. As a result, opposition is recommended.

SMART METERING SYSTEMS PLC AGM - 19-05-2022

8. Approve the Remuneration Report
During the year, a basic salary, an annual bonus and benefits in kind were paid to the Chief Executive.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 22.56% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.39% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

6. Approve Long Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. The Plan envisages the disbursement of an incentive composed of a component in Shares and a monetary component, the amount of which may vary depending upon the level of achievement of three-year performance objectives, from zero (and therefore, if none of the objectives is achieved, no incentive is awarded) up to a maximum of 280% or 180% of the base amount, respectively for the Chief Executive Officer/General Manager or for the other Beneficiaries. The amount to be awarded to each Beneficiary of the Plan will be determined by taking as a reference a percentage of the fixed remuneration ; this percentage is identified on the basis of each Beneficiary's category For this purpose , the Beneficiaries of the Plan are divided into 4 categories, which provide for the disbursement of an incentive ranging between 30% and 1 3 0 of the fixed remuneration in the event of achievement of the performance objectives at target level. Such principles provide , inter alia that there must be an adequate balance between the fixed component and the variable component and, within the latter, between the short-term variable and the long-term variable; the performance objectives upon which the disbursement of the variable components of the remuneration is linked are predetermined, measurable and significantly related to a long-term horizon; the percentage incidence of the variable incentive on the fixed remuneration must rise on the basis of the role held and the responsibilities assigned. In particular the incentive disbursable to the Chief Executive Officer General Manager of Enel under the LTI Plan is equal to 130% of the fixed remuneration in the event of achievement of the performance objectives at target level, and to 280 % of the fixed remuneration in the event of achievement of the maximum level of overperformance of such objectives.
Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term, despite a holding period of one year.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO's salary is considered to be in the median of PIRC's comparator group. Total realised rewards during the review period are not considered excessive. All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO salary is in the median of the competitor group. The changes in CEO pay over the last five years are not considered in line with the Company's performance over the same period. Variable pay for the year under review was estimated at 147.9% of the salary and is not considered excessive. 6. Elect Evan G. Greenberg as Board Chairman
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

11.2. Approve Remuneration of Executive Management in the Amount of USD 54 Million for Fiscal 2023
It is proposed to approve Remuneration of Executive Management in the Amount of USD 54 Million for Fiscal 2023. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on potential excessive variable remuneration.

ST JAMES'S PLACE PLC AGM - 19-05-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

10. Re-Elect Paul Manduca - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is not up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's Sustainability programme. As such, given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 94.1, Abstain: 0.9, Oppose/Withhold: 4.9,

12. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO's salary is in the lower quartile of PIRC's comparator group. The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Awards granted during the year amounted to nearly 450% of salary which is not considered acceptable. The CEO to average employee pay ratio is not in line with best practice at 21:1. Rating: AB
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

13. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP (PwC) as Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 6.67% of audit fees during the year under review and 2.56% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

DIALIGHT PLC AGM - 19-05-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The lack of vote on the final dividend or dividend policy, it is seen as a derogation of shareholder's rights. It is appreciated that quarterly dividends may be more favourable to shareholders and be what was agreed in the prospectus, however, shareholders should be provided an opportunity to ratify this approach annually through a vote on the dividend policy. This in turn gives the company a mandate to take that particular approach. Such an annual vote on the policy is not considered as overly burdensome and is a useful way for the company to receive feedback on the chosen approach.
It is noted no dividend was paid during the year under review. It is stated that the company intends to maintain its policy of paying four quarterly interim dividends. The dividends paid for the year are in line with the policy.
It is noted the investment management and company's secretarial functions are performed by the same entity. Administration and company secretarial duties are undertaken by the Investment Manager of the company. Independence from the management company is considered a key governance issue affecting investment trusts. The interests of the fund manager are considered to be in conflict with those of shareholders and the company due to the impact of management fees. Based on these reasons, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed the approve the remuneration report. During the year, a cash bonus was paid to the CEO. The variable pay was less than 200% of the CEO's annual salary, meaning that it was not considered to be excessive. Performance criteria for the bonus were fully disclosed and quantified, which is welcomed. In addition, awards are subject to clawback provisions, which is best practice.

15. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. 5.1. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual incentives for the previous year for executives. Annual incentives appear to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There do not appear to be claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which raises concerns. However, the Company has disclosed achievements only as a percentage of undisclosed targets, and as such, without quantified targets, it is impossible to assess whether the proposed amount would correspond to any overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

4.2.2. Elect of Ulrich Hocker as member of Remuneration Committee
Non-Executive Director, candidate to the Remuneration Committee on this resolution. It is considered that the Remuneration Committee should consist exclusively of independent members. Opposition is recommended.

5.3. Approve Maximum Total Amount for Management Remuneration
It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.
It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 3.5 million (CHF 3.5 million was proposed last year). This proposal includes fixed and variable remuneration components.
Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

CHINESE ESTATES HOLDINGS LTD AGM - 20-05-2022

2.2. Elect Ming-wai Lau - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Director. Not independent as Mr. Lau was re-designated to a Non-Executive Chair on 01 November 2015 having previously served as Executive Chair of the Board in March 2014 and Chief Executive Officer in April 2014. He is deemed to have an interest in 74.99% of the issued share capital. He is the step-son of Ms. Chan, Hoi-wan, and the nephew of Ms. Chan, Sze-wan, Ms. Chan, Lok-wan and Ms. Amy Lau, Yuk-wai. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

3. Appoint the Auditors (HLB Hodgson Impey Cheng Limited) and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
HLB Hodgson Impey Cheng Limited proposed. Non-audit fees represented 26.13% of audit fees during the year under review and 25.64% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

4. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
The authority is exceeding 10% of the share capital and expires at the next AGM. The authority exceeds recommended limits. An oppose vote is recommended.

6. Extend the General Share Issue Mandate to Repurchased Shares
The directors seek authority to re-issue shares repurchased under the authority proposed at this meeting. The effect of the proposal, if approved, the limit for issuance of shares would exceed 10% of issued share capital. Given the concerns over dilution of the shareholder rights, opposition is recommended.

6. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. An adequate break-down of the nature of non-audit fees is not provided, which makes the assessment of auditor's independence based on the non-audit fee impossible. The date of appointment of the auditor is not disclosed, meaning that there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. RECKITT BENCKISER GROUP PLC AGM - 20-05-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the directors remuneration in the single figure table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO salary is in the median of its peer group. The change in CEO total pay over the last five years is considered acceptable as it is commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Variable remuneration paid to all directors in the year under review is considered excessive as it exceeds 200% of salary for the CEO. The CEO to average employee pay ratio is considered unacceptable at 106:1
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy
Changes proposed: i) LTIP award, introduction of relative TSR as performance measure. Additionally, ESG measures will align the LTIP award with the company's 2030 sustainability ambitions, ii) Having taken into account shareholder feedback the Remuneration Committee proposes to remove the EPS and reduce the weighting on net revenue, to maintain the weighting on ROCE once the ESG measures have been introduced, iii) Taking into account shareholder sentiment and the current external environment, the Remuneration Committee has introduced a new, lower, normal operational limit on the number of LTIP performance share options and performance shares that can be granted to an Executive Director, which will not be greater than 200,000 performance share options and 100,000 performance shares, reduced from 300,000 performance options and 150,000 performance shares in the previous Remuneration Policy and iv) In addition, for future LTIP awards, the Remuneration Committee proposes that dividend equivalents will accrue on performance share awards granted under the LTIP that ultimately vest subject to performance in order to align participants with the overall shareholder experience and to bring Reckitt in line with UK best practice. These dividend equivalents will be delivered in shares, in line with shareholder guidance. This change does not apply to performance share options granted under the LTIP.
Some of the changes proposed are welcomed such as the introduction of the ESG performance measure and the reduction of the performance shares of the LTIP award. However, concerns remain on the remuneration policy of the company. Total potential variable pay could exceed 200% of the salary. Performance measures are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. The deferral part of the Bonus is not considered adequate, as one third of the Annual Bonus is defer to shares for three years. It would be preferable 50% of the Bonus to be paid in cash and 50% to defer to shares for at least three years. On the LTIP award performance period is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, however, a two year holding period applies which is welcomed. Furthermore, dividends may accrue on vesting awards from the date of grant. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay.

PIRC consider that: ”The expectations for pay schemes for approval at general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is believed that the fallacy of ‘alignment’ with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties, including the new s172 duties, should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of ‘alignment’ which can actually create a competing set of director ‘duties’. As such, PIRC may recommend opposition on any remuneration policy or report proposals containing variable remuneration.

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.63% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.96% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn’t an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn’t merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC’s view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an ’expectations gap’ does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

20. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights
The authority is limited to 33% of the Company’s issued share capital and expires at the next AGM. Within acceptable limits. It is noted that in the 2021 Annual general Meeting the resolution received significant opposition of 12.01% of the votes and the company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore, abstention is recommended.

22. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

It is considered that all companies should aim to provide at least 20 working days notice for general meetings in order to give shareholders sufficient time to consider what are often complex issues. However, as the proposed change is permissible by the Companies Act. It is noted that in the 2021 Annual general Meeting the resolution received significant opposition of 12.66% of the votes and the company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. 4. Say on Climate
There does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.
The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.
The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.
While the company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 2.0 degrees, setting targets in line with changes of 1.5 degrees or lower would be considered to be in line with a more resilient scenario.
The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 but this commitment only extends to part of its Scope 1, Scope 2 and Scope 3 emissions. This is considered to be inconsistent with an adequate commitment to a full energy transition, as shareholders are unable to make an informed assessment on the material efforts to reduce emissions, and increase the resilience of the company in the long term.

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

9. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Approve Issue of Shares Treasury for Private Placement
The Board requests authority to approve an authority for the issue of shares by private placement. This authority is not requested in connection with a particular operation and has not been duly justified by the Company. Opposition is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5C. Approve the Remuneration of the Audit Committee
The Board is seeking approval for remuneration of the Audit Committee. The proposed increase is more than 10% on annual basis, which is considered excessive, as the Company has not provided sufficient justification. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8C. Elect Helge Singelstad as a Member of the Nomination Committee
Sufficient biographical information has been disclosed and the candidate is not considered to be independent as he has previously served as CEO, Vice CEO and CFO at the Company. He is also the Chairman and Managiging Director of Austeveoll and Laco AS, which are direct and indirect significant shareholders in the Company. There is insufficient independent representation on the Nomination Committee. Opposition is recommended.

LEONARDO SPA AGM - 23-05-2022

3. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

4. Approve Second Section of the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

FORTERRA PLC AGM - 24-05-2022

2. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP as the Auditors of the Company
EY proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

12. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in the median of the competitor group. The balance of both awarded and rewarded CEO pay compared to financial performance over the last four years is considered acceptable. Total realised rewards under variable remuneration are considered acceptable at 98.3% of base salary. The pay ratio of the CEO compared to the average employee is has been and estimated and is considered acceptable at 20:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

16. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are disclosed. The CEO's salary is in line with the salary of the entire workforce. The CEO salary is in the lower quartile of the comparator group. Changes in CEO pay over the last five years are considered in line with Company financial performance over the same period. The CEO's variable pay for the Year Under Review is 214.22% of salary, which is considered excessive (Annual Bonus: 84.98% : LTIP: 129.24%). The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is inappropriate at 32:1. Rating: AC

3. Approve Remuneration Policy
Policy Rating: BCC Total maximum potential awards are considered excessive at 300% of salary. LTIP awards are subject to a three-year performance period which is not considered sufficiently long term but a two-year holding period apply which is welcomed. The performance measures will be based on financial (e.g. EPS), share-price related (e.g. relative TSR) and, when appropriate, ESG performance targets. Dividend equivalent payments are permitted under the plan. Such payments misalign shareholder and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay. The use of an exceptional limit under the LTIP for recruitment or retention purposes is considered inappropriate. The Committee can exercise upside discretion as for good leavers it has discretion to disapply time pro-rating or apply it to a lesser extent if it feels it is appropriate to do so.

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed and explained. Next year's salaries and fees for directors have been disclosed. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of the comparator group, which raises concerns about excesiveness. Changes in CEO remuneration over the last five years are not considered in line with changes in TSR during the same period. It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

14. Renew Appointment of Ernst & Young et Autres as Auditor
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 19.75% of audit fees during the year under review and 10.36% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

MERCK & CO. INC. AGM - 24-05-2022

1e. Elect Kenneth C. Frazier - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADA. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

6. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Lobbying Payments and Policy
Proponent's argument: National Legal and Policy Center requested that the company provide a full, detailed disclosure of our company's direct and indirect lobbying activities and expenditures to assess whether our lobbying is consistent with Merck's expressed goals and in shareholders' best interests. Shareholders request the Board prepare a report, updated annually disclosing: 1. Company policy and procedures governing lobbying, both direct and indirect, and grassroots lobbying communications; 2. Payments by Merck used for (a) direct or indirect lobbying or (b) grassroots lobbying communications, in each case including the amount of the payment and the recipient; 3. Description of the decision-making process and oversight by management and the Board for making payments described in section 2 above. For purposes of this proposal, a "grassroots lobbying communication" is a communication directed to the general public that (a) refers to specific legislation or regulation; (b) reflects a view on the legislation or regulation; and (c) encourages the recipient of the communication to take action with respect to the legislation or regulation. "Indirect lobbying" is lobbying engaged in by a trade association or other organization of which Merck is a member. Both "direct and indirect lobbying" and "grassroots lobbying communications" include lobbying at the local, state and federal levels. "Merck's lobbying expenditures may not include grassroots lobbying to directly influence legislation by mobilizing public support or opposition, nor lobbying expenditures in states that do not require disclosure. Absent a system of transparency and accountability for lobbying expenditures, Merck executives may use Company assets for objectives that are not shared by and may be inimical to the interests of the Company and its shareholders. Current disclosure is insufficient to allow the Company's Board, its shareholders, and its current and prospective customers to fully evaluate its lobbying priorities. There is currently no single source providing shareholders the information sought by this resolution."
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "The Company's decision-making and oversight process for lobbying-related payments is already available to our shareholders, including in this proxy statement as well as in past proxy statements. The Company's public policy positions are determined by senior management with oversight by the Governance Committee. In addition, the full Board receives a report twice a year on the Company's political contributions, as well as the Company's payments to trade associations and other tax-exempt organizations that may be used for lobbying and political activities. [...] Merck's practices, policies, and disclosures, reflected in our recognition by the CPA-Zicklin Index of Corporate Political Disclosure and Accountability as a "trendsetter" for 5 years in a row, demonstrate our commitment to transparency and accountability for lobbying expenditures. Merck already discloses the information sought by the shareholder proposal, including disclosures on our political contributions and lobbying activities, our policies and procedures governing lobbying, and our related decision-making and oversight, and we believe that preparing the requested report would be duplicative and not an effective use of Merck's resources or management time, nor provide shareholders with additional meaningful disclosures."
PIRC analysis: The requested disclosure on the alignment of lobbying expenditure appears to be a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented within the company's political activities, as opposed to promoting transparency and accountability around the potential benefits of diversity and requesting transparency over the financial impact from non-traditionally financial issues, avoid any suspicion and any damage that may cause to the company's reputation, or that the company may adopt a conduct different from what it has committed to. Opposition is recommended.

HILL & SMITH HOLDINGS PLC AGM - 24-05-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 99.4, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
The increase in CEO salary is in line with the rest of the Company. The CEO's salary is considered as being in the lower quartile of a peer comparator group, which is welcomed. Changes in CEO pay over the last five years are in line with Company's financial performance over the same period. The CEO's total realised variable pay is excessive at 216.98% of salary (Annual bonus: 132%, LTIP: 84.98%). The ratio of CEO to average employee pay has been estimated and it is not considered acceptable at 38:1. Rating: AB
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

11. Re-Elect Paul Simmons - Chief Executive
Chief Executive. Acceptable service contract provisions. Mr. Paul Simmons has Board responsibility for ESG and he is a member of the ESG Committee, which is responsible for translating the company's ESG strategy into focused initiatives, near and medium-term targets, and actions. As there is no Sustainability Committee within the Board of Directors, and there is no Chair of the Sustainability Committee under election, the CEO, as a member of the ESG committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability program, and given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 98.0, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 1.6,

13. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP as Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.27% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.48% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document). The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

18. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.7, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 3.3,

It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. 4. Authorise the Board to Fix Directors' Remuneration
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.

Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market; support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting; as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. As abstention is not a valid voting outcomes on this resolution, opposition is recommended.

5C. Extend the General Share Issue Mandate to Repurchased Shares
The directors seek authority to re-issue shares repurchased under the authority proposed at this meeting. The effect of the proposal, if approved, the limit for issuance of shares would exceed 10% of issued share capital. Given the concerns over dilution of the shareholder rights, opposition is recommended.

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 68.42% of audit fees during the year under review and 56.58% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises major concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

EXOR NV AGM - 24-05-2022

2b. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated, however there are concerns that payment is largely based on NAV per share compared to the MSCI World Index. It is considered NAV per share is considered an insufficient independent performance measure as NAV per share potentially can be artificially changed through actions such as repurchases. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

3d. Approve New Executive Share Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term, though there is a further two year holding period.

LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

20. Approve the Shell Energy Transition Progress
There does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the Chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Rather, the company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered too general, and against an effective execution and accountability overall.
The company states that it will review membership of associations with adverse positions on climate positions, however the are concerns surrounding this commitment, based on prior lobbying arrangements allegedly in contravention of company policy.
The company climate strategy has a timeline, for the purpose of measuring progress on emission reductions and the overall energy transition.
The company has said it will be carbon neutral by 2050 and has extended this commitment to its Scope 1, Scope 2 and Scope 3 emissions.
There are concerns surrounding the governance structure responsible for the implementation of these policies which raises concerns about their potential effectiveness. In addition, the strategy does not seemingly address the challenges the company faces, with competition from renewable energy potentially putting fossil fuel businesses out of business on grounds of costs. The company does not seem to have a clear plan for the competitive aspects of the energy transition: Shell anticipates that no new frontiers exploration will be undertaken after 2025, but there does not seem to be a sharp target or commitment. Moreover, decarbonising 'in step with society', as opposed to taking the lead to decarbonise, appears seemingly too accommodating and inconsistent with the policy objectives and some of the targets. Under such assumption, there is no guarantee that the targets would be reviewed to a lower ambition or that they will not be met at all. We would prefer to see all targets set out in terms of absolute emissions, not intensity. There is insufficient clarity on claims of carbon capture and storage and nature based solutions. Opposition is recommended.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

9. Re-Elect Roberto Quarta - Chair (Non Executive)

Chair. The Chair is not considered to be independent as Mr. Mr Quarta was appointed Executive Chair from 14 April 2018 to 03 September 2018, when Mr. Read appointed CEO of the company. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. In addition, The Chair is also chairing another company within the FTSE 350 index. It is considered that a chair cannot effectively represent two corporate cultures. The possibility of having to commit additional time to the role in times of crisis is ever present. Given this, a Chair should focus his attention onto the only one FTSE 350 Company. Overall opposition is recommended.

17. Re-appoint Deloitte LLP
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 4.39% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.47% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

20. Approve Executive Performance Share Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

21. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

8. Appoint the Auditors and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 45.74% of audit fees during the year under review and 65.61% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises major concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.
A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Given the potential for inequitable treatment of shareholders, opposition is recommended.

A. Shareholder Resolution: Amend Employee Stock Purchase Plans
FCPE Credit Agricole SA Actions proposed that the discount level to be applied to the shares issued in future capital increases reserved for employees be set at 30%. "
The Reserved Capital Increase for employees had greater success in 2020 within the framework of a proposed discount of 30% (more than 47,000 subscribers versus an average subscription of 22,000). Under these circumstances, it seems that all the elements are in place to increase the discount level set in relation to capital increases reserved for employees. There are many merits to this proposal. It makes it possible: to have a standard discount of 30% across all Group entities. The consequence of this would be that Group employees would be treated equally and access to employee shareholding would be open to as many people as possible; to optimise the characteristics of Reserved Capital Increases and to pursue the same employee participation strategy as for the other corporate bodies. This is the way to implement fair treatment vis-à-vis the mechanisms in place." Proponent's argument:

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "the Board has already had the opportunity to reaffirm its wish for employees to be associated with the company's performance by deciding in favour of a capital increase reserved for employees on an annual basis and the wish that the transaction coincides with incentive and profit-sharing payments thereby ensuring its funding; - the discount rate is set for each transaction by the Board, on the proposal of the Remuneration Committee, after discussion with Executive Management, no discount on the transactions carried out until now having ever been proposed at a rate below 20%; - the decision takes into account the conditions and effects of each of the transactions within their context, in line with market practices but also after analysis of the impact for the other shareholders; - bearing in mind that the authorisations granted to the Board under the 32nd and 33rd resolutions are for 26 and 18 months respectively, and with transactions being "tailor-made" each time, it seems essential, in the interest of each of the stakeholders, that the Board retains the authority to determine the discount amount applicable to each of the capital increases reserved for employees."
PIRC analysis: It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. However, the discount proposed to be applied exceeds guidelines (20%). Opposition is therefore recommended.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of PIRC's comparator group which raises concerns over the excessiveness of his pay. The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over four years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. The CEO receives a Bonus of 59.9% of the salary which is not excessive, however he did not receive LTIP award during the year, which is welcomed. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 50:1; it is recommended that the ratio does not exceed 20:1.

5. Re-elect Simon Burke - Chair (Non Executive)
Chair. Independent upon appointment. In addition, Mr. Burke is the Chair of the Nomination and ESG committee. Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

15. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 4.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 12.17% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

THE TRAVELERS COMPANIES INC. AGM - 25-05-2022

2. Appoint the Auditors
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 1.65% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.64% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.1, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 3.7,

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: CED. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 71.5, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 27.9,

1h. Elect Philip T. (Pete) Ruegger III - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee. As the Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.0, Abstain: 0.5, Oppose/Withhold: 3.6,

1k. Elect Alan D. Schnitzer - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

GEELY AUTOMOBILE HLDGS LTD AGM - 25-05-2022

4. Elect Wang Yang - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as he was re-designated by the Company as independent on 17 May 2012. He was classified as non-independent in 2010, as he was working for Goldman Sachs for 2006-2010. During the period, he led the Goldman Sachs' USD 245 million convertible bond investment transaction in the Company. Insufficient cooling-off time has passed that would mitigate concerns over his independence. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Authorise the Board to Fix Directors' Remuneration
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market; support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting; as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. As abstention is not a valid voting outcomes on this resolution, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Appoint the Auditors (Grant Thornton Hong Kong Limited) and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
Grant Thornton proposed. Non-audit fees represented 17.87% of audit fees during the year under review. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

M&G PLC AGM - 25-05-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce. However, the CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. Total realised awards in the year under review are considered excessive at 321.5% of base salary. The level of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee is considered excessive at 31:1, PIRC considers the acceptable limit to be 20:1
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit

pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of ‘alignment’ with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of ‘alignment’ which can actually create a competing set of director ‘duties’.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 93.8, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 6.0,

12. Appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditors
PwC proposed as new auditor in replacement of KPMG. Auditor rotation is considered a positive factor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn’t an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn’t merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC’s view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an ’expectations gap’ does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

17. Authorise Issue of Equity in Connection with the Issue of Mandatory Convertible Securities
The authority is limited to one third of the Company’s issued share capital. This cap can reduced to 23% of the issued share capital if shares are issued in connection with an offer by way of a rights issue. All directors are standing for annual re-election. This resolution is in connection with the issue of Mandatory Convertible Securities. The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilising effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 88.4, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 11.5,

19. Authorise Issue of Equity without Pre-emptive Rights in Connection with the Issue of Mandatory Convertible Securities
Authority is limited to 5% of the Company’s issued share capital and will expire at the next AGM. Within acceptable limits. This is in connection with the issue of Mandatory Convertible Securities.

O.1. Approve Financial Statements and Statutory Reports
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.3, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 0.5,

O.2. Approve Consolidated Financial Statements and Statutory Reports
The consolidated financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. O.4. Authorize Repurchase of Up to 10 Percent of Issued Share Capital
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% and 26 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 88.4, Abstain: 10.9, Oppose/Withhold: 0.7,

O.10. Approve Compensation Report of Directors of the Board
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to executives with an advisory vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated, although there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.3, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 5.6,

O.11. Approve Remuneration Policy of Directors
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.9, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 1.0,

O.12. Approve Compensation of Patrick Pouyanne, Chairman and CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Patrick Pouyanne with a binding vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. The company has disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated, but there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On balance, abstention is recommended.

O.16. Approve the Company's Sustainable Development and Energy Transition
The company is submitting a non-binding advisory vote seeking shareholder approval with regards to its net zero ambition. TotalEnergies has provided a report detailing its proposed pathway to net zero by 2050 including interim targets, which were enhanced during 2021, to include a 30% reduction in the emissions of the energy used by customers, against a 2015 baseline. The company however does not have a scope 3 target that relates to its upstream activity. The company has existing medium term scope 1 & 2 emissions reduction targets of 40% by 2030 against a 2015 baseline. The latest Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) report outlines the need for emissions to fall by about 45 percent from 2010 levels by 2030. The company has not set targets in relation to capital expenditure, however it is noted that during 2021 investments in renewables and electricity represented 25% of total investments.

Other notable elements of Total's transition plan include the aim to set expectations relating to the role the company plays in climate advocacy, specifically in relation to the trade associations to which it belongs, where examples are provides on instances during 2021 when membership has been termination at associations that were not aligned with TotalEnergies view on climate matters. Further, the climate policy appears to be adequately linked to the governance of the company overall. The chair is indicated as being responsible for oversight of the climate strategy and members of the senior management have accrued experience in climate-related issues within the sector of the company. The company has also tied its climate ambitions to the compensation structure. Concerns remain over the veracity of the pathway accompanying the net zero ambition. The fundamental divergence between Total's strategy and that of the IPCC's and IEA's most recent assessment being Totals's continued benefit from developing and sustaining its hydrocarbon business. Whilst the granularity of the company's projected 2050 emissions profile is welcome, the estimate 50 – 100MT sequestration of carbon via CCUS is considered overly reliant on a technology not yet proven at scale. It is further noted that the company's pathway includes the use of offsets, it is considered than offsets should be a transition tool exclusive to those sectors hardest to abate of which power generation is not one. There are also concerns that the existing targets are overly reliant on divestment as opposed to the internal displacement of hydrocarbon to renewable energy.
Whilst it is encouraging to see a section within the plan on ensuring a just transition, there are no defined targets set for how social and workforce impacts will be managed.
The net zero ambition and pathway outlined by the company represents continued improvement in how Total is attempting to mitigate the environmental impact of the business. Whilst there are credible elements to the pathway, specifically its approach to capital allocation, concerns remain over some elements of the proposed pathway.

E.20. Authorise the Board to Increase the Number of Shares Issued in case of Exceptional Demand
In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.
A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Given the potential for inequitable treatment of shareholders, opposition is recommended.

AMAZON.COM INC. AGM - 25-05-2022

1a. Elect Jeffrey P. Bezos - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this. As highlighted in the report, there are a number of concerns relating to the company, with particular regarding a failure in environmental policy, treatment of the workforce, and alleged irresponsible business practices. It is considered that the volume of issues regarding the company suggests represent a fundamental problem with the corporate culture at board level, and raises serious concerns regarding supervisory failure. For these reasons, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of Board Directors.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
During the year, the company has refused mediation through the local National Contact Point (NCP) for the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises. NCPs assist enterprises and their stakeholders to take appropriate measures to further the observance of the Guidelines. They provide a mediation and conciliation platform for resolving practical issues that may arise with the implementation of the Guidelines. Ignoring or refusing such mediation reveals inadequate stakeholder engagement and assessment material non-traditional financial risks, for which it is considered that the Chief Executive should be held accountable.

4. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

5. Shareholder Resolution: Amend Bylaws to Limit Shareholder Rights for Proposal Submission

Proponent's argument: Steven Milloy proposed that the Company amend its bylaws to no longer permit shareholders to submit precatory (non-binding or advisory) proposals for consideration at annual shareholder meetings, unless the board of directors takes specific action to approve submission of such proposals. "Climate activists are nuisance shareholders who have leveraged proposals over the years to the point where they now have a significant presence on the ExxonMobil board of directors. These anti-fossil fuel nuisance shareholders may soon control the ExxonMobil board of directors. What could go wrong? A primary tool of nuisance shareholders is the submission of non-binding precatory (advisory) proposals for discussion and vote at annual meetings of shareholders. Proposals from nuisance shareholders can coerce management into making decisions not in the best interests of ExxonMobil and its bona fide shareholders, and turn the annual meeting into a media-activist circus. The overarching purpose of these proposals is to harass, intimidate and otherwise force ExxonMobil management into actions that it would not normally undertake and that, in fact, may be harmful to the company and its bona fide shareholders. "

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "The Board respects the rights of shareholders to have their perspectives heard and provides several alternatives, including written correspondence and a portal for electronic communication at exxonmobil.com/directors, through which shareholders can communicate with the directors. The Board encourages shareholders to make use of those communication channels, and also recognizes that shareholder proposals can be a constructive element of corporate governance. As a result, the Board believes the current proposal is unnecessary. "

PIRC analysis: Increased disclosure would normally be considered to be in shareholders' interests, regardless of the short-term binding actions to follow. In addition, the proposed amendments is considered to be based on flawed methodology. The proponent assumes that investors filing climate-related proposals are acting against the company and the financial sustainability of its core business. The proponent does so by focusing on short-term costs and benefits for the company, excluding the long-term benefits (also economic) of a lower carbon emission strategy. It is considered that shareholders should instead be focused on long-term value creation, regardless of the means (a binding or an advisory proposal). Ignoring the potential long-term costs of ignoring climate change is not considered to be in shareholders best interests. On balance, a vote in opposition of the resolution is recommended.

12. Shareholder Resolution: Commission a Workplace Non-Discrimination Audit

Proponent's argument: Shareholders of Facebook/Meta Platforms Inc. requested that the Board of Directors commission an audit analyzing the Company's impacts on civil rights and non-discrimination, and the impacts of those issues on the Company's business. The audit may, in the Board's discretion, be conducted by an independent and unbiased third party with input from civil rights organizations, public-interest litigation groups, employees and other stakeholders - of a wide spectrum of viewpoints and perspectives. A report on the audit, prepared at reasonable cost and omitting confidential or proprietary information, should be publicly disclosed on the Company's website. "Many companies have been found to be sponsoring and promoting overtly and implicitly discriminatory employee-training programs, including Bank of America, American Express, Verizon, Pfizer and CVS. Facebook, meanwhile is awash in claims that it discriminates on grounds akin to the policies and positions noted above. This disagreement and controversy create massive reputational, legal and financial risk. If the Company is, in the name of equity, diversity and inclusion, committing illegal or unconscionable discrimination against employees deemed "non-diverse," In developing the audit and report, the Company should consult civil-rights and public-interest law groups - but it must not compound error with bias by relying only on left-leaning organizations. Rather, it should consult groups across the spectrum of viewpoints. This includes right-leaning civil-rights groups representing people of color, such as the Woodson Center and Project 21, and groups that defend the rights and liberties of all Americans, not merely the ones that many companies label "diverse." All Americans have civil rights; to behave otherwise is to invite disaster. Similarly, when including employees in its audit, the Company must allow employees to speak freely without fear of reprisal or disfavor, and in confidential ways. Too many employers have established company stances that themselves chill contributions from employees who disagree with the company's asserted positions, and then have pretended that the employees who have been empowered by the companies' partisan positioning represent the true and only voice of all employees. This by itself creates a deeply hostile workplace for some groups of employees, and is both immoral and likely illegal."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "The Civil Rights Audit analyzed our impact on civil rights and non-discrimination, as well as the impact of those issues on our business. We hired Laura Murphy, a highly respected civil rights and civil liberties leader, to guide the audit, and she spoke with more than 100 civil rights organizations. The audit was supported by Megan Cacace, a civil rights attorney who was a partner at Relman Colfax PLLC at the time of the audit. The Civil Rights Audit addressed seven substantive issue areas, and included a review of our diversity and inclusion strategy, programs, and practices. We published the results of the progress report in June 2019 (the Progress Report) and our Civil Rights Audit in July 2020 (the 2020 Final Report), and have continued to monitor our progress in this area. We have made the results of our Progress Report and the 2020 Final Report public on our website. The 2020 Final Report explained the three main components of our Diversity and Inclusion Programs & Systems, and also outlined changes we were making to address diversity and inclusion, which included elevating the role of our Chief Diversity Officer to report directly to the Chief Operating Officer, and goals to increase the percentage of personnel from underrepresented communities. In the 2020 Final Report, the third-party auditors provided detailed observations and recommendations for enhancing our efforts regarding civil rights and non-discrimination."

PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of staff diversity lie in widening the perspectives on human resources brought to bear on decision-making, avoiding too great a similarity of attitude and helping companies understand their workforces as a kaleidoscope of customers, marketplace, supply chain and society as a whole. Disclosure surrounding the company's staff composition allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including the ability to attract and retain key talent. Disclosure of a policy to improve diversity and goals that have been set to meet this policy also reassures shareholders that a diverse board is not just an aspiration but a goal. However, this resolution appears to be filed by a right-wing policy think tanks as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented on the board as well as so-called liberal perspectives. Given the diversity that already exists on company's staff, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 4.55% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.92% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

13. Approve the Remuneration Report

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in the median of the competitor group. The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over the last five years is not aligned to the change in TSR over the same period. Variable pay for the year under review was 192.7% of the salary and is not considered excessive since is lower than 200%. The level of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee is considered excessive at 40:1.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

14. Approve Remuneration Policy

Changes proposed: i) Introduction of a post-employment shareholding guideline. Executive Directors will be required to hold shares equivalent to their full in-employment shareholding guideline (200% of salary, or actual shareholding at the point of departure if lower) for two years post-employment, in line with guidance from the Investment Association. The guideline will apply to all shares acquired pursuant to deferred share awards or Bodycote Incentive Plan (BIP) awards granted after 1 January 2022 , ii) Malus and clawback. The circumstances in which malus and clawback may apply to annual bonus, deferred share and BIP awards have been expanded to include corporate failure, therefore providing alignment with best practice, iii) Maximum BIP opportunity. The Committee proposes to introduce an overall maximum limit of 200% of salary that may be used to grant on going BIP awards. This is intended to ensure that there is flexibility in the Policy over the next three years to provide competitive remuneration packages in order to retain and/or attract Executive Directors of the required calibre, taking into account the size and complexity of the business and potential changes to business needs. The Committee does not have any current intention to increase the normal maximum opportunity which is set at 175% of salary (and has been maintained at this level since the BIP was first introduced in 2006) and it is proposed that the 2022 BIP awards will be granted at this level and iv) BIP vesting for threshold performance. The Committee proposes to include flexibility to increase threshold vesting up to 25% of maximum opportunity (currently 0% would normally vest at threshold). This is in order to provide a modest vesting outcome for achieving threshold performance and is aligned with the typical threshold vesting level across the FTSE 350.

Total potential variable pay could reach 400% of the salary and is deemed excessive since is higher than 200%. 35% of the Annual Bonus is defer to shares for a three year period, this is not considered adequate, it would be preferable 50% of the Bonus to defer to shares for at least three years. Concerns are raised and for the Bodycote Incentive Plan (BIP) as there are no non-financial performance measures attached to the LTIP and so the focus of remuneration policy is not the operational performance of the business as a whole or the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Instead, the focus of the remuneration policy is financial KPIs, which mainly include factors beyond an individual director's control. Performance period is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, however, a two year holding period apply which is welcomed. Dividend equivalent payments are permitted under the plan. Such payments misalign shareholder and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay. It is noted that the Company has set an exceptional limit for recruitment, which is set at 450% of salary. This is not considered appropriate. On termination the executives will benefit from an annual bonus equal to the average bonus paid up to three years prior to the date of notice, which is not considered best practice.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval at general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties, including the new s172 duties, should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'. As such, PIRC may recommend opposition on any remuneration policy or report proposals containing variable remuneration.

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. 2. Approve the Remuneration Report

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO's salary in line with the average workforce. The CEO's salary is top of PIRC's comparator group which raises concerns over excessiveness. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. The stated CEO median pay ratio is 115:1 which is considered excessive. Variable remuneration represented 170% of base salary, which is in line with best practice (under 200%).

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have fully disclosed, they have not been quantified at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

20. Issue Shares for Cash
Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital. However; the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

Vote Cast: Oppose

21. Approve Issue of Shares for Private Placement
The Board requests authority to approve an authority for the issue of shares by private placement. This authority is not requested in connection with a particular operation and has not been duly justified by the Company. Opposition is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

22. Authorize Capital Increase of Up to EUR 120 Million for Future Exchange Offers
Proposed authority to issue up to 10% of the share capital to be used in exchanges in times of public offer initiated by the Company. At this time, the Company has not disclosed specific plans to future exchange offers. As the proposed authority exceeds guidelines, and in absence of specific reasons, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

25. Approve Issue of Shares for Employee Saving Plan
Authority for a capital increase for up to 1% of share capital for employees participating to saving plans. The maximum discount applied will be 30% on the market share price. It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. However, the discount to be applied exceeds guidelines (20%). Opposition is therefore recommended.

5. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. Abstention from voting this resolution is recommended.

5.1. Ratify PricewaterhouseCoopers GmbH as Auditors for Fiscal Year 2022
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 2.28% of audit fees during the year under review and 4.81% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

PRUDENTIAL PLC AGM - 26-05-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO salary is the in the upper quartile of the competitor group which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The Group CEO's total realized variable pay is considered excessive at 275.2% of salary (Annual Bonus: 193.3%, LTIP: 81.9%). Ratio of CEO to average employee pay has been estimated and is found unacceptable at 59:1. The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

KPMG proposed. No non-audit fees were paid for the year under review and non-audit fees represents 37.14% of audit fees on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

21. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. It is proposed that a general meeting of the Company other than an annual general meeting may be called on not less than 14 clear days' notice.
It is considered that all companies should aim to provide at least 20 working days notice for general meetings in order to give shareholders sufficient time to consider what are often complex issues. However, as the proposed change is permissible by the Companies Act. However, it is noted that in 2021 Annual General Meeting the resolution received significant opposition of 10.51% of the votes and the company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore an abstain vote is recommended.

17. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights in respect of Contingent Convertible Securities

Authority is sought to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of £20,000,000 representing approximately 13.4% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital as at 31 March 2022, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of Solvency II (SII) Restricted Tier 1 (RT1) instruments. The authority expires at the next AGM. The Company explains that this authority is needed so that the Company has the flexibility to manage and maintain its and the Group's capital structure more effectively in the light of evolving regulatory capital requirements, market conditions and appetite for different instruments and their cost-effectiveness.

The use of Contingent Convertible Securities (or CoCos) is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. There are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Past events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilizing effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

12. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP as auditors of the Company

EY proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

14. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights

The authority is limited to one third of the Company's issued share capital. This cap can increase to two-thirds of the issued share capital if shares are issued in connection with an offer by way of a rights issue. All directors are standing for annual re-election. This resolution is in line with normal market practice and expires at the next AGM. It is noted that in the 2021 Annual General Meeting the resolution has received significant opposition of 16.27% of the votes and the company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore abstention is recommended.

Authority is limited to 5% of the Company's issued share capital and will expire at the next AGM. Within acceptable limits. It is noted that in the 2021 Annual General Meeting the resolution has received significant opposition of 16.14% of the votes and the company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore abstention is recommended.

16. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

17. Meeting Notification-related Proposal
It is proposed that a general meeting of the Company other than an annual general meeting may be called on not less than 14 clear days' notice.
It is considered that all companies should aim to provide at least 20 working days notice for general meetings in order to give shareholders sufficient time to consider what are often complex issues. However, as the proposed change is permissible by the Companies Act. It is noted that in the 2021 Annual General Meeting the resolution has received significant opposition of 18.63% of the votes and the company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore abstention is recommended.

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in the upper quartile of PIRC's comparator group, which raises concerns over excessiveness. The balance of the CEO's pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO's total pay over five years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. The total realized pay for the CEO in the year under review is considered acceptable at 90.26% of salary. It is noted that no Annual Bonus was paid for the year under review which is commendable. The CEO's ratio of pay compared to that of the average employee is not considered acceptable at 22:1. Rating: AC
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Oppose vote is therefore recommended.

During the year, the Chief Executive was paid a salary, benefits, pension and long-term incentive. FUFENG GROUP LTD AGM - 27-05-2022

3.1. Elect Li Xuechun - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3.3. Elect Li Ming - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered to be independent, due to lack of disclosure. Additionally, not considered to be independent, as the Company has not disclosed the date of first appointment and, as such, a potentially excessive tenure cannot be calculated. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3.4. Authorise the Board to Fix Directors' Remuneration
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market; support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting; as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. Abstention from voting this resolution is recommended.

13. Authorise Share Repurchase
Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager), we would like to see a public statement:
- addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and

- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

TRIPLE POINT SOCIAL HOUSING REIT PLC AGM - 27-05-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report

A dividend was put forward for shareholder's approval, which is welcomed. The company have disclosed a voting policy indicating how they vote on issues relating to investment and investee companies. In addition, it is noted ESG matters are taken into account in investment decisions which is welcomed. Administration and company secretarial duties are undertaken by the Investment Manager of the company. Independence from the management company is considered a key governance issue affecting investment trusts and to ensure that the management company is not used as a conduit for shareholder communication with the board. Where administrative duties are carried out by the company related to the manager, opposition is recommended.

15. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

SPECTRIS PLC AGM - 27-05-2022

1. Accept Financial Statements and Statutory Reports
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 96.7, Abstain: 3.3, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO's salary is in the median of the competitor's group. Changes in CEO's total pay over the last five years are not considered in line with changes in TSR during the same period. The CEO variable pay for the year under review is considered excessive at 230% of salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not considered appropriate at 28:1.
Rating: AC
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.5, Abstain: 0.8, Oppose/Withhold: 2.7,

12. Re-Elect Mark Williamson - Chair
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is not up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability an abstain vote is recommended.

LINK MOBILITY GROUP HOLDING ASA AGM - 31-05-2022

7. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there are no claw back clauses in place, which is against best practices. Opposition is recommended.

6. To approve the Provision of Guarantee by the Company in respect of the Bank borrowings or Trade Finance Credit of 15 subsidiaries and joint venture companies
Approval is sought for the provision of the Guarantee by the Company in respect of the bank borrowings of nine subsidiaries and joint venture entities for up to three years for some of the entities. While the opportunity for shareholders to approve intra group loans is welcomed, there are reservations about the potential use of this authority for loans to companies that are not controlled by the Group (i.e. less than 50% owned by the Company) as, in the event of a default on the loan, the Company's shareholders underwrite the risks of the loan despite some benefits of the loan accruing to a third party. An oppose vote is therefore recommended.

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.59% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.44% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

3. Authorize the Company or any of its Subsidiaries to Enter into the New Leases
The Company or one of its subsidiaries intends to enter into certain real property lease and sub-leaseagreements with International Land Holdings plc ("Balmoral") and Balkan Investment Company ("Balkan"), which requires the approval of our shareholders under Irish law. Both Balmoral and Balkan are deemed to be persons connected to the director the company for the purpose of section 238 of the Companies Act 2014. The lease and sub-lease agreements, which are in respect of the Company's existing headquarters that a subsidiary of the Company has occupied since 2006, are on arms-length terms, for ten year terms, with an option to break the lease or sub-lease at year five.
The Company intends to enter into certain real property lease and sub-lease agreements with Balmoral and Balkan. Balmoral is a related party to the Company because Mr. McCann, the Company's Executive Chairman, is also the Chair of the Board of Balmoral. Dole leases a number of buildings and provides IT management services to Balmoral as part of its normal trading activities. Balkan is considered to be a related party as it and related parites is beneficial owner of 7.7% of Dole's shares.
Significant governance concerns have been identified. Balmoral and Balkan are both considered to be related parties due to the reasons listed above. In addition; there is insufficient balance of independent representation on the Board which fails to provide assurance that the proposed transaction is undertaken with appropriate independent judgement and oversight. Based on these concerns; an abstain vote is recommended.

AEGON NV AGM - 31-05-2022

2.2. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Approve the Remuneration of Patrick Koller, CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Patrick Koller with a binding vote. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there are no claw back clauses in place, which is against best practices. Opposition is recommended.

16. Approve Issue of Shares for Private Placement
The Board requests authority to approve an authority for the issue of shares by private placement. This authority is not requested in connection with a particular operation and has not been duly justified by the Company. Opposition is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

17. Authorise the Board to Increase the Number of Shares Issued in case of Exceptional Demand
In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.
A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Given the potential for inequitable treatment of shareholders, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

20. Authorize up to 3 Million Shares for Use in Restricted Stock Plans
It is proposed to increase the share capital by issuing new shares to the service of the incentive plan proposed at this meeting: thus, opposition is recommended based on the concerns identified on the proposed incentive plan.

Vote Cast: Oppose

21. Approve Issue of Shares for Employee Saving Plan
Authority for a capital increase for up to 2% of share capital for employees participating to saving plans. The maximum discount applied will be 30% on the market share price. It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. However, the discount to be applied exceeds guidelines (20%). Opposition is therefore recommended.

2. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 7.45% of audit fees during the year under review and 10.94% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

3. Amend Existing Omnibus Plan
It is proposed to amend the Alphabet Inc. Amended and Restated 2021 Stock Plan (the Plan), in order to increase the maximum number of shares of Class C capital stock that may be issued under the Plan by 4,000,000 shares.
There are concerns with the Plan as the it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive. As a result, opposition is recommended.

12. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Government Takedown Requests
Proponent's argument: The National Legal and Policy Center requested that Alphabet Inc. provide a report, published on the company's website and updated semi-annually – and omitting proprietary information and at reasonable cost – that specifies the Company's policy in responding to requests to remove or take down material from its platforms by the Executive Office of the President, Centers for Disease Control, or any other agency or entity of the United States Government. " In Bantam Books, Inc. vs. Sullivan (1963), and in other cases, the Supreme Court of the United States has ruled that private entities may not engage in suppression of speech at the behest of government, as it has the same effect as direct government censorship. On July 15, 2021, White House press secretary Jen Psaki was asked, "Can you talk a little bit more about this request for tech companies to be more aggressive in policing misinformation? Has the administration been in touch with any of these companies and are there any actions that the federal government can take to ensure their cooperation, because we've seen, from the start, there's not a lot of action on some of these platforms." Psaki candidly replied, "Sure. Well, first, we are in regular touch with these social media platforms, and those engagements typically happen through members of our senior staff, but also members of our COVID-19 team, given, as (Surgeon General) Dr. (Vivek) Murthy conveyed, this is a big issue of misinformation, specifically on the pandemic." Shareholders need to know whether the Company is cooperating with government officials engaged in unconstitutional censorship, opening the Company to liability claims by victims. Shareholders also need to know whether the Company is failing to disclose these potential liabilities as material risks in its public filings. There is currently no single source providing shareholders the information sought by this resolution."
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "Our Board has the ultimate responsibility of risk management and robust oversight of risks and exposures associated with operational, human rights, data privacy, legal, regulatory, compliance, and reputational risks. Specifically, the Audit Committee, per its charter, is tasked with reviewing and discussing with management Alphabet's major risk exposures and the steps Alphabet takes to prevent, detect, monitor, and actively manage such exposure. Management meets regularly with the Audit Committee to discuss how we manage our platforms in light of regulatory trends around the world. In 2010, we launched the Google Transparency Report with the mission of sharing data that sheds light on how the policies and actions of governments and corporations affect privacy, security, and access to information. As noted on this website, we have expanded the Transparency Reports over time to include more information, further enhancing our transparency. Specifically, in the "Government requests to remove content" section of the website, we voluntarily disclose the number of requests we receive from courts and government agencies if the requesting government body was a member of the judicial or executive branch. We also provide this information on a country/regional basis."
PIRC analysis: The proposal does not request the company to consult with technology and civil liberties experts and civil and human rights advocates to assess the level of risk of misrepresenting facts and allowing or even inciting misinformation by its platform being used by any customer. Rather, the proponent appears to consider that misinformation (such as denying the reality of anthropogenic global warming, or that of the COVID pandemic) should be treated with the same dignity of scientific and fact-based information, on the basis of a flawed assumption of freedom of expression. Research has shown that misinformation has deep impact across society as a whole and appear to be tied to lower-income section of society. This proposal seemingly aims to ensure that misinformative views are represented on Google, as opposed to promoting transparency and accountability around the potential benefits of diversity and requesting transparency over the financial impact from these issues, avoid any suspicion and any damage that may cause to the company's reputation, or that the company may adopt a conduct different from what it has committed to. Opposition is thus recommended.

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. 4. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Charitable Contributions
Proponent's argument: National Legal and Policy Center requested that Comcast Corporation provide a report, published on the company's website and updated semi-annually – and omitting proprietary information and at reasonable cost – that discloses, itemizes and quantifies all Company charitable donations, aggregated by recipient name & address each year for contributions that exceed $999 annually. This report shall include: 1. Monetary and non-monetary contributions made to non-profit organizations operating under Section 501(c)(3) and 501(c)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code, and any other public or private charitable organization; 2. Policies and procedures for charitable contributions (both direct and indirect) made with corporate assets; 3. Rationale for each of the charitable contributions. "Comcast Corporation's assets belong to its shareholders. The expenditure or distribution of corporate assets, including charitable contributions, should be consistent with shareholder interests. Accordingly, the Company's policies and procedures for charitable contributions should be disclosed to shareholders. Company executives exercise wide discretion over the use of corporate assets for charitable purposes. Absent a system of transparency and accountability for charitable contributions, Company executives may use Company assets for objectives that are not shared by and may be inimical to the interests of the Company and its shareholders. Current disclosure is insufficient to allow the Company's Board, its shareholders, and its current and prospective customers to fully evaluate the charitable use of corporate assets. There is currently no single source providing shareholders the information sought by this resolution."
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "Comcast strives to positively affect the communities where our employees, customers and audiences live and work through charitable giving, reporting on this community impact giving annually. As we have outlined in our 2021 Impact Report, as a company uniquely positioned to inform, entertain and empower, we seek to bring together diverse communities and inspire our employees, customers and audiences to make a positive social impact. In 2020, we invested $496 million in the communities where we operate through cash and in-kind donations, including donations of $31 million to organizations led by and serving people of color and $5 million to organizations led by and serving women. Comcast also empowers employees to give back to their communities by matching their contributions to eligible, tax-exempt charitable organizations dollar-for-dollar up to $1,000 annually. In 2020, 6,400 employees participated in the matching gift program, generating over $5 million donated to approximately 5,600 non-profit organizations recommended by employees. On top of our existing community impact giving efforts, in 2020, we announced an incremental multi-year $100 million commitment to help advance social justice and equality. We provided an update in 2021 on our progress toward this initiative(2), which we are well on track to fulfill by the end of 2022."
PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company-approved charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship. However, this resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company's customers can donate. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company provides donations to a variety of charities, including those that some shareholders may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be equally acceptable. Given the diversity that already exists among the organisations available for donations, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

6. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Omitting Viewpoint and Ideology from EEO Policy

Proponent's argument: National Center for Public Policy Research requested that Comcast Corporation ("Comcast") issue a public report detailing the potential risks associated with omitting "viewpoint" and "ideology" from its written equal employment opportunity (EEO) policy. The report should be available within a reasonable timeframe, prepared at a reasonable expense and omit proprietary information. "Comcast does not explicitly prohibit discrimination based on viewpoint or ideology in its written EEO policy. Comcast's lack of a company-wide best practice EEO policy sends mixed signals to company employees and prospective employees and calls into question the extent to which individuals are protected due to inconsistent state policies and the absence of federal protection for partisan activities. Approximately half of Americans live and work in a jurisdiction with no legal protections if their employer takes action against them for their political activities or discriminates on the basis of viewpoint in the workplace. Companies with inclusive policies are better able to recruit the most talented employees from a broad labor pool, resolve complaints internally to avoid costly litigation or reputational damage, and minimize employee turnover. Moreover, inclusive policies contribute to more efficient human capital management by eliminating the need to maintain different policies in different locations. There is ample evidence that individuals with conservative viewpoints may face discrimination at Comcast."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "We recognize that our employees hold a wide range of political viewpoints, and we respect that diversity of thought as long as its expression is consistent with applicable law and our company's policies. As set forth in our Code of Conduct, "respect for each other" is one of our core values. We are committed to a culture of fairness, respect and inclusion that drives us to value and embrace differences, including with respect to political affiliation. Our current company policies and practices already make clear that diverse viewpoints are not only respected but encouraged. We are committed to creating a culture that is safe and accessible for all and that affirms different perspectives. Our recent employee engagement survey results have confirmed that the vast majority of our employees believe that their managers encourage an environment where different perspectives are valued and that there is an equal opportunity to have a successful career at Comcast regardless of differences or background. Given our existing policies and practices, we do not believe that adding 'viewpoint' or 'ideology' to our equal employment opportunity policy is in the best interests of our shareholders. Our equal employment policy prohibits discrimination and harassment based on protected characteristics such as race, color, religion, creed, ethnicity, national origin or ancestry, citizenship or immigration status, sex, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity or expression, and any other characteristic protected by law. This latter protection would include any state or local law that prohibits an employer from taking action based on an employee's political affiliation or political activities."

PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of diversity lie in widening the perspectives on business issues brought to bear on innovation, avoiding too great a similarity of attitude and helping companies understand their customers, marketplace, supply chain and workforces. Disclosure surrounding the workforce's composition allows shareholders to consider workforce diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company. Disclosure of a policy to improve diversity and goals that have been set to meet this policy also reassures shareholders that a diverse workforce is not just an aspiration but a goal. However, this resolution has been filed as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's workforce diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented in the workforce as well as so-called liberal perspectives. While there is nothing inherently wrong about the proponents request for political and ideological tolerance, the requested report is too one-sided to provide any real benefit to shareholders. For these reasons, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

6. Authorise the Board to Fix Directors' Remuneration
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting. Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market; support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting; as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. As abstention is not a valid voting outcomes on this resolution, opposition is recommended.

8. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

CATCO REINSURANCE OPPORTUNITIES AGM - 01-06-2022

ii. Approve the Remuneration Report
Shareholders are being asked to approve the Company's annual report on remuneration. Disclosure of figures and policy is adequate. The aggregate limit set in relation to Directors' remuneration was not exceeded during the year. Directors' remuneration does not comprise any performance-related element, which is welcomed. It is further noted that no additional discretionary payments were made in the year. There was no increase in individual fees during the year under review. Overall, the remuneration practices and the level of fees paid to the Board are considered acceptable.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive Directors with an advisory vote. The Company discloses all elements of remuneration for Executives and Non-Executives. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component, which makes is unlikely that shareholders reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for more than 10% of the current share capital, and the duration of the authority would exceed 12 months. It is considered that share issuances without pre-emptive rights should be limited to 10% of the issued share capital and shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

5. Discharge the Board and the Auditors
Standard proposal. No serious governance concerns have been identified that would lead to a recommendation to oppose the discharge of the board. However, in this market, auditors discharge may prevent lawsuits or claims for activities carried out during the year relating to facts that have not been disclosed to shareholders. As a consequence, releasing auditors from liability will weaken the governance framework and introduce great risks for investors. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

With this resolution, the Board is seeking authority that Members of the Board of Directors and to other Executives of the Bank may participate in the Boards of Directors and/or in the Management of companies of the Group, having similar purposes to those of the Company. This authority is not sought for defined appointments. As a consequence, if approved, this authority may lead to potential time commitment concerns. In addition, an excessive number positions within the same company may develop excessive familiarity and trust, which would eventually hinder an effective independent oversight by directors (while there is already insufficient independent representation on the Board). On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

There are concerns with the Plan as the it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive. As a result, opposition is recommended.

SAMSONITE INTERNATIONAL SA AGM - 02-06-2022

4.1. Elect Timothy Charles Parker - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Director. Not considered to be independent as he was the Chief Executive Officer of the Company until 30 September 2014. In addition, he is a significant shareholder of the Company. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.2. Elect Paul Kenneth Etchells - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Renew Mandate Granted to KPMG Luxembourg as Statutory Auditor

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 33.33% of audit fees during the year under review and 38.41% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Approve KPMG LLP as External Auditor

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 33.33% of audit fees during the year under review and 38.41% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Approve Discharge of Directors and Auditors
Discharge of auditor is not compulsory in this market and is not included in or recommended by the local corporate governance code (the Ten Principles). Auditors discharge may prevent lawsuits or claims for activities carried out during the year relating to facts that have not been disclosed to shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

PROSEGUR COMPANIA DE SEGURIDAD AGM - 02-06-2022

5. Elect Helena Irene Revoredo Delvecchio - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. Not considered to be independent as she represents Gubel. She is also the majority shareholder with nearly 51.6% of the Company's share capital. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Elect Chantal Gut Revoredo - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director has close family ties with the Chair, major shareholder, and the Chief Executive. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive Directors with an advisory vote. The Company discloses all elements of remuneration for Executives and Non-Executives. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

11. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

XXL ASA AGM - 02-06-2022

4. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
It is proposed to increase the amount payable to the Board of Directors by more than 10% on annual basis. The increase is considered material and exceeds guidelines, while the company has not duly justified it. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Elect Board: Slate Election
Proposal to renew the Board with a bundled election. Although slate elections are not considered to be best practice, they are common in this market. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board after the meeting as resulting from this slate of candidates.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Approve the Remuneration of the Nomination Committee
The Board is seeking approval for remuneration of the Shareholders' Nomination Committee. The proposed increase is more than 10% on annual basis, which is considered excessive, as the Company has not provided sufficient justification. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Elect Nomination Committee
It is proposed to appoint the following nominees to the Nomination Committeee with a bundled election: Christian Berg and Lars Eriksson. Sufficient biographical information has been disclosed but Lars Eriksson is not considered to be independent. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Board Authorisation to Increase the Share Capital - Share Incentive Program
The Board requests authority to approve an authority for the issue of shares by private placement. This authority is not requested in connection with a particular operation and has not been duly justified by the Company. Opposition is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11. Board Authorisation to Increase the Share Capital – Financing

XINYI SOLAR HOLDINGS LTD AGM - 02-06-2022

3B. Authorise the Board to Fix Directors' Remuneration
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market; support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting; as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. As abstention is not a valid voting outcomes on this resolution, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Appoint the Auditors (PricewaterhouseCoopers) and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid during the year under review and 20.77% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5A. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5B. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
The authority is exceeding 10% of the share capital and expires at the next AGM. The authority exceeds recommended limits. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5C. Extend the General Share Issue Mandate to Repurchased Shares
The directors seek authority to re-issue shares repurchased under the authority proposed at this meeting. The effect of the proposal, if approved, the limit for issuance of shares would exceed 10% of issued share capital. Given the concerns over dilution of the shareholder rights, opposition is recommended.

CARREFOUR SA AGM - 03-06-2022

1. Approve Financial Statements and Statutory Reports
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain

2. Approve Consolidated Financial Statements and Statutory Reports

10. Approve Compensation of Alexandre Bompard, Chairman and CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to XXX with a binding vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11. Approve Remuneration Policy of Chairman and CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Approve Company's Climate Transition Plan
It is proposed to approve the Climate transition plan of the company. The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.
The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.
The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting.
However, there does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.

The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.
Overall, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% and 26 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

GENTING BHD AGM - 03-06-2022

1. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
Non-Executive Directors receive a variable component on top of their fees. It is considered that non-executive directors should receive only fixed fees, as variable compensation may align them with short-term interests and not with long-term supervisory duties. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Approve Benefits and Other Allowances Payable to the Board of Directors
It is proposed to approve benefits payable to the board of directors that includes: a driver, corporate club membership subscription and leave passage, among others. Except for travel expenses, other benefits are understood as variable remuneration. It is considered that Non-Executive Directors should not receive variable pay. On this ground, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Elect R. Thillainathan - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director. Not considered to be independent as he is a former executive of the Company. He was the Chief Operating Officer of the Company from 27 November 2002 to 9 September 2006 and retired as an Executive Director on 30 July 2007. He was re-designated as independent on 30 July 2009. He has been with the Genting Group since 1989. He also holds shares in Genting Singapore Plc. His spouse and children hold interests in Genting Malaysia Berhad, Genting Plantations Berhad. It is considered that the senior independent director should be considered independent, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Elect Eric Ooi Lip Aun - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered to be independent, as this director is considered to be in a material connection with the current auditor. He was a partner of PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC), Malaysia until his retirement in June 2015 after 38 years of service. PwC has been the Company's auditor since 2012. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Appoint the Auditors (PwC) and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

8. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

7. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.3, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 1.6,

8. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy with a binding vote. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on potential excessive variable remuneration.

10.2. Elect Elisabeth Stadler - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. There are concerns over the director's potential time commitments, and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 91.1, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 8.9,

10.5. Elect Stefan Doboczky - Non-Executive Director
Chair of the Sustainability Committee. The Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 99.4, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.6,

9.1. Approve Long Term Incentive Plan 2022 for Key Employees
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. The perfromance criteria, TSR and Free Cash Flow, have been disclosed but not quantified, and targets can be exceeded, with max payment reaching 200% of target.

LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

HONG KONG & CHINA GAS CO LTD AGM - 06-06-2022

3.1. Elect Lam Ko Yin Colin - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered to be independent as he is a director of Hopkins Limited, Rimmer Limited and Riddick Limited, which in aggregate hold a controlling share of the issued share capital of the Company, primarily through Henderson Land Development Company Limited of which he is Vice Chair and which is a controlling shareholder of the company. Finally, he has served on the Board for more than nine years.. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3.2. Elect Moses Cheng Mo-chi - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. There are concerns over the director's potential time commitments, and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Approve PricewaterhouseCoopers as Auditor and Authorize Board to Fix Their Remuneration
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 54.74% of audit fees during the year under review and 41.53% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises major concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5.1. Authorize Repurchase of Issued Share Capital
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Approve New Executive Share Option Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted stock options, each of which will give right to one share. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure. LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose

SINO BIOPHAMACEUTICAL LTD AGM - 06-06-2022

3. Elect Tse, Theresa Y Y - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Elect Lu Zhengfei - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered to be independent, as the Company has not disclosed the date of first appointment and, as such, a potentially excessive tenure cannot be calculated. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Elect Li Dakui - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. Abstention from voting this resolution is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

9. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.65% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.53% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10.A. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
The authority is exceeding 10% of the share capital and expires at the next AGM. The authority exceeds recommended limits. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11. Amend Articles
It is proposed to make a number of amendments to the Company's articles. This includes a provision that the Company will be authorised to make payments in respect of the purchase of shares out of capital or other accounts or funds. There are concerns that this may allow the Company to repurchase shares without seeking shareholder approval in the future, therefore limiting shareholder rights.
Other new provisions in the articles are to comply with legislation, reflect the update par value of shares, allow for both phyiscal and virtual meetings, expressly provide that members have the right to speak at general meetings and other aspects related to the organisation of general meetings. These do not provoke governance concerns. In addition, the amendments have been disclosed in full and in English, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended due to the aforementioned concerns about limitations to shareholder rights.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10.C. Extend the General Share Issue Mandate to Repurchased Shares
The directors seek authority to re-issue shares repurchased under the authority proposed at this meeting. The effect of the proposal, if approved, the limit for issuance of shares would exceed 10% of issued share capital. Given the concerns over dilution of the shareholder rights, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10.B. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

UNITEDHEALTH GROUP INCORPORATED AGM - 06-06-2022

1c. Elect Stephen J. Hemsley - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair. Not considered independent as the director previously served as Executive Chair and Chief Executive Officer. There is sufficient independent representation on the Board. As none there are no Sustainability Committee members up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.2, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 2.7,

1d. Elect Michele J. Hooper - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the senior independent director should be considered independent, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.7, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 4.1,

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACB. Based on this rating, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 93.9, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 5.9,

3. Appoint the Auditors
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 5.64% of audit fees during the year under review and 6.68% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.8, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 3.0,

OI S.A. EGM - 06-06-2022

1. Approve Financial Statements
Disclosure is acceptable and the report was made available sufficiently before the meeting. However, The Company has not disclosed the fees paid to the auditors for the year under review, and what non-audit services have been provided, if any. Under Brazilian legislation, companies are not required in their financial statements to disclose the amount paid for the External Audit except where additional services have been engaged and the value of such services exceeds 5% of the total amount paid to the external auditor. Nevertheless, it is considered that companies should go beyond minimum regulatory requirements. Not disclosing the fees paid to the auditors is considered to be a serious breach of shareholder accountability, as it is impossible to assess the existence of potential conflicts of interest that would hinder the independence of the auditor. On this ground, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

DISTRIBUCION INTERNACIONAL de ALIMENTACION AGM - 07-06-2022

5. Renew Appointment of Ernst & Young as Auditor
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 44.08% of audit fees during the year under review and 50.03% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises major concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Re-Elect Stephan DuCharme - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy with a binding vote. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on potential excessive variable remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive Directors with an advisory vote. The Company discloses all elements of remuneration for Executives and Non-Executives. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

15. Authorize Increase in Capital up to 50 Percent via Issuance of Equity or Equity-Linked Securities, Excluding Preemptive Rights of up to 20 Percent
Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital and for five years. Although in line with local legal requirements, it is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

Vote Cast: Oppose

16. Authorize Issuance of Convertible Bonds, Debentures, Warrants, and Other Debt Securities up to EUR 500 Million with Exclusion of Preemptive Rights up to 20 Percent of Capital
The Board requests shareholder authorization to issue debt, including convertible debt without pre-emptive rights, up to 20% of the share capital, over a period of five years. This is in accordance with Article 507 of the Capital Companies Act, but it exceeds guidelines for issuance without pre-emptive rights.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3.9. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting. Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. Abstention from voting this resolution is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

5. To give a general mandate to the Directors to repurchase shares of the Company
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. To give a general mandate to the Directors to issue new shares of the Company
The authority is exceeding 10% of the share capital and expires at the next AGM. The authority exceeds recommended limits. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Extend the General Share Issue Mandate to Repurchased Shares
The directors seek authority to re-issue shares repurchased under the authority proposed at this meeting. The effect of the proposal, if approved, the limit for issuance of shares would exceed 10% of issued share capital. Given the concerns over dilution of the shareholder rights, opposition is recommended.

2. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 13.75% of audit fees during the year under review and 15.34% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.7, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 5.2,

3. Amend Existing Omnibus Plan
It is proposed to amend the Stock Incentive Plan. It is proposed to make the following the changes: Increases the shares available for issuance under the SIP by 27,000,000 shares; Extends the term of the SIP to June 7, 2032, the tenth anniversary of this year's annual meeting of shareholders; Provides that, subject to shareholder approval, the aggregate value of awards granted to each non-employee director under the SIP, together with the value of cash retainers and all other compensation paid to the non-employee director, for his or her services as a director in any fiscal year, may not exceed USD 800,000; Provides the ECC with discretion to determine treatment of awards upon a change of control and eliminates the default single-trigger vesting of awards upon a change of control; Removes certain provisions relating to Section 162(m) of the Internal Revenue Code (Section 162(m)) that are no longer applicable following elimination of the performance-based compensation exception to Section 162(m)'s limitation on deductibility by the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017; Makes other administrative changes.
There are concerns with the Plan as the it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive. As a result, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.7, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 4.2,

4. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADC. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 48.2, Abstain: 3.0, Oppose/Withhold: 48.8,

CENTRICA PLC AGM - 07-06-2022

3. Approve Remuneration Policy
Changes proposed: i) The introduction of a new Restricted Share Plan (RSP) in replacement of the LTIP award ii) Executive Directors will be required to hold 100% of vested incentive shares until the shareholding requirement is met, increased from 75% under the current Policy, iii) The post-employment shareholding requirement will be increased to 100% of the in-role shareholding requirement (or actual shareholding on departure if lower) for a period of 2 years and iv) Only shares earned from vested incentives will be included within the post-employment shareholding requirement so as not to disincentives Executives from purchasing additional shares in the company.
Total variable pay could reach 350% of the salary and is considered excessive since is higher than 200%. On the Annual Incentive Plan (AIP) 50% is paid in cash and 50% defer to shares for a three year period which is inline with best practice. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. On the Restricted Share plan awards will vest after three years, a period which is not considered sufficiently long term, however a two year holding period applies which is welcomed. In addition dividends may accrue on vesting awards from the date of grant. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval at general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties, including the new s172 duties, should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'. As such, PIRC may recommend opposition on any remuneration policy or report proposals containing variable remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 83.5, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 16.5,

4. Approve Share Incentive Plan

It is proposed to approve the company's Share Incentive Plan. Eligible to participate in the plan are Executive Directors and all employees of the Company and any subsidiaries. Under the plan the three types of shares can be offered to employees based in the UK: i) The SIP provides for the award of free shares worth up to a maximum set by the legislation (currently £3,600) to each eligible employee each year. The shares must generally be offered on similar terms, but the award may be subject to performance targets, ii) The SIP provides for employees to be offered the opportunity to purchase shares out of monthly savings contributions from pre-tax salary of up to the maximum set by the legislation (currently £1,800 in each tax year, or 10% of salary if less). Employees can stop saving at any stage. The employees' contributions may be used to buy partnership shares immediately or accumulated for up to 12 months before they are used to buy shares, and iii) The SIP provides that where employees buy partnership shares, they may be awarded additional shares by the Company on a matching basis, up to a current maximum of two matching shares for each partnership share. Currently a one for two matching award is offered, capped at 22 matching shares per month. Matching shares must be held in trust for a minimum of three years and will be free of income tax if held in trust for five years. The SIP provides that the Directors may permit any dividends paid on the free, partnership or matching shares to be re-invested in the purchase of additional shares, which must be held in the SIP for a period of three years. Participants may be offered the opportunity to direct the trustees how to exercise the voting rights attributable to the shares held on their behalf. The trustees will not exercise the voting rights unless they receive the participants' instructions. Commitments to issue new shares may not, on any day, exceed 10% of the issued ordinary share capital of the Company. It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.
Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.5, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.5,

5. Approve Long-Term Incentive Plan

It is proposed to approve the Long-Term Incentive Plan of the company. Under the plan eligible to participate are all employees of the company its subsidiaries and associated companies including executive directors. The Long Term Incentive Plan (LTIP) gives participants the right to receive shares in the Company subject to the satisfaction of any performance conditions or underpin and continued employment. The LTIP, participants will granted an award over shares in the Company which will vest subject to the participant remaining in employment and subject to the satisfaction of any performance conditions. The award may take the form of a conditional share award or an option to acquire shares. The exercise price is seton grant and may be zero. The receipt of shares on the vesting of an award may be subject to performance conditions set by the Committee at the time of grant which will normally be tested over at least three financial years. As noted in the proposed Directors' Remuneration Policy, for so long as that policy is in place, Executive Directors of the Company will only be eligible to be granted restricted share awards under the LTIP. An award will normally only vest to the extent any performance condition (or the underpin, in the case of a restricted share award) is met. It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.
Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders.

On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

14. Re-appoint Deloitte LLP as Auditors
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 13.43% of audit fees during the year under review and 10.19% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

16. Approve Political Donations
The proposed authority is subject to an overall aggregate limit on political donations and expenditure of GBP 125,000. The Company did not make any political donations or incur any political expenditure and has no intention either now or in the future of doing so. However, the aggregate total amount exceeds recommended limits. An abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 97.0, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 2.6,

20. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.4, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 2.6,

21. Authorise Share Repurchase
The authority is limited to 10% of the Company's issued share capital and will expire at the next AGM. 5. Shareholder Resolution: Adopt French as the Official Language of the Corporation
Proponent's argument: MEDAC proposed that the language of the corporation be French, including the language of business in Quebec, as well as the language at annual meetings. "The head office of the Corporation is in the Province of Québec, a French-speaking state. The state of Québec has existed for over 400 years. Also, the official language of Québec is French. The state of Québec is the only French-speaking State in America. The language of a people is its most essential fundamental attribute, an existential attribute. The diversity of the world cannot in any way be reduced to questions strictly related to the biological nature of individuals or to the arbitration of individual privileges. The diversity of the world is first and foremost a collective issue based essentially on the culture of peoples. The people of Québec, through its territorial state and its public institutions, beginning with its national assembly, constitution, and charters, ensure the protection of linguistic diversity in the world by rigorously protecting the collective and public nature of its language. The spirit of the Law is clear, including the spirit of the reforms to the federal and Quebec laws. Respecting and promoting this attribute of global diversity is a matter of social responsibility for all companies. "
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "Dollarama is sensitive to the fact most of its shareholders are located outside of Québec and have English as their preferred language of communication. All shareholder materials are made available in French and in English, including materials prepared for the annual meetings of shareholders. Dollarama's annual general meeting is conducted virtually since 2020, in French and in English, with simultaneous translation available in each language. Shareholders may ask questions in the language of their choice, and questions asked in French are answered in French."
PIRC analysis: It is welcomed for companies to include local languages in disclosure and at meetings. However, this proposal would decrease disclosure for non-French investors and the company does not clarify whether translation services would be provided or whether the disclosure of filings would be provided also in other than French language. It is considered that diversity should increase and not restrict opportunities for shareholders and stakeholders alike. Opposition is recommended.

4. The Issuance of 2021 Domestic Unsecured Ordinary Corporate Bond
It is proposed to issue non-convertible bonds for private placement.Although there is no indication that these instruments will be convertible into shares, and therefore there is no risk of unexpected dilution of existing shareholders, it is considered that authorities for private placement should be duly justified, namely regarding the rationale and the beneficiary of the placement. In lack of it, opposition is recommended.

1.3. Elect Marcos Galperín - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

2. Advisory Vote to Ratify Named Executive Officers' Compensation
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

MTG-MODERN TIMES GROUP AB AGM - 08-06-2022

10. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

16. Determine Number of Auditors; Ratify KPMG as Auditors
The Board of Directors proposes that one auditor shall be elected. Support is recommended. KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 41.67% of audit fees during the year under review and 103.85% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises major concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

17.b. Approve Equity Plan 2022 Financing Through Issuance of Class C Shares
It is proposed a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to receive shares in exchange for part of the reinvestment of their salary. The shares resulting from reinvestment will be matched by free shares awarded by the Company. While re-investment of the bonus in shares, or payment of part or all of the bonus in shares, are considered positive practice, share matching plans are viewed as a de facto discount for executives to buy company shares. They can eventually result in excessive payments versus performance. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

17.c. Approve Equity Plan 2022 Financing Through Repurchase of Class C Shares
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

17.e. Approve Alternative Equity Plan Financing Through Equity Swap Agreement with Third Party
The Board requests authority to repurchase and re-issue the shares to participants in the long term incentive plan proposed at the present meeting. Although companies have a legal duty to fund approved plans, this resolution is considered to be a proposal enabling the LTIP proposed. Based on the concerns on the resolution for the approval of the LTIP, opposition is recommended also on this resolution.

19.e. Approve Authority to Increase Authorised Share Capital
A Authority is sought to increase the authorised share capital of the Company up to SEK 585,075,275. At this time, the company has not disclosed whether successive increases would be carried out with or without pre-emptive rights. As such, the aggregate authority may exceed recommended limits for issues with or without pre-emptive rights. An oppose vote is therefore recommended.

23. Approve Transaction with a Related Party; Approve Issuance of Shares to Minority Shareholder in MTG Gaming
It is proposed to extend the insurance cover to the members of the governing bodies of all Group companies. The insurance policy covers the civil liability (and related legal and advisory expenses) of the members of the governing bodies of all Group companies versus third parties, deriving from non-fraudulent conduct in breach of the obligations deriving from the law or intrinsic to their duties. In addition, the insurance does not explicitly exclude that it would cover also liabilities arising from fraudulent conduct, and fines handed down by the supervisory authorities. On this basis, shareholders would pay wilful violations and fraudulent conduct led by directors and executives. Opposition is thus recommended.

1. Approve Standalone Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy
Changes proposed: i) Annual Bonus: the level of deferral will be increased from 20% of any bonus earned for two years to one third of any bonus earned for three years. In addition the bonus deferral mechanism will be changed such that the Executive will be required to purchase shares outright which are then subject to a holding period during which time they cannot be sold, ii) Target pay out for annual bonus will reduce from 60% to 50% of maximum, iii) The post-employment shareholding requirement will be increased to 200% of salary for two years post-cessation and iv) policy wording has been refined in relation to pension alignment with the workforce and the provision of payments made in relation to a notice period or PILON payments to align with market best practice.
Although some of the changes are welcomed there are still concerns over the remuneration policy of the company. On the Annual Bonus although the deferral part increased from 20% to 33.3% still is not considered adequate, it would be preferable 50% of the Bonus to be paid in cash and 50% to defer to shares for at least three years. On the Long-term Incentive plan there are no non-financial performance measures attached to the LTIP and so the focus of remuneration policy is not the operational performance of the business as a whole or the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Instead, the focus of the remuneration policy is financial KPIs, which mainly include factors beyond an individual director's control. Performance period is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, however a two year holding period applies which is welcomed. Dividends may accrue on vesting awards from the date of grant. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay. In addition, total variable pay could reach 285% of the salary for the CEO and 275% of the salary for the CFO and is considered excessive since is higher than 200%.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval at general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties, including the new s172 duties, should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'. As such, PIRC may recommend opposition on any remuneration policy or report proposals containing variable remuneration

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 14.29% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.79% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

14. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. 7. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers as auditors to the Company
PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid for the year under review and non-audit fees represents 17.41% of audit fees on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

12. Issue Additional Shares for Cash
The board is seeking shareholder approval for the issuance of additional shares for cash and expires at the next AGM. It is noted the share issuance shall be limited to the allotment of equity securities for cash in connection with the Company's discount control mechanism up to an aggregate nominal amount of EUR 406,670. The authority to allot further shares of 10% for cash is considered excessive, since in combination with resolution 11 a total of 20% of the share capital will be issue for cash. On balance, an oppose vote is recommended.

13. Authorise Share Repurchase
Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager), we would like to see a public statement:
- addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

There are concerns with the Plan as the it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. 4. Ratify Ernst & Young LLP as Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 25.97% of audit fees during the year under review and 32.31% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

5. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: AEB. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

5. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 2.86% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.3, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 2.7,

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

8. Approve Creation of EUR 35 Million Pool of Authorized Capital with or without Exclusion of Preemptive Rights
Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital. However, the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 91.3, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 8.7,

9. Approve Issuance of Warrants/Bonds with Warrants Attached/Convertible Bonds without Preemptive Rights
The Board seeks authority to issue convertible bonds, warrant bonds, profit participation rights and/or income bonds (or a combination of these instruments) and to exclude subscription rights for a nominal amount corresponding to more than 10% of the share capital and for five years. As the authority would also include bonds convertible and without pre-emptive rights, the amount under this authority exceeds guidelines for issues of shares without pre-emptive rights.

BLACKROCK SMALLER COMPANIES TRUST PLC AGM - 09-06-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
A dividend was put forward for shareholder's approval, which is welcomed. The company have disclosed a voting policy indicating how they vote on issues relating to investment and investee companies. In addition, it is noted ESG matters are taken into account in investment decisions which is welcomed. Administration and company secretarial duties are undertaken by the Investment Manager of the company. Independence from the management company is considered a key governance issue affecting investment trusts and to ensure that the management company is not used as a conduit for shareholder communication with the board. Where administrative duties are carried out by the company related to the manager, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 93.7, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 6.3,

9. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as auditors of the Company
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 8.89% of audit fees during the year under review and 9.52% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

13. Authorise Share Repurchase

Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager), we would like to see a public statement:
- addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

13. Approve Remuneration Policy And Other Terms of Employment For Executive Management
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. ULTRA ELECTRONICS HOLDINGS PLC AGM - 10-06-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 98.6, Abstain: 1.4, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Increase in CEO salary is considered in line with the rest of the company. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of PIRC's comparator group, which raises concerns over excesiveness. Changes in CEO total pay over the last five years are not considered in line with company financial performance over the same period. The variable remuneration for the year under review is 446.36% of the base salary (Annual Bonus: 151% and LTIP 292.36%). The ratio of CEO to average employee pay has been estimated and is found not acceptable at 31:1. Rating: AE

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

7. Re-Elect Tony Rice - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is not up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability an abstain vote is recommended.

10. Reappoint Deloitte LLP as Auditors

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.31% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

14. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

15. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

NAN YA PLASTICS CORP AGM - 10-06-2022

5.1. Elect Chia Chau Wu - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5.7. Elect Shen-Yi Lee - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. The Director is a Representative of Formosa Chemicals & Fiber Corporation, a significant shareholder of the Company. Additionally, she has been on the board for over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5.10. Elect Zo-Chun Jen - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. The Director is a Representative of Formosa Chemicals & Fiber Corporation, a significant shareholder of the Company. Additionally, he has been on the board for over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5.12. Elect Ching-Cheng Chang - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Representative of Freedom Internation Enterprise Company. Additionally, not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

5.15. Elect Yun-Peng Chu - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Approve Release of Directors from Non-Competition Restriction
Approval is sought for directors to serve on the board of other companies engaged in activities within the scope of the company's business. There are concerns over the risks and potential negative impact on shareholders interest connected to directors or other officers of the Company serving for competing companies. In addition, there is insufficient description on how the Company will take measure to monitor the conflicts of interest and prevent any negative effect for the Company and ultimately its shareholders. Therefore, an oppose vote is recommended.

EMPRESAS ICA SAB DE CV AGM - 10-06-2022

1. Approve Financial Statements
At this time, the financial statements have not been made available. Although not uncommon in this market, it is considered a serious reporting omission. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Presentation of Tax Report
The report was not made available sufficiently before the meeting. Opposition is recommended, as this is considered a serious reporting omission.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Approve the Allocation of Income
It is proposed to allocate the income for the year under review. Although the dividend appears to be covered by earnings or disposable reserves, the financial statements for the year under review have not been disclosed at this time, making an informed assessment impossible. Abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

4. Elect Board: Slate Election
Bundled proposal to elect directors and approve their compensation. At this time, neither candidates nor their proposed compensation have been disclosed. Although it is common practice in this market (companies are not required to disclose the candidates for election to the board of directors or the committees prior to the meeting) it is considered that shareholders should be given sufficient information prior to the meeting and should not support director elections where insufficient information has been released. Abstention is recommended.

VPC SPECIALTY LENDING INVESTMENTS PLC AGM - 13-06-2022

10. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as auditors of the Company
PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

14. Authorise Share Repurchase
Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager), we would like to see a public statement:
- addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

4. Discharge the Board
Approval is sought to release the members of the Board regarding their activities in the Financial Year under review. The Company does not have an established whistle-blower hotline. It is considered that without a whistle-blower hotline, the company is potentially subject to reputational and financial damage by a lack of supervision of potential malpractice. For this reason, opposition is recommended.

5. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors for 2021
Non-Executive Directors receive a variable component on top of their fees. It is considered that non-executive directors should receive only fixed fees, as variable compensation may align them with short-term interests and not with long-term supervisory duties. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

6. Appoint the Auditors: R.G. Manabat & Company CPAs
R.G. Manabat & Co. proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Elect Ramon S. Ang - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Elect John Paul L. Ang - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director has close family ties with the Company. Mr. John Paul L. Ang is the son of Mr. Ramon S. Ang. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Elect Joselito F. Campos, Jr. - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as he is the Chief Operating Officer of Del Monte Pacific Limited whose subsidiaries are clients of the Corporation's packaging business. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11. Elect Jose C De Venecia Jr - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered to be independent based on the Company's own assessment. It was not possible to retrieve sufficient information on this director in order to assess independence. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

22. Transact Any Other Business
Shareholders should receive sufficient notice of proposals brought forward by either management or other shareholders. As such, any other proposition brought forward in the meeting would provide insufficient time for an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

23. Adjournment
The board requests authority to adjourn the special meeting until a later date or dates, if necessary, in order to permit further solicitation of proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the special meeting to approve the merger. An oppose vote is recommended to any adjournment or postponement of meetings if a sufficient number of votes are present to constitute a quorum. It is considered that where a quorum is present, the vote outcome should be considered representative of shareholder opinion.

7.2. Elect Audrey Tseng - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered to be independent, as this director is considered to be in a material connection with the current auditor: they formerly served as Deputy Chairman, Assurance Leader and Market Leader of PwC Taiwan. It is not possible to calculate whether a sufficient cooling-off period has since passed as the Company has not disclosed the precise dates of Tseng's employment at PwC. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

FCC SA AGM - 14-06-2022

3.1. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive Directors with an advisory vote. The Company discloses all elements of remuneration for Executives and Non-Executives. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

3.2. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: he was Director of Core Network Development Department of NTT DOCOMO, INC. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2.9. Elect Manuel V. Pangilinan - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. In addition, the Chief Executive is also a member and chair of both the remuneration and nomination committees. It is considered best practice that the remuneration and nomination committees should only comprise independent non-executive directors. An oppose vote is recommended.

As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

18. Reissue of Treasury Shares with Pre-emption Rights Disapplied
It is proposed to give authority to issue new shares or redistribute the shares repurchased under the authority submitted in the previous resolution. The Board will maintain full discretion over the use and destination of repurchased shares. The authority is valid up to next AGM. This is of concern as the Board could use this authority as an anti-takeover device or for an inappropriate form of compensation without further shareholder approval. The authorization can also be used for incentive arrangements, however, not more than 1,350,000 shares in total together with the authorization in item 18. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

20. Approve Charitable Donations
The board proposes to donate EUR 400,000 for charitable purposes under the Finnish Universities Act, which came into force at the beginning of 2010, and allows universities to accept private funding. The Board proposes that shareholders authorise it to decide on donations of up to EUR 400,000 to be given to universities by the group companies. The authorization will be valid until the closing of the next AGM. The Company has not explained to which universities and projects such funds would be donated. As the Company's explanation is not considered sufficient, opposition is recommended.

MERRY ELECTRONICS CO LTD AGM - 15-06-2022

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed that the amount to be remunerated to directors and the amount to be compensated to employees in 2021 is NTD 21,976,250 and NTD 95,230,414 distributed by cash, respectively, in accordance with Merry Corporation's charter. The compensation to employees in 2021 is distributed in accordance with Merry Corporation's charter. The Company will distribute either the whole amount at one time or specific amount at different times depending on the business policy in accordance with article 5-2 of "Employee Remuneration Distribution Regulations". It is proposed that the Board meeting authorize the CEO to determine the subsequent distribution in accordance with Merry Corporation's charter and "Employee Remuneration Distribution Regulations". No further disclosure has been provided regarding the composition of the remuneratino and abstention is recommended.

CHINA RESOURCES LAND LTD AGM - 15-06-2022

3.1. Elect Liu Xiaoyong - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the holding Company, China Resources (Holdings) Company Limited as Senior Deputy General Manager of Strategic Management Department. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 16.86% of audit fees during the year under review and 26.01% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. As abstention is not a valid voting outcomes on this resolution, opposition is recommended.

5. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
The authority is exceeding 10% of the share capital and expires at the next AGM. The authority exceeds recommended limits. An oppose vote is recommended.

7. Extend the General Share Issue Mandate to Repurchased Shares
The directors seek authority to re-issue shares repurchased under the authority proposed at this meeting. The effect of the proposal, if approved, the limit for issuance of shares would exceed 10% of issued share capital. Given the concerns over dilution of the shareholder rights, opposition is recommended.

FORESIGHT SOLAR FUND LIMITED AGM - 15-06-2022

9. Elect Peter Dicks - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. The director is not considered independent as he has a relationship with the Company, which is considered material. Although this director acted as a director of Foresight VCT Plc and resigned as its director on 25 May 2018, he is still considered to be non-independent as the cool-off period has not elasped. There are concerns over the director's potential aggregate time commitments, however, it is noted the director has attended all the board and committee meetings he was eligible to attend during the year under review. The director is also a member of the audit, remuneration and management engagement committees which should comprise wholly of independent directors. On balance, an oppose vote is recommended.

10. Appoint the Auditors
KPMG proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

13. Approve Investment Policy
The board is seeking shareholder approval for a proposed change in the Investment Policy.
Proposed Changes to the Company's Investment Policy:
It is proposed to authorise the proposed amendment to the Company's Investment Policy to allow the Company to invest up to five per cent of the Company's Gross Asset Value ("GAV") in Development Stage Assets, being solar or Battery Storage System ("BSS") opportunities that are pre-construction and may not have secured grid connection rights or planning consent at the date of investment. Such Investments may include direct investment in projects or investment via corporate development funding structures.
Recommendation:
Disclosure of rationale for the proposed change in policy is adequate. It is believed that any change in investment mandate can only be recommended where a fully independent management committee is in place, given that investment managers may be incentivised to alter a mandate to reweight or newly include a geography, sector or style by factors beyond the interests of this investment trust. As the management committee is not considered to be fully independent, an abstain vote is recommended.

1. Accept Financial Statements and Statutory Reports

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 97.9, Abstain: 1.9, Oppose/Withhold: 0.2,

2. Approve Remuneration Policy

Policy Rating: BDB Overall disclosure is satisfactory. Annual Bonus, maximum opportunity is at 200% of the salary, 50% of the bonus is paid in cash and 50% is deferred to shares for a period of three years in line with best practices. Performance measures are based on profit performance, individual strategic, objectives and performance against selected team and customer-related measures from the (WINcard) Groups balance scorecard. Malus and Clawback apply to the Annual Bonus. The LTIP has been replaced with a restricted share plan. Annual awards will be granted to a maximum of 125% of base salary each year, though there is no cap on the maximum value this award can attain through increasing share price. Additionally, vesting will be subject to at least two performance conditions, though these are not disclosed until the time of the grant. Awards for the Executives Directors are subject to performance underpins which for the first year are: average lease-adjusted net debt to funds and an average return on capital employed for the UK business over the three-year period. The awards granted to the Executives are measured over a period of three years. Total potential awards under all incentive schemes are considered excessive at over 200% of salary for the Annual Bonus and the RSP. Shareholding requirements set for Executive Directors are considered adequate.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 85.6, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 14.3,

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO's salary is in the median of the Company's comparator group. The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Variable remuneration for the year under review was 121.74% of the base salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 110:1, it is recommended that the ratio does not exceed 20:1. Rating: AC

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

9. Approve Compensation of Antoine Frerot, Chair and CEO

It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Antoine Frerot, Chair and CEO with a binding vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

11. Approve Remuneration Policy of Chair and CEO From 1 January 2022 to 30 June 2022
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. There are also serious concerns regarding indicators, such as that for Ethics and Compliance indicator (weight 5% of the total bonus at target), which is informed by the percentage of positive answers to the engagement survey question "Are Veolia's values applied in my entity" across all respondents. There is an unclear link between executive performance and the fact of ethical values being complied across the company. Employees and executives should be dismissed with cause if they have unethical behaviours, as opposed to be awarded based on a self-assessment of how ethical values are applied. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

12. Approve Remuneration Policy of Chair and CEO From 1 January 2022 to 30 June 2022 (Stock Bonus)
It is proposed that Mr. Antoine Frérot could receive an exceptional bonus in the form of a grant of 30,000 free shares. This exceptional grant would be subject to a vesting period of three years, and subject to the approval of the 12th and 25th resolutions. Obligation to hold shares granted and vested At the recommendation of the Compensation Committee, the Board of Directors' Meeting of April 5, 2022 decided, in the context of implementing the proposed free share grant plan (exceptional bonus), to renew the following holding obligations for Mr. Antoine Frérot: obligation to hold until the end of his duties, 40% of total free shares granted under this plan, net of applicable social security contributions and taxes, until he has ultimately reached a total shareholding equal to 200% of his gross annual fixed compensation.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure. Performance targets are not fully quantified at this time, and this is considered to be equivalent to a top-hat retirement compensation Sfor his departure from the combined position of Chair and CEO into that of Chair. These exceptional bonuses are not an appropriate way of compensating executives, as they remunerate beyond the executive's term and are mostly unrelated to the impact on company value that the executive may have enhanced. In addition, the board has still maintained discretion to adjust the remuneration policy to the upward, which although legally possible is against the spirit of a binding resolution such as the previous one. Opposition is recommended.

In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.
A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Given the potential for inequitable treatment of shareholders, opposition is recommended.

The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term.

14. Approve the Remuneration Report

19. Approve Remuneration Policy
Changes Proposed: i) Short-term Incentive Plan from 2024: Maximum Annual Bonus of 200% of base salary for the CEO and 150% for the FD/COO from 2024 onwards.. At least 75% of STIP performance measures will be financial in nature, with measures to include Return on Invested Capital, Underlying Revenue Growth and Profit/Earnings. In addition, performance outcomes will align to best practice, with 50% of the maximum bonus paid for on-target performance, scaling up to 100% for exceptional performance. Any bonus over 100% of salary will be paid in deferred shares and any new Directors appointed to the Board who are yet to reach their shareholding requirement will be required to defer at least one third of any bonus paid into shares until the requirement is met, ii) LTIP Award from 2024: Maximum long-term LTIP award of 325% of base salary for the CEO and 225% for the FD/COO, with a three-year vesting period, plus two-year holding period. The current intention is that performance measures will include a Cash Returns measure at 50% of the total, focused on three-year Cash flow Generation, a Relative TSR measure at 35% of the total, focused on total shareholder returns relative to a relevant peer group of comparable companies and an ESG measure at 15% of the total, aligned to the Group's Faster Forward sustainability strategy, with exact ESG metrics to be determined ahead of the 2024 performance period, iii) Post-cessation Shareholding Requirement: An increase in the CEO post-cessation holding requirement from 150% to 200% of base salary for the first two years post-employment with Informa, and a minimum of 150% of base salary for the FD/COO.

Some of the changes proposed are positive such as the introduction of an ESG measure to the LTIP award and the increase of the post-cessation holding requirement for the CEO . However, concerns are still remain for the remuneration policy of the company. More specific, total variable pay could reach 525% of the salary for the CEO and 475% of the salary for the FD/COO, this is considered excessive since is higher than 200%. On the Short-term, Incentive Plan (STIP) any Bonus over 100% will defer to shares and if a Director has not met the shareholding requirement will be required to defer at least one third of any bonus paid into shares. This is not considered adequate, it would be preferable 50% of the Bonus to be paid in cash and 50% to defer to shares for at least three years. On the LTIP award, performance period is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, however, a two year holding period applies which is welcomed. Dividends may accrue on vesting awards from the date of grant. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not.
PIRC policy on remuneration is: The expectations for pay schemes for approval at general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties, including the new s172 duties, should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'. As such, PIRC may recommend opposition on any remuneration policy or report proposals containing variable remuneration.

20. Approve Updated Informa Long-Term Incentive Plan
It is proposed to approve the amendments of the Long-Term Incentive Plan(LTIP) of the company. The Remuneration Committee is recommending that a performance-based long term incentive plan is re-introduced in the Policy in place of restricted share awards. It is noted that, the Remuneration Committee will not grant awards under the Updated LTIP Rules to the incumbent Executive Directors until 2024.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

21. Approve Updated Informa Deferred Share Bonus Plan
It is proposed to approve the amendments of the company's Deferred Share Plan. The proposed amendments are that any any annual bonus above 100% of basic salary would be paid to the Executive Directors in the form of ordinary shares and deferred for a further three years. The proposed amendment is not considered adequate since the majority of the Annual Bonus will be paid in cash. It would be preferable that 50% of the Bonus to be paid in cash and 50% to defer to shares for at least three years. Based on the mention concerns and in line with the recommendation of resolution 19, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 89.1, Abstain: 9.5, Oppose/Withhold: 1.4,

24. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.5, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 3.2,

25. Authorise Share Repurchase
The authority is limited to 10% of the Company's issued share capital and will expire at the next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.4, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.5,

26. Meeting Notification-related Proposal
It is proposed that a general meeting of the Company other than an annual general meeting may be called on not less than 14 clear days' notice.
It is considered that all companies should aim to provide at least 20 working days notice for general meetings in order to give shareholders sufficient time to consider what are often complex issues. However, the proposed change is permissible by the Companies Act. It is noted that in the 2021 Annual General Meeting the proposal received significant opposition of 11.86% of the votes and the company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders, therefore abstention is recommended.

MELIA HOTELS INTL SA AGM - 16-06-2022

2.2. Elect Luis Maria Diaz De Bustamante Y Terminel - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: the director is external proprietary director. Additionally, not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6.1. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive Directors with an advisory vote. The Company discloses all elements of remuneration for Executives and Non-Executives. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

6.2. Approve Long-Term Incentive Plan
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

5. Appoint the Auditors and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
Deloitte proposed. An adequate break-down of the nature of non-audit fees is not provided, which makes the assessment of auditor's independence based on the non-audit fee impossible. The date of appointment of the auditor is not disclosed, meaning that there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. An oppose vote is recommended.

TBC BANK GROUP PLC AGM - 16-06-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
Disclosure is adequate. The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and have been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice. In addition to the board-level accountability, it is recommended to abstain also from voting on the annual report, as sustainability (and the concerns associated with its governance at the company) is included in the annual report submitted for approval.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 99.0, Abstain: 1.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO's salary is in the lower quartile of the comparator group. It is noted that the remuneration report on 2020 Annual General Meeting received significant opposition of 22.75% of the votes. The company disclosed information's how it address the issue with its shareholders. The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review was approximately at 213.1% (Annual Bonus: 83.5%, LTIP: 129.6%) which is considered excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is considered highly excessive at 190:1. It is recommended that the CEO pay ratio to be at 20:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.7, Abstain: 3.8, Oppose/Withhold: 1.5,

9. Re-elect Eran Klein - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Sustainability Committee. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 99.0, Abstain: 1.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

13. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 33.44% of audit fees during the year under review and 25.79% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. Abstention is recommended.

INTERNATIONAL CONSOLIDATED AIRLINES GROUP SA AGM - 16-06-2022

8. Approve Remuneration Policy

Proposed 2022 Policy amendment to replace 2021 maximum opportunity for the Restricted share plan from 100% of the salary to 150% of the salary.
Total variable pay could reach 350% of the salary and is considered excessive since is higher than 200%. On the Annual incentive award, 50% of the annual incentive award is deferred into shares, which is in line with best practices. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. The vesting period for the restricted share plan is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, although a two year holding period apply which is welcomed. Dividend accrual is not prohibited. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Malus and clawback provisions apply for all variable pay.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval at general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties, including the new s172 duties, should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'. As such, PIRC may recommend opposition on any remuneration policy or report proposals containing variable remuneration.

2. Approve Benefits and Other Allowances Payable to the Board of Directors
It is proposed to approve benefits payable to the board of directors that include: company car, petrol and driver for Non-Executive Chairman; and telecommunication devices/facilities, medical and insurance coverage for other directors. Except for travel expenses, other benefits are understood as variable remuneration. It is considered that Non-Executive Directors should not receive variable pay. On this ground, opposition is recommended.

1. Approve Consolidated and Standalone Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

9. To approve and adopt the new share option scheme of the Company in the form of the document marked "A" and produced to the AGM as the new share option scheme of the Company.
It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.
Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

6.1. Elect Cher Wang - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

12. Approve Release of Restrictions of Competitive Activities of Eric Chen
Approval is sought for directors to serve on the board of other companies engaged in activities within the scope of the company's business. There are concerns over the risks and potential negative impact on shareholders interest connected to directors or other officers of the Company serving for competing companies. In addition, there is insufficient description on how the Company will take measure to monitor the conflicts of interest and prevent any negative effect for the Company and ultimately its shareholders. Therefore, an oppose vote is recommended.

7. Appoint the Auditors
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 30.43% of audit fees during the year under review. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

8. Approve Registration and Issuance of Overseas Debt Financing Products and Related Transactions
It is proposed to issue non-convertible bonds. Although there is no indication that these instruments will be convertible into shares, and therefore there is no risk of unexpected dilution of existing shareholders, it is considered that authorities for private placement should be duly justified, namely regarding the rationale and the beneficiary of the placement. In lack of it, opposition is recommended.

11. Approve Acquisition of YS Energy Company and Related Transactions
It is proposed that the company acquire YS Energy Company.
Such proposals are considered on the basis of whether they are deemed fair, whether they have been adequately explained, and whether there is sufficient independent oversight of the recommended proposal. The Company is not considered to have disclosed sufficient details of the transaction and there is insufficient balance of independence on the board. On balance, abstention is recommended.

12. Approve Renewal of Annual Liability Insurance for Directors, Supervisors and Senior Management and Authorize Secretary to Handle the Follow-up Related Matters
It is proposed to extend the insurance cover to the members of the governing bodies of all Group companies. The insurance policy covers the civil liability (and related legal and advisory expenses) of the members of the governing bodies of all Group companies versus third parties, deriving from non-fraudulent conduct in breach of the obligations deriving from the law or intrinsic to their duties. In addition, the insurance does not explicitly exclude that it would cover also liabilities arising from fraudulent conduct, and fines handed down by the supervisory authorities. On this basis, shareholders would pay wilful violations and fraudulent conduct led by directors and executives. Opposition is thus recommended.

13. Approve Public Issuance of Corporate Bonds
The board seeks authority to issue convertible bonds and to exclude subscription rights for a nominal amount corresponding to more than 10% of the share capital and for five years. As the authority would also include bonds convertible and without pre-emptive rights, the amount under this authority exceeds guidelines for issues of shares without pre-emptive rights.

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

2. Re-elect Amjad Bseisu - Chief Executive
Chief Executive. Acceptable service contract provisions. However, it is noted that this director is also a member of the nomination committee. It is important that this committee be exclusively comprised of independent directors in order to ensure an equitable and unprejudiced appointment process. Membership of the committee by the CEO raises serious concerns in this regard and therefore an oppose vote is recommended.

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent as this director is considered to be in a material connection with the current auditor: He retired from Deloitte in 2015 where he was Vice Chair, Deloitte are appointed as the new external auditor of the company subject to shareholder approval, and there has not been a sufficient cool off period. It is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

13. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in the median of the competitor group. Changes in CEO pay in the last five years are not considered to be in line with changes in TSR during the same period. Total variable remuneration for the year under review is considered acceptable at 185.3% of base salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee is considered acceptable at 9:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

2. Approve Remuneration Policy
Changes proposed: i) Removal of the financial underpin from the Annual Bonus and ii) Introduction of an ESG measures for the Performance Share Plan (PSP), the Remuneration Committee will be introducing the following performance measures, each with an equal weighting of 8.33% (25% in total): a) carbon reduction, b) food waste reduction and c) Diversity in the leadership teams.
The changes proposed are welcomed particularly the introduction of the ESG measures to the Performance Share Plan (PSP). However, there are concerns on the remuneration policy. Total potential awards under all incentive schemes are considered excessive at 600% of salary. The Performance Shares Plan (PSP), maximum opportunity is at 350% of the base salary, it is noted that for the financial year 2022 the maximum opportunity will be 275% for the CEO and 250% for the CFO. The vesting period is three years which is not sufficient long term, however a two-year holding period apply which is welcomed. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. The policy does not prohibit dividend accrual. Such payments misalign shareholder and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Clawback and malus provisions apply in both the Annual Bonus and the PSP.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval at general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. As such, PIRC may recommend opposition on any remuneration policy or report proposals containing variable remuneration.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. There was no salary increase in the year under review for the CEO while the average increase for UK employees of the Company was 3.3%. The salary of the CEO is in line with the workforce. However, the CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The changes in CEO pay over the last five years are not considered to be in line with changes in Company's TSR performance over the same period. Over the five-year period average change in CEO pay has been increased approximately 42.19% whereas, on average, TSR has increased by 12.43%. The CEO's total realized reward under variable incentive schemes for the year under review is considered excessive at 237.5% (Annual Bonus: 237.5% of salary - PSP: 0% of salary). The ratio of CEO to average employee pay has been estimated and is not considered acceptable at 257:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). 16. Re-appoint Deloitte LLP as Auditors
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 5.13% of audit fees during the year under review and 12.79% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO salary is below the median of the competitor group. The balance of CEO realized pay with financial performance is considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. The current CEO's variable pay, when compared with his salary, is considered acceptable as it represents less than 200% of his total salary .However, total deferred shares (salary and discretionary) are considered excessive at 455.67% of his cash salary. Furthermore, the ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is excessive at 58:1; it is recommended that the ratio does not exceed 20:1. However, it is noted that employees are paid in Georgian Lari, which the Company states partially accounts for the high ratio. Abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 92.3, Abstain: 1.1, Oppose/Withhold: 6.6,

4. Approve Remuneration Policy
Changes proposed: i) In accordance with the NBG requirements, share salary is to be fixed in monetary value in the contract, which is translated into deferred shares rather than the previous fixed number of share, ii) In accordance with the NBG requirements, performance-based remuneration remains capped at a maximum of 100% of salary (cash and share salary), iii) The vesting and holding periods of the discretionary performance-based remuneration mean that the shares will be released over a period of eight years from the beginning of the work year – an increase from the six years under the previous Policy, iv) Malus provisions have been expanded further for discretionary remuneration and v) Clawback will apply for two years from the date of vesting under the new Policy.
Overall disclosure is acceptable. The remuneration structure comprises two parts: i) a salary compensation based on a cash sum and deferred shares over five years; and ii) a discretionary compensation payable entirely in deferred shares that vest over three years. For 2022 the maximum opportunity will be 100% of the salary. The Company does not operate any LTIP or cash bonus, deferred share compensation is the dominant component of the overall remuneration structure for the CEO. The value of the discretionary deferred compensation award is based on the achievement of numerous KPIs over the work year which are set at the start of each work year. For the year 2022 the Performance measures are: Return on Average Equity (ROAE), Cost to Income ratio, Cost of Risk ratio, Profit before tax (PBT), NPS, eNPS, Developing ESG, in line with the Group's five championed Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and Personal Key Business Objectives. While the emphasis on deferred compensation is appreciated, it is noted that the level of salary paid is high. This is as evidenced by the fact that the current CEO's total salary (cash salary + deferred shares) ranks as number one among FTSE 350 banks. Furthermore, the policy does not prohibit dividend accrual. Such payments misalign shareholder and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Therefore opposition is recommended.

14. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP as Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.75% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.27% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

10. Approve New Executive Share Option Scheme
The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted stock options, each of which will give right to one share. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure. LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

7. Advisory vote on the UK Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO salary is in the median of the competitor group. Changes in the CEO's pay in the last five years are not considered to be in line with changes in TSR during the same period. Over the five- year period average annual increase in CEO pay has been approximately 103.9% whereas, on average, TSR has increased by 12.10%. The CEO variable pay is 384% of the salary (128.6% Annual Bonus and 255.4% PSP) and is considered excessive, since is higher than 200%.. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable, standing at 100:1. PIRC consider appropriate a ratio of 20:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 67.2, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 32.8,

8. Advisory vote on the Remuneration Policy
Total potential variable pay could reach 470% of the salary for the CEO and is considered excessive since is higher than 200%. The MIP (Management Incentive Plan) is paid 50% in cash and 50% is defer to shares for three years which is in line with best practice. The Performance Share Plan (PSP) has financial and non-financial

KPI's as performance measures which is welcomed. The vesting period is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, however, a two year holding period apply which is welcomed. Concerns are raised since Dividend accrual is not prohibited. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval at general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. 9. Advisory vote on the Swiss Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

10.2. Approval of the maximum aggregate amount of remuneration for the e Executive Leadership Team
The Board of Directors propose a maximum aggregate amount of compensation for members of the operating committee/executive directors in the amount of EUR 36 million. Pay policies are explained in terms of the Company's objectives. Short term and long-term variable incentives are utilized and are performance based. Total target payments for the MIP amount to 128.6% of total salaries and total target payments for the PSP amount to 255.4% of salary. This is considered excessive. In addition, the playout under these schemes at maximum level are considered excessive. Due to recommended opposition to the Company's Remuneration policy , an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.9, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.1,

11. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. 7. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Charitable Contributions
Proponent's argument: National Legal and Policy Center (NLPC)requested that Mastercard Inc. provide a report, published on the company's website and updated semi-annually – and omitting proprietary information and at reasonable cost – that discloses, itemizes and quantifies all Company charitable donations, aggregated by recipient name & address each year for contributions that exceed $999 annually. This report shall include: 1.Monetary and non-monetary contributions made to non-profit organizations operating under Section 501(c)(3) and 501(c)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code, and any other public or private charitable organization; 2.Policies and procedures for charitable contributions (both direct and indirect) made with corporate assets; 3.Rationale for each of the charitable contributions. "Mastercard Inc.'s assets belong to its shareholders. The expenditure or distribution of corporate assets, including charitable contributions, should be consistent with shareholder interests. Accordingly, the Company's policies and procedures for charitable contributions should be disclosed to shareholders. Company executives exercise wide discretion over the use of corporate assets for charitable purposes. Absent a system of transparency and accountability for charitable contributions, Company executives may use Company assets for objectives that are not shared by and may be inimical to the interests of the Company and its shareholders. Current disclosure is insufficient to allow the Company's Board, its shareholders, and its current and prospective customers to fully evaluate the charitable use of corporate assets. There is currently no single source providing shareholders the information sought by this resolution."
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "The bulk of our social impact work is done via the Mastercard Center for Inclusive Growth (Center), a part of Mastercard that is dedicated to advancing equitable and sustainable economic growth and financial inclusion around the world and which administers the philanthropic Mastercard Impact Fund (Fund) to produce independent research, scalable global programs, and an empowered community of thinkers, leaders and doers on the front lines of inclusive growth. [...] The Fund has its own board of directors composed of Mastercard current and former executives. The Fund board oversees the strategic direction and performance of the Fund. The Fund board meets regularly to review and approve grants sourced and vetted by the Center against the strategic objectives of the Fund, the IRS regulations and other factors. The Fund board also monitors the progress of work conducted under the grants, and with the assistance of the Center (and in some cases, independent third parties), evaluates the effectiveness of the programs funded by grants approved by the Fund. The Fund board spends time hearing from grant recipients as well. Finally, the Fund board reviews the financial statements of the Fund. Annually, the Center provides Mastercard executives with a report about the work of the Fund, and the Center's and Fund's social impact work is featured in presentations to our Board of Directors as well."

PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company-approved charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship. However, this resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company's customers can donate. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company provides donations to a variety of charities, including those that some shareholders may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be equally acceptable. Given the diversity that already exists among the organisations available for donations, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

10. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

GOOD ENERGY GROUP PLC AGM - 22-06-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
Disclosure is adequate and the Annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting. The financial statements have been audited and unqualified. Although not required to do so under AIM listing regulations, it is considered best practice for the Remuneration report to be submitted to a shareholder vote. As the Company has failed to do this, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights
The authority is limited to one third of the Company's issued share capital. This cap can increase to two-third of the issued share capital if shares are issued in connection with an offer by way of a rights issue. This authority expires at the next AGM. Not all directors are standing for annual re-election and there is no commitment from all the directors to stand for re-election in case this additional authority is used. In the absence of such commitment, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

10. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

1.7. Renew Appointment of KPMG Auditores as Auditor
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 16.05% of audit fees during the year under review and 25.50% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy with a binding vote. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on potential excessive variable remuneration.

4. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

7. Approve Remuneration Plan for Directors and Supervisors
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration is not consistently capped. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

10. Approve Grant of General Mandate to Apply for Registration and Issuance of Debt Financing Instruments in the PRC
It is proposed to issue non-convertible bonds for private placement. Although there is no indication that these instruments will be convertible into shares, and therefore there is no risk of unexpected dilution of existing shareholders, it is considered that authorities for private placement should be duly justified, namely regarding the rationale and the beneficiary of the placement. In lack of it, opposition is recommended.

WENTWORTH RESOURCES PLC AGM - 22-06-2022

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
During the year, executives remuneration included base salary, bonus, LTIP charges and other benefits including pension.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of ‘alignment’ with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of ‘alignment’ which can actually create a competing set of director ‘duties’.

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 15.19% of audit fees during the year under review and 14.89% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn’t an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn’t merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC’s view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an ’expectations gap’ does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

8. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights
The authority is limited to one third of the Company’s issued share capital. The Company has stated that this resolution may authorise the Board of Directors to allocate all or part of its repurchased shares to remuneration schemes. It is proposed to authorize the Board to issue shares with or without without pre-emptive rights, for up to 50% and 10% of the current share capital, respectively. The authority is valid for the next five years. While the duration is in accordance with Article 297.1.b and 506 of the Capital Companies Act, it is deemed excessive as it is believed that shareholders should decide upon such resolutions annually.

Japanese companies seek specific authority for the appropriation of any surplus in earnings and this authority includes any distribution of a dividend. The approach to such resolutions rests on the degree to which the dividend payout ratio is in line with the level of distribution which investors could reasonably expect. A dividend of 50 yen per share is proposed, however, the Company made a net loss in the year under review. It is considered unwise to pay a dividend in this instance given the capital maintenance needs of the company.

All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce, however, the CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The changes in CEO pay over the last five years are not considered in line with changes in Company's TSR performance over the same period. The changes in the CEO pay were increase by 29.95% for the last five years were the TSR increase by 5.92% for the same period. The variable pay for the year under review was at 203.7% of the salary and is considered marginally excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to median employee pay is considered excessive at 73:1.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy
Changes proposed: i) The Annual Bonus opportunity for the CEO and CFO is now proposed to be 200% and 190% of salary respectively with anything earned over 100% of salary deferred into shares for three years. The bonus measures will be at least 70% based on financial measures with the remainder based on strategic measures, ii) The proposed Annual Bonus measures for 2022/23 for the CEO and CFO are adjusted pre-tax profit, LFL Sales Growth, both with a 40% weighting with 20% on strategic measures which are OEB Sales Growth and Digital Sales Growth for the year, iii) A new long-term incentive plan is proposed: the PSP which will be granted annually with a maximum opportunity of 275% and 260% of salary for the CEO and CFO respectively. The performance conditions attached to the vesting of the PSP are proposed to be EPS, ROCE, Relative TSR and ESG measures, each with a 25% weighting, iv) An increase to the share ownership requirement for the CFO from 250% to 270% of salary to ensure that the requirement is appropriate within the context of the PSP opportunity, v) The removal of reference in the base salary policy to the use of the FTSE 25 - 75 (excluding financial services companies). The base salary increase cap of 8% per annum will also be removed. This removal is to align with market norms. The wording in the policy will make it clear that the Committee will not award salary increases that exceed the workforce average unless there are exceptional circumstances and vi) The Remuneration Policy also now explicitly includes a Chair fee for the Responsible Business Committee and membership fees for the Audit, Remuneration and Responsible Business Committees.
Some of the proposed changes are welcomed, such as the deferral part of the Annual Bonus and the increase of the shareholding requirements for the CFO . However, concerns remains for the proposed policy, more specific, total variable pay under the new policy is consider excessive since it can reach 475% of the salary for the CEO and 450% of the salary for the CFO which is higher than the recommended limit of 200%. The deferral part of the Annual Bonus is not considered adequate, under the new policy any Bonus earned over 100% of salary deferred into shares. It would be preferable 50% of the Bonus to be paid in cash and 50% to defer to shares for at least three years. On the PSP award the performance period is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, however, a two year holding period applies which is welcomed. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. Furthermore, dividends may accrue on vesting awards from the date of grant. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval at general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties, including the new s172 duties, should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'. 4. Approve Performance Share Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

9. Issue Shares for Cash
Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital. However; the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

3. Elect Directors (Bundled)
Proposal to renew the Board with a bundled election. Although slate elections are not considered to be best practice, they are common in this market. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board after the meeting as resulting from this slate of candidates.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Approve Auditors and Fix Their Remuneration
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 100.07% of audit fees during the year under review and 62.77% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises major concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. Opposition is recommended.

11. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 24 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

9. Approve Profit Distribution to Board Members and Management
It is proposed to distribute part of the Company's FY2021 Net Income, as an exceptional performance bonus to the personnel and to Board of Directors members (independent members are excluded), as recognition of their contribution in achieving 2021 profitability. While profit-sharing is welcomed, there are concerns as the company does not disclose the quota established for executives. On this basis, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

14. Advisory Vote on Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve with an advisory vote the remuneration report. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

15. Approve Employment Contract with Managing Director and Amend Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the Employment Contract with Managing Director and to amend the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the pay-out is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

JOHN WOOD GROUP PLC AGM - 22-06-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce. However, the CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The changes in CEO pay over the last five years are not considered in line with the changes in the Company's TSR performance over the same period. Total variable pay for the year under review c is acceptable at 45.32% of salary. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is considered acceptable at 13:1, it is recommended that the ratio does not exceed 20:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 1.20% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.40% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

17. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

THE KROGER CO. AGM - 23-06-2022

1.6. Elect W. Rodney McMullen - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. In addition, as the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is not up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's Sustainability programme. As such, given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability and the merging of the CEO and Chair roles, an oppose vote is recommended.

4. Amend Existing Omnibus Plan
It is proposed to amend the 2019 Long-term Incentive Plan for authorise additional shares by 46,239,000 to 59,922,931.
There are concerns with the Plan as the it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive. As a result, opposition is recommended.

8. Authorise Share Repurchase
Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager), we would like to see a public statement:
- addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

WEST JAPAN RAILWAY CO AGM - 23-06-2022

1. Appropriation of Surplus
Japanese companies seek specific authority for the appropriation of any surplus in earnings and this authority includes any distribution of a dividend. The approach to such resolutions rests on the degree to which the dividend payout ratio is in line with the level of distribution which investors could reasonably expect. A dividend of 50 yen per share is proposed, however, the Company made a net loss in the year under review. It is considered unwise to pay a dividend in this instance given the capital maintenance needs of the company.

The effect of the proposal, if approved, the limit for issuance of shares would exceed 10% of issued share capital. Given the concerns over dilution of the shareholder rights, opposition is recommended.

ENTAIN PLC AGM - 24-06-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. It is noted that the highest paid Executive for the year under review was Mr. Rob Wood the CFO and Deputy CEO of the company. The highest paid Executive salary is in the lowest quartile of the competitors group. Changes in highest paid Executive over the past five years are not considered in line with changes in TSR during the same period. The highest paid Executive's total realized awards during the year under review stands at approximately 939% (LTIP: 739.2%; Annual Bonus: 199.8%). The highest paid Executive's maximum potential award under all incentive schemes is considered excessive. The ratio of highest paid Executive pay compared to average employee pay stands at 77:1 which is not considered adequate. PIRC consider a ratio of 20:1 as appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

3. Ratify KPMG LLP as Auditors
KPMG proposed. No Non-audit fees were paid for the year under review and Non-audit fees represents 1.54% of Audit fees on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

15. Approve Free Share Plan

It is proposed to approve the Company's c Free Share Plan. Eligible to participate are employees of the Company (including employed executive directors). Under the plan awards will be granted in one or more of the following forms, at the discretion of the Board: i) a share award, being a conditional right to acquire fully paid ordinary shares in the capital of the Company ("Shares") in the future, ii) a share option, structured as an option to acquire Shares in the future and iii) a phantom award, being a conditional right to receive a cash sum in the future linked to the value of a number of notional Shares. Share awards and options may be settled using newly issued, treasury or existing Shares. Whenever the Free Share Plan is operated, all participants will receive the same 'face value' award. This will initially be set at GBP 300 per participant or local currency equivalent. The number of Shares subject to an award will be determined by reference to the average of the closing middle market quotation of a Share for up to 5 dealing days falling within the period immediately preceding the date that an invitation. The Free Share Plan will provide for the vesting of awards to be made subject to the satisfaction of one or more performance conditions (or other conditions). It is anticipated that awards will not normally be made subject to conditions other than continuous service over the vesting period. Subject to the satisfaction of any conditions that apply, awards will normally vest on the later of the date the Board decides such conditions have been satisfied and the vesting date specified by the Board at the grant date. Awards will not normally vest until at least 2 years from grant. Awards may vest in tranches, in which case each tranche may have a different vesting date. Following vesting of a share or phantom award, or on exercise of a share option, Shares or cash (as appropriate) will normally be delivered to the participant as soon as practicable. Awards granted as share options may be exercised in full or in part and on more than one occasion. They will be exercisable for a specified period following vesting (ending not later than the 10th anniversary of grant) and if not exercised during that period they will lapse.

Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries. On balance, opposition is recommended.

17. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights

The authority is limited to 33% of the Company's issued share capital and expires at the next AGM. Within acceptable limits. It is noted that in the 2021 Annual General Meeting the proposed resolution received significant opposition of 14.85% of the votes. As the company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 98.2, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 1.2,

19. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

20. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

JOLLIBEE FOODS CORP AGM - 24-06-2022

4.1. Elect Tony Tan Caktiong - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.4. Elect Ang Cho Sit - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as they serve on the board of Hyper Dynamic Corporation, a substantial shareholder of the Company. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.5. Elect Antonio Chua Poe Eng - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as he is the brother-in-law of the three executive directors of the company, Messrs Tan Caktiong, Tanmantiong and Tan Untiong. He also serves on the board of Hyper Dynamic Corporation, a substantial shareholder of the Company. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.6. Elect Artemio V Panganiban - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director has a cross directorship with another director. The director is an Advisor of Double Dragon Properties Corp, where Executive Director William Tan Untiong serves as an Executive Director. Additionally, he has been on the board for over nine years.. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

5. Appoint the Auditors
SyCip Gorres Velayo & Co proposed. Non-audit fees represented 11.41% of audit fees during the year under review and 12.90% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

7. Approve Release of Directors from Non-Competition Restriction
Approval is sought for directors to serve on the board of other companies engaged in activities within the scope of the company's business. There are concerns over the risks and potential negative impact on shareholders interest connected to directors or other officers of the Company serving for competing companies. In addition, there is insufficient description on how the Company will take measure to monitor the conflicts of interest and prevent any negative effect for the Company and ultimately its shareholders. 1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 98.8, Abstain: 1.2, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are disclosed. Next year's fees and salaries are clearly stated. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce. The CEO salary is in the lower quartile of PIRC's comparator group. It is noted that the remuneration report in the Annual General Meeting of 2021 received significant opposition of 32.99% of the votes, however, the company disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Changes in the CEO's pay over the last five years are not in line with the changes in Company's TSR performance over the same period. The CEO's variable pay for the year under review is below the acceptable level of 200% of salary. In addition, it is noted that the ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is considered appropriate at 17:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. 3. Amend the Performance Share Plan
It is proposed to amend the Company's Performance Share Plan (PSP). The rules of the PSP do not currently allow the Company to grant an eligible employee an award in a financial year if the value of the shares over which the award is granted would exceed 100% of their base salary. The Company may grant an award in excess of this limit if it considers there to be exceptional circumstances up to a maximum of 200% of salary. The Company's current Directors' Remuneration Policy provides that the normal maximum annual PSP opportunity for executive directors of the Company is 150% of the salary. It is proposed that the rules of the PSP be amended to allow the Company to grant an eligible employee an award in respect of a financial year over shares with a market value of up to 150% of their salary. The proposed amendment would align the rules of the PSP with the Company's current Directors' Remuneration Policy. The maximum award value of 200% of the salary in exceptional circumstances will still apply. PIRC does not consider that LTIPs are an effective means of incentivising performance. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature. Therefore opposition is recommended.

Executive Director and Company Secretary. Acceptable service contract provisions. The Company Secretary is an officer of the Company with all of the responsibilities that attach to that status. The holder of the post is often seen as the guardian of governance and an independent adviser to the Board. For this reason, it is considered a conflict of interest for a person to serve the company secretarial function and serve another position on the Board. An abstain vote is recommended.

4. Amend Existing Long Term Incentive Plan Approved at the April 26, 2022 EGM
The Board proposes the approval of amendment to the long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

- addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. PwC proposed as new auditor. Auditor rotation is considered a positive factor. Acceptable proposal.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

6. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights
The authority is limited to one third of the Company's issued share capital. This cap can increase to two-third of the issued share capital if shares are issued in connection with an offer by way of a rights issue. This authority expires at the next AGM. Not all directors are standing for annual re-election and there is no commitment from all the directors to stand for re-election in case this additional authority is used. In the absence of such commitment, an abstain vote is recommended.

6. Authorise Share Repurchase
Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager), we would like to see a public statement:
- addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

2. Re-Elect Zhu Yuan - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

4. Authorise the Board to Fix Directors' Remuneration
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market; support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting; as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. Opposition is recommended.

It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. In addition, it is noted that the director is a member of the Remuneration committee which should comprise wholly of independent directors. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

7. Re-appoint KPMG Channel Islands Limited as the independent auditor of the Company
KPMG proposed. No non-audit fees were paid for the year under review and non-audit fees represents 5.64% of audit fees on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. 2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary is in line with the workforce. However, the CEO salary is at the upper quartile of the comparator group, which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. The changes in CEO salary over the last five years are not considered in line with Company's TSR performance over the same period. Variable pay for the year under review was approximately at 143.9% of the salary and is within the recommended limit of 200%. The pay ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay stands at 58:1 and is not considered acceptable. PIRC consider that a ratio of up to 20:1 is adequate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

9. Amend Articles
It is proposed to make several amendments to the Company's articles of association. The amendments extend the practice of cumulative voting (currently used for directors) to the election of supervisors. With cumulative voting; shareholders can cast all of their votes for one nominee; instead of voting each share for, against or to abstain for each nominee; and thereby can potentially elect a nominee that has not been supported by the holders of a majority of the shares voting on the election of supervisors. This proposal will therefore harm minority shareholder rights. A one-share, one-vote system is preferred. 16. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

18. Authorise Share Repurchase
The authority is limited to 10% of the Company's issued share capital and will expire at the next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

TOEI CO LTD AGM - 29-06-2022

1. Appropriation of Surplus
Japanese companies seek specific authority for the appropriation of any surplus in earnings and this authority includes any distribution of a dividend. The approach to such resolutions rests on the degree to which the dividend payout ratio is in line with the level of distribution which investors could reasonably expect. A dividend of 30 yen per share is proposed, and the dividend payout ratio is approximately 8.3%. which at less than 15%, is below what shareholders could reasonably expect

3.5. Elect Nomoto Hirofumi - Non-Executive Director
Not considered independent as the candidate is considered to be connected to a major shareholder, Non-Executive Director, not considered to be independent. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board (less than one-third of the whole Board). Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3.6. Elect Hayakawa Hiroshi - Non-Executive Director
Not considered independent as the candidate is considered to be connected to a major shareholder, candidate's tenure exceeds nine years. Non-Executive Director, not considered to be independent. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board (less than one-third of the whole Board). Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Adoption of Takeover Defense Measures
The board is proposing the continuation of the companies anti takeover defence measures. The proposed countermeasures to large-scale acquisition are considered ineffective and there is no evidence they are in the best interests of shareholders. An oppose vote is recommended.

MFE-MEDIAFOREUROPE NV AGM - 29-06-2022

2c. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, the performance criteria which have been disclosed are not challenging enough to be sufficiently incentivising: 100% of the payout for the TSR sub-component of the LTI is awarded if the MFE's positioning is the third in a group of four peers. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

2d. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

4. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

5. Approve Remuneration of Directors and Supervisors
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. As abstention is not a valid voting option, opposition is recommended.

BANCO DO BRASIL EGM - 29-06-2022

1.1. Elect the Corporate Auditors: Renato da Motta Andrade Neto
It is welcomed that the Company has submitted individual proposals for the candidates to the Fiscal Board. The candidate to standing member is not considered to be independent, as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: Brazilian Government. In terms of good governance, it is considered that all of the candidates to the Fiscal Board should be independent. Opposition is thus recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.2. Elect the Corporate Auditors: Lincoln Moreira Jorge Junior (alternate)
It is welcomed that the Company has submitted individual proposals for the candidates to the Fiscal Board. The candidate to standing member is not considered to be independent, as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: Brazilian Government. He is General Coordinator of Institutional Development of the National Treasury. In terms of good governance, it is considered that all of the candidates to the Fiscal Board should be independent. Opposition is thus recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Amend Remuneration of Company's Management, Fiscal Council, Audit Committee, and Risk and Capital Committee for April 2022 to March 2023 Period
It is proposed to approve the maximum compensation for Directors, Management and Fiscal Council for next year. It is regrettable that the Company bundled these items, however it is common practice in this market. The amount proposed under this resolution is not the actual remuneration but the global remuneration cap, and includes fixed salaries and short term incentives.
Directors and Fiscal Council receive only fixed fees. For Management, it is proposed to cap remuneration at BRL 64,870,222.69. Variable remuneration for executives would correspond to up to 173% of the fixed pay. There is lack of disclosure with respect of targets and measurable criteria for variable remuneration, which prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment. Abstention is recommended.

3. Approve Annual Financial Report
Disclosure is acceptable and the report was made available sufficiently before the meeting. However, the following serious corporate governance concerns have been identified. The company has been fined for inconsistencies in data reporting and has not yet appeared to have appointed a data officer. As such, there are concerns that the statements may not reflect accurately the financial impact of data throughout the company. An oppose vote is recommended.

12. Approve Remuneration of Board of Statutory Auditors
It is proposed to approve the payment plan of remuneration to supervisors for the past year. Shareholder supervisors receive also performance-based salary, which is not considered to be best practice given the controlling nature of this body, although in line with market practice. Moreover, the company did not disclose the Supervisors 2021 annual assessment results, upon which the supervisors' remuneration is based. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14. Approve Issuance of Write-down Undated Capital Bonds
It is proposed to issue additional Tier 1 capital bonds for up to RMB 80 million and until 31 December 2024, at an interest rate to be determined with reference to market interest rates.
The use of Tier 1 capital bonds are not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. Such instrument are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivises equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

15. Approve Issuance of Qualified Write-down Tier 2 Capital Instruments
It is proposed the issuance of write-down undated capital bonds of value until 31 December 2024. The value of the operation will not be more than RMB 120 billion, or equivalent in foreign currencies. The goal of the issuance is to further enhance the capital adequacy level and strengthen the capability of sustainable development of the Bank. There is no indication that these instruments will be convertible into shares, and therefore there is no risk of unexpected dilution of existing shareholders, it is considered that authorities for private placement should be duly justified, namely regarding the rationale and the beneficiary of the placement. In lack of it, opposition is recommended.

17. Elect Zhang Jiangang - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as he previously worked for the Ministry of Finance until 2014, which is affiliated with the controlling shareholder Huijin through being part of the State. Moreover, Mr Zhang Jiangang was recommended by Huijin, controlled shareholder of the Bank, and he is remunerated by shareholding companies or other connected parties. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

SOLGOLD PLC EGM - 30-06-2022

1. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Overall, however, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Approve a New Bonus Plan
It is proposed to approve a new performance bonus plan. Quantified targets have not been disclosed at this time and aggregate variable remuneration is not capped to 200% of fixed remuneratio, leading to concerns over potentially excessive remuneration. Opposition is therefore recommended.

GRESHAM HOUSE ENERGY STORAGE FUND PLC AGM - 30-06-2022

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Shareholders are being asked to approve the company's annual report on remuneration. Directors' remuneration does not comprise any performance-related element, which is welcomed. It is further noted that no additional discretionary payments were made in the year. It is noted there were year on year increases of over 10% in fees paid to the directors' during the year under review. However, no adequate justification have been provided. On balance, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Authorise Share Repurchase
Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager), we would like to see a public statement:
- addressing how much of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the Total Expense Ratio),
- setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and
- setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets,
- setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

3i GROUP PLC AGM - 30-06-2022

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the rest of the Company. The CEO's salary is in the median of the competitor group. The changes in CEO pay over the last five years are considered in line with changes in Company's TSR performance over the same period. The changes in the CEO pay were increase by 4.10% for the last five years were the TSR increase by 19.21% for the same period. The total CEO realized variable pay for the year under review is 913.6% of salary (Annual Bonus: 395.3% : LTIP 518.3%), which is considered excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is acceptable 11:1.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

9. Re-elect David Hutchison - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As the company do not have a Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

14. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as Auditors
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 11.11% of audit fees during the year under review and 16.90% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.
